PREDICTS PASSAGE

Johnson Seeking Voting On Rights By Month's End

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Johnson Saturday promised that the civil rights bill will be passed even if it means congressional sessions "around the clock."

He said the Senate should be ready to vote on the House-approved measure by the end of this month.

RE-ELECTION

The President also all but confirmed that he would run for re-election in November and said he would make more tours of the poverty-stricken Appalachian area.

In a characteristic whirlwind day, Johnson traveled to the World's Fair, spoke to 7,000 persons at the Singer Bowl, visited the Venezuelan pavilion, and held a news conference at the federal pavilion.

The President told his news conference that he would not tell Senate leaders when debate should be cut off on the civil rights bill. But he said that blocking the legislation hurt Congress and pleaded for passage for the sake of the national interest.

The Senate has debated the bill for 51 days.

Johnson told a cheering audience at Singer Bowl: "It may take all summer — it may take sessions around the clock — but I promise you here and now that we are going to pass that bill (civil rights). . .

"We are going to bring new hope to 20 million Americans who for two centuries of our history have been on the outside looking in."

Pressed on plans for his political future, the Chief Executive carried on a bantering exchange with newsmen and said he "wouldn't want to shoot from the hip" on the subject now. But he wryly noted that he had asked Congress to authorize $800,000 to cover expenses of transition between an outgoing and incoming President.

"I'm informed by the budget director that my re-election would save this $800,000," he said. "While I have no announcement. . .to make at this time, I think you all know how strongly I feel about economy."

Johnson added, however, that his plans were not definite, and said it was unlikely he would announce them until after he had seen delegates at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

Johnson, who returned only Friday from a two-day tour of six states in the Appalachian region, said he considered his enthusiastic reception there "a good omen." He added that he would do a great deal of traveling in various states this summer.

"We're not going to stay in seclusion," he said.

Air Crash Gun Owner Identified

CONCORD, Calif. (AP)—Reliable sources said Saturday that Frank Gonzales, 27, Olympic yachtsman competitor for the Philippines in the 1960 Olympics, owned the gun which triggered the Pacifc Airlines crash Thursday. He was among the 44 persons killed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board made public Saturday the tape recording of the last message radioed from the plane in which a voice, presumably that of the pilot, said: "I've been shot! I've been shot! Oh, my God- Help!"

GAMBLING LOSS

A reliable source told The Associated Press in San Francisco that Gonzales gambled and lost at Reno and carried around $100,000 air trip life insurance made out to his wife of two years. A brother, James, said Frank Gonzales had become estranged from his wife two months ago.

The New York Herald Tribune and the Los Angeles Times both published reports that Gonzales had been identified as the owner of the .357 Smith & Wesson magnum pistol found in the plane wreckage. All six cartridges were spent, indicating they had been fired recently.

FBI national headquarters in Washington would neither confirm nor deny the report that Gonzales had been established as owner of the weapon.

But sources previously had said a male passenger was the gunman, that he carried heavy air trip insurance, and that apparently he had shot at least one member of the crew.

Gonzales' brother said Frank had a penchant for gambling and had gone to Reno several times previously, always without any word of it to his family, but his previous trips were by car.

"I never knew what he was doing," the brother, James, said, adding that Frank kept to himself.

He said Frank became separated recently from his wife, a legal secretary with the U.S. government. They have a young son.

Dixie Solons Fear Chances Of Rights Bill

Express Concern For Prospects Of Diluted Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Southern senators agreed Saturday the civil rights bill may be passed if senators from outside the South can get together on modifying amendments.

While Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and John Sparkman, D-Ala., expressed concern that this may happen, it is just what the bill's sponsors have been aiming at in a series of conferences during the past week.

AMENDMENTS

The talks have been taken up largely with discussion of 70 amendments proposed by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., the GOP Senate leader and a key figure in the negotiations.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the bill's floor manager, said he feels progress is being made toward working out a package of amendments that will open the way for Senate passage.

One sign of this was that for the first time—except for Easter Saturday—since the Senate debate over the House-passed measure began March 9. No Saturday session was held.

Eastland, interviewed by Sparkman on a transcribed broadcast for radio stations in Alabama and Mississippi, was asked what he thinks the eventual outcome of the marathon battle will be.

"Well, I think if we can prevent the bill being watered down by amendments, we've got a good chance to defeat it all," Eastland replied.

But he added that, "Sometimes the boys have the habit of getting together and making some trades."

"I don't think any Southerner would be a party to that," Eastland said, "but I think this is one time that there is a chance that senators from outside the South might water the bill down and pass it in some form.

"I'm afraid that might happen, but I will oppose it just as I know you—Sparkman — will oppse it."

Legislature To Open New Session Monday

GOP Victory Seen If City Losses Cut

Republican Chief Cites Success Of Urban Organizing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans can elect a president in November if they cut their big city losses, GOP National Chairman William E. Miller said Saturday.

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey replied that President Johnson "is doing a tremendous job and I think the country is going to give him a vote of confidence in November"—possibly as sweeping as 1936 when Franklin D. Roosevelt carried all but Maine and Vermont.

LOSSES PARED

The GOP chairman said that by organizing in the cities, the Republicans have cut their losses in subsequent elections in Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

"Instead of losing Philadelphia by 330,000 as we did in 1960, in 1963 we lost it by 60,000," he said. "Any time we can come anywhere near that figure in Philadelphia, we can carry the state of Pennsylvania.

"We reduced the Democratic majority in 1962 over 1960 in Detroit by 50 per cent; we can always carry Michigan when we do this.

"In 1962 in Chicago we elected a sheriff. We have now nominated a very scintillating attractive gubernatorial candidate (Charles Percy). I think we'll do very well this year in Chicago and Cook County, and thus we'll carry Illinois.

"We're better united today in St. Louis than we've been in a long time. I think we will carry Missouri for our presidential candidate, and I think we will defeated (Sen.) Stuart Symington in Missouri this year. I think that we have a very excellent chance of winning the presidential election of 1964."

Miller said he thinks Republicans can pick up from seven to nine seats in the Senate where they now have 33 of the 100 members. He mentioned Indiana, Utah and Missouri in this connection. He said he thinks that if the Republicans elect a president "we'll carry with him a Republican House of Rpresentatives."

Tornado Homeless Rebuilding

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP)—Grim and weary, hundreds of them homeless, residents of Chesterfield Township on Saturday mourned their dead, tended their injured and started to rebuild their tornado-shattered community.

The deadly twister that smashed this once-peaceful scene of homes, cottages and boatwells off Lake St. Clair's Anchor Bay in southeastern Michigan claimed nine lives Friday night.

HUNDREDS HURT

Hundreds of persons, many of them children, were injured. Damage was estimated officially between $4 and $5 million.

With 1,000 people homeless, Gov. George W. Romney led a damage survey on the results of which he was prepared to ask President Johnson for federal disaster aid.

Romney and federal representatives arranged to fly over the stricken district for an assessment of the full loss and report to Washington.

The governor, leaving his Republican party's Michigan state convention in Grand Rapids, met with trade union men and others. They set up an "Operation Bulldoze" program to rebuild the devastated area.

As Macomb County and Mount Clemens city officials took precautions to keep the community safe from other harm in the destruction's aftermath residents gave thanks they still lived.

Coincidences played a role.

"We can thank God we are alive," said Mrs. Louis T. James. The home of Mrs. James and her husband, a retired tool and die worker, was one of the 150 listed officially by state police as destroyed.

'OUTMODED CONCEPT'

U.S. Denounces De Gaulle Action

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Saturday absolute national sovereignty in the nuclear age is an outmoded concept unable any longer to protect the free world's vital interests.

Without mentioning French President Charles de Gaulle by name, Rusk gave Washington's answer to De Gaulle's demand for a louder and fully independent voice in world affairs.

DISCARDS TEXT

Departing from the prepared text of a lengthy foreign policy speech at a luncheon meeting of Belgian - American associations, Rusk said Americans "simply cannot understand the revival of the notion of absolute independence in dealing with affairs within the free world."

Rusk prefaced this by saying: "Our peoples see quite clearly now that the interests they cherish, which once national sovereignty was presumed to preserve, are better assured through collective action. We know, and our peoples know, that no such thing as absolute sovereignty is to be had in today's world."

Americans, he added, had little of it themselves nowadays with their freedom of action "rigorously circumscribed" by various commitments. These include a commitment to defend France against attack and to consult Paris on affairs within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization area.

Rusk gave Western Europeans this message:

Unity is succeeding and should be increased. The question is not whether Europe and America should work together, but how to do it better.

State Boost Of Economy Prime Goal

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana will open four years of industrial promotion when a new legislature convenes at noon Monday and John McKeithen takes the oath as governor next day.

Money and racial matters still stand in the wings, but for the first time in many years a third major issue—How to build the state's economy — stands forth in the starring role.

The governor-elect says he wants his program to pass on merit without the usual whiplash from administration leaders.

"I think the new legislature will be different in this respect," said Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock in an interview. "The legislature realizes our way of life in Louisiana is hinged to our economy, and our economy is hinged to the industrial image we present to the nation."

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH

McKeithen has said he wants to put into effect his programs of industrial growth, government reform and economy before considering any new taxes.

The people might change their attitude about new taxes, he commented, "once they are convinced the government is nothing to cause them to have suspicions."

McKeithen's stand on an independent legislature perhaps can be summed up in this comment: "If I attempted to have a controlled legislature, I no doubt would have to commit myself to things not good for the state."

Perhaps the first major showdown in the legislature will come on a proposal for a higher teachers' salary schedule. Most lawmakers are for the raise, the question is how to raise the money.

The United School Committee, the powerful group representing all educators, proposes a new schedule that would cost $37 million for teachers alone. Companion proposals for school bus drivers and other school personnel would shoot the cost to near the $51 million mark.

An incoming constitutional proposal would submit a one-cent raise in the state's two-cent sales tax to the people next November, with the extra $50 million or so in new revenues dedicated to education.

Rep. James Leaker, West Feliciana Parish, demanded teachers instead get behind a move to repeal the $2,000 homestead exemptions which would save an estimated $40 million a year. This, he said, could pay for the teachers' raise.

Sen. Jesse Knowles of Lake Charles, an independent, predicted a tax raise to be submitted to the people for education would gain the necessary two-thirds majority in each house.

"Submitting this tax proposal for education to the people for a final decision would get it off the governor's neck," Knowles said, "and I think many lawmakers would prefer such a tax—if needed to raise the teachers' pay—to any repeal of the homestead exemptions."

The first action in House and Senate Monday will be ceremonies of oath taking for 60 new members in the 105-man House and 16 new members in the 39-seat Senate.

And for the first time since 1916—nearly half a century—the legislature will become two-party. Reps. Morley Hudson

Mother Hopes For Return Of Child As Gift

CHICAGO (AP) — On the eve of Mothers Day the grief - stricken parents of Paul Joseph Fronczak suggested hopefully Saturday that the kidnaper of their two weeks old son could return the child undetected by leaving him in a church.

"It would be the most wonderful Mothers Day gift I could ever hope for," said Mrs. Dora Fronczak, 28, whose only child was taken from her arms in Michael Reese Hospital 13 days ago when the boy was only 37 hours old.

The kidnaper, a woman posing as a nurse, carried the child from the hospital, apparently entered a taxi and vanished. Hundreds of police and FBI agents have found no trace of the kidnaper or the infant.

Rewards totaling $20,000 have been posted for information leading to recovery of the child.

At the three - room apartment where a dresser is filled with clothing and toys for the missing infant, Mrs. Fronczak and her husband, Chester, 33, a machinist, tearfully told of their hopes for the return of Paul Joseph.

Northeast Wins 2nd All-Sports League Trophy

LAFAYETTE (Special) — Northeast State College won its second straight Gulf States Conference All - Sports trophy here Saturday night by retaining its league track and field championship.

The track victory, third straight for Northeast and fifth in the last six years, enabled the Indians to break a deadlock or first place with Louisiana Tech.

The All - Sports trophy is designed as a reward for schools with a well balanced sports program and is decided on a basis of each school's ranking in six sports. Six points are given for first place, five for second and so on in the six team conference.

Northeast finished the year with a total of 32½ points, most of which came in the four spring sports.

In addition to the championship in track, the Monroe school repeated as conference tennis champions and the baseball team won its first title ever in league competition. The Indians finished third in golf.

For the rest of the year, Northeast captured the cross country title, was fourth in basketball and tied for fifth in football.

Northeast is only the second school to win the all-sports trophy twice in a row in the seven years it has been awarded. McNeese State College won the initial trophy in 1958. Tech kept the award the next three years before tying for first with the University of Southwestern Louisiana in 1962 and Northeast has won it the last two.

Russians May Reduce Arms

LONDON (UPI)— Diplomatic sources Saturday said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is expected to announce a unilateral cutback in Soviet conventional armed forces this year because of heavy financial and economic pressures.

They said, however, Khrushchev probably will try to capitalize on the propaganda value of the move by presenting it as another Soviet tension - easing measure in the cold war thaw."

Military Plane Crashes, Burns In Heavy Rain

COOPERTON, Okla. (AP) — A C124 military transport plane crashed and burned in a driving rainstorm near this southwestern Oklahoma community Saturday night, killing all aboard. Five bodies had been recovered.

Witnesses said the plane exploded in the air.

The plane was believed to be en route to Dover, Del., from Clovis, N.M., when it encountered bad weather, lost radio contact and crashed.

Mrs. Dale Callen of Cooperton said she and her husband heard a roar and looked out a window of their home in time to see the plane falling in flames.

Callen called Kiowa Cotunty Sheriff Leon Messick, who sent three men to the scene and dispatched two ambulances and a fire truck.

Overcast Skies Forecast Here

Overcast skies will continue to plague the northeast area and Twin Cities today, with temperatures to remain pleasant.

MILD

The weather man said this weekend's cloudy skies and mild mercury readings can be attributed to a weak cold front which moved slowly south and east Saturday, leaving scattered showers in some parts of Mississippi and Arkansas.

Skies will remain cloudy through Monday, with little change in temperatures. The mercury is expected to peak in the mid 80s today, dropping just below 70 tonight. Winds will be southerly, 5 to 15 mph. Saturday's high was 80, and a low of 71 was recorded.

VIET NAM FATALITY

Young U.S. Widow Cries For Husband

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP)—Tear-weary, the young mother tried to talk about her soldier husband as though that would stir another warm memory to fill a cruel void.

In her lap she held her infant son, marveling that the baby was so good, so quiet, so easy to handle.

"Chris has been so good this week," said Jacqueline Grimes, 20, a tall girl with red-blonde hair and blue eyes. "It's as though he knew something had happened, that things were different. He sits on the floor and plays for hours. It's as if he knows."

She kissed her baby's fingers and said, "He's so much like Carl."

Then she opened a letter, wanting to read something that would show what sort of husband she had had in Pfc. Carl Grimes, 23.

"He wrote me asking whether I bought a bathing suit," she said, smiling. "He was always after me about it because he wanted me to learn how to swim. Here he wrote, 'You buy a suit and don't be like me. Do it now.'"

And the smile dissolved in tears.

It was the last letter she received from him. It was written last Sunday. On Tuesday, at 1:25 p.m., Jacqueline learned from the Army that her husband was one of 10 Americans killed in a plane crash at Tan Hiep, South Viet Nam.

For Mrs. Grimes, every memento of her life with Carl Grimes is precious. They had so little time together.

"We lived together only 23 days," she said. "We never had a home or apartment of our own.

"We went together eight months before we got married on March 23, 1963, when Carl enlisted. We had a six-day honeymoon in Dixon, Ill., where Carl grew up.

136 Cast City Election Votes

Absentee voting closed at noon Saturday for the Monroe city election May 16, with a total of 136 ballots cast.

The Ouachita Clerk of court's office reported that nearly 40 persons came by to cast absentee ballots Saturday morning before the noon deadline, to bring the total to 136.

The balloting was for mayor and two commissioners and five city school board members in the Democratic primary election next Saturday. All registered Democrats in Wards 3 and 10 living within the corporate limits are eligible to vote in Saturday's election.

12-HOUR RECITAL

Piano 'Relay Team' Plays In Marathon

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A student began to play George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" at noon Saturday and he played on and on and on.

And when he was through another student took his place at the piano. So it went in the big piano-playing marathon at Trinity College.

The first pianist was James S. Hiatt, a junior from Bethlehem, Pa.

In all, six other students were ready to help out by playing for periods ranging from 30 minutes to as long as three hours in the nonstop, 12-hour recital.

Dr. Clarence Barber, the professor behind the marathon, said he didn't know for sure whether the continuous 12 hours on the same, shiny piano will be a world record—"but it will be a collegiate record anyway."

Hiatt, who played the first and third hours, concentrated on his favorite music—Gershwin tunes. In between, William R. Carlson, a sophomore from West Hartford, offered excerpts from a few concertos.

Barber, an associate professor of music, suggested the piano marathon as a substitute for campus hijinks, such as panty-raiding or cramming telephone booths.

Trinity's Seabury Hall was well filled with some 75 students, their girls and parents when Hiatt struck the first note.

A college nurse also was on a standby alert—"just in case anybody got fingeritis," she said, with a smile.

PLANE DETRACTS VOWS

Skimpily Clad Pair Marry Under Palms

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) —A shapely brunette who wore only a veil and a 23-year-old sailor clad only in a suntan were married Saturday under the palms.

None of the 200 or so guests, also nude, got to kiss the bride.

The simple civil ceremony was conducted in the sunshine with no more excitement than accompanies any wedding, except for butterflies felt by the handful of reporters who undressed in public to witness the event.

The only untoward moment was when the bride's father got literally up in arms about a low-flying plane and its ogling occupants before the wedding. He hauled out a rifle and waved it menacingly until the plane flew away.

Besides the veil, which hung to a strategic length down her back, the bride, Sissy Dawson, 16, also wore high-heeled white patent leather pumps. A Star of David hung on a silver chain from her neck.

The groom, Charles Morrow, a sailor stationed with the U.S. Navy at Key West and a nudist since he was 14, stood at the foot of the steps leading to a nearby swimming pool as his bride walked about 25 feet to the open-air altar, decorated with red gladiolus and yellow mums.

A murmur rant through the audience.

The best man, an octogenarian known only as Uncle Dick, held the ring in his hand, having no pockets. The ceremony was performed by a lawyer. He was the only one clothed. Most of the guests stood.

After the wedding, Sissy slipped into a white lace dress and the couple left for a honeymoon at Miami Beach.

They met here about two years ago. Sissy's mother said, "It was love at first sight."

They courted during his leaves. Her father runs the nudist camp, which is about 15 miles south of Palm Beach.

Reporters were invited, but only if they attended in couples —"It keeps down trouble," said Dawson—and wore no clothes.

Mrs. Dawson agreed that the ceremony went off with a minimum of trouble.

"It was a very normal wedding," she said.

Police Probe Burglaries, Thefts Here

Twin Cities police made several arrests for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and were investigating several thefts and burglaries late Friday and Saturday.

Henry Carroll, principal at Carroll High School, reported to police about 11 a.m. Saturday that the school has been burglarized sometime Friday night or Saturday morning.

Police said the building was entered through an open window leading into the auditorium. The burglar or burglars then went to the principal's office and opened the door by breaking the glass panel.

Carroll reported that all the office desks were pilfered and $3.10 was missing.

Police also found a door open at Lincoln Elementary School on Renwick Road in Monroe at 3:15 a.m. Saturday. Investigation showed that the principal's office had been ransacked, one soft drink machine broken open and an attempt made to break open another machine.

According to the report, three silver dollars were taken from the office and a small amount of money from the drink machine.

Mrs. Percy Savage of 706 Eason Place reported that her purse was taken from a grocery cart while she was shopping at a food store on Forsythe Ave. about 11:50 a.m. Saturday. She told police that she noticed the purse was missing after she turned from the cart to pick up an item.

Mrs. Savage told police that about $30 and several credit cards were in the purse.

Police also reported that Joseph Brown, 31, Negro, of 1100 Louise Anne St., was booked for theft in connection with several bottles of liquor taken at the Town House Bar and Cafe on DeSiard St. at about 11:55 p.m. Friday. He was apprehended at the home address. Brown also had been booked on charges of disturbing the peace at 7:40 p.m. Friday.

Monroe police booked Prentis Glass, a 37-year-old Negro of 3815 Segrest Mercy St., on DWI at 4:35 a.m. Saturday in the 1200 block of Powell Street. Glass also was charged with speeding and reckless driving. Bond was set at $500.

West Monroe police booked the following four persons on charges of DWI Saturday:

Lane Carter, 18, Negro, of Calhoun, at 2:30 a.m. on Reagan Street who was also charged with not having a driver's license.

Ervin L. Besant, 33, Negro, P. O. Box 883, West Monroe, at 2:45 a.m. on Montgomery 2:45 a.m. on Montgomery Street.

William J. Johnston, 29, of Rt. 2, Choudrant, at 3:45 a.m. at Cypress St. and Thomas Rd.

Sam McGuire, 39, Negro, of Rt. 1, Chatham, at 4:30 a.m. on Coleman Street.

Monroe police arrested Mary Lee Robinson, 37, Negro, of 507 No. 12th St., on charges of aggravated battery at 8 p.m. Saturday at the home address. The incident involved a 16-year-old Negro youth.

Also booked by Monroe police Ray M. Hill, 23, of 201 Plum at 7:55 p.m. Saturday was Ray M. Hill, 23, of 201 Plum St. on charges of DWI, reckless driving and not having a driver's license. The arrest was made at S. Second and Plum Sts. Bond was set at $500.

New Hoffa Trial Starts Monday For Conspiracy

CHICAGO (UPI) — The government Monday will begin presenting the case that prosecutors hope will send Teamsters union President James R. Hoffa and seven associates to prison for an alleged $20 million fraud conspiracy.

Abraham Poretz, special assistant attorney general and head of a five-man prosecution battery, was scheduled to make the government's opening statement after two more alternate jurors were selected.

Hoffa's lawyer, Maurice J. Walsh, and probably attorneys for other defendants were expected to follow with statements. The prosecution, late Monday or early Tuesday, will launch into the introduction of evidence.

Twelve jurors and two of the four alternates who will sit through the anticipated marathon trial — U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin warned it would probably last four or five months — already were locked up for the duration.

Golden Spike Commemorates Anniversary

PROMONTORY, Utah (AP)—A golden spike was driven Saturday on a northern Utah hilltop, marking the 95th anniversary of the linking of America's two coasts by railroad.

A crowd estimated at 3,000 attended the ceremony at Promontory Point, where the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads were joined in 1869 with the original golden spike driven by Leland Stanford, governor of California and president of the Central Pacific.

The son of the telegrapher who flashed the word "done" to President Ulysses S. Grant in 1869 repeated his father's message Saturday. He is Frank L. Davis, 86, of Tremonton, Utah.

The original spike driven by Stanford is now the property of the California university that bears his name. It was specially made for the occasion from 23 melted-down $20 gold pieces.

Storm System Leaves 9 Dead In New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A storm system that spawned deadly tornadoes in Michigan moved eastward Saturday, bringing gale force winds to much of Western New York.

At least nine persons were killed, hundreds injured and more hundreds left homeless in the wake of two tornadoes that hit an area northeast of Detroit on Friday.

Even as the massive cleanup operation went ahead in Michigan, the cold front that caused havoc over much of the Midwest moved across the Great Lakes into Upper New, York State.

Winds up to 65 miles per hour toppled trees and power lines and blew over house trailers being towed on the New York State Thruway.

It was practically calm in the Albany area, but at Watertown winds uprooted trees.

The Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for much of New England.

Thunderstorms, some severe, developed elsewhere along the cold front which stretched from southeast Ontario to Texas.

Unseasonably cold weather blanketed much of the West. A reading of 35 degrees at Roswell, N.M., tied the low for the date Saturday.

SCOUT ADVENTURE-RAMA

Pinewood Derby Winners Named

Two Ouachita youths and one from Richland Parish claimed top places in the Pinewood Derby Saturday when nearly 2,000 Boy Scouts from 15 parishes gathered at the Ouachita Valley Fairgrounds for the annual scouting "Adventure-Rama."

Two Monroe and one West Monroe troop garnered top spots in Booth competition at the West Monroe fairgrounds, defeating more than 85 other units from the Council's seven districts entered.

Winners of the miniature car racing finals of the Pinewood Derby which included 12-man competition were Russel Ray, first place, of Cub Scout Pack 29; Monroe; Jerry Gandy, second, Pack 125 of Mangham; and Andy Childress, of Pack 67, Sterlington. Ray was sponsored by the Men's Club of Temple B'Nai Israel; Gandy by the Mangham Methodist Church; and Childress by the Sterlington Bank.

The booth display winners include Troop 32, of Monroe, sponsored by the Monroe Lions Club, first place; Troop Seven, of Monroe, sponsored by the St. Methodist Church, second place; and Troop 129, of West Monroe, sponsored by the West Monroe Boys Club, third.

The booths, on public display, offered virtually every phase of scouting activities. Each was prepared unassisted by members of individual Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer Scout units and was staffed by unit members.

Ouachita Valley Council Scout Executive Jack E. Pankey said more than 5,000 persons turned to witness exhibits and demonstrations Saturday afternoon. He said special entertainment was provided through the miniature car racing and an Indian dance demonstration.

The Pinewood Derby trophies were presented, along with the Booth plaques and participation ribbons, in special ceremonies at 7:15 p.m. Each unit from the 15 parishes which participated in the event was presented with a yellow participation ribbon. Parishes represented at the annual event include Ouachita, Union, Lincoln, Winn, Jackson, Morehouse, Caldwell, Franklin, Catahoula, Concordia, Tensas, Madison, Richland, East Carroll and West Carroll.

GRANTS TO DRAMATISTS

BILLY HARGISS

Southside Man Found Guilty

Billy Hargiss, 36, of 915 South 3rd, was found guilty today by a panel of what he said was "extremely partial citizens."

Hargiss, who has lived in south Monroe for 22 years, was found guilty of being well qualified to serve on the Monroe School Board by a unanimous decision of a panel consisting of Dennis Hargiss, Brian Hargiss, Timmy Hargiss, Angelyn Hargiss, Donna Hargiss, Bucky Hargiss, and Mrs. Billy Hargiss, the former Angie Marie Rizzo. Mickey Hargiss, the candidates 17 year old brother served as moderator of the panel.

If convicted on May 16th by a majority of the citizens of Monroe, Hargiss will be sentenced to four years of hard labor working for the betterment of education in Monroe.

Hargiss, son of the late Billie L. Hargiss and Mrs. Donnis Hargiss of 2202 Gordon Ave., asked that his grandmother Mrs. J. A. Hayes of 211 Apple serve as chief counsel in pleading his case. He issued the following statement.

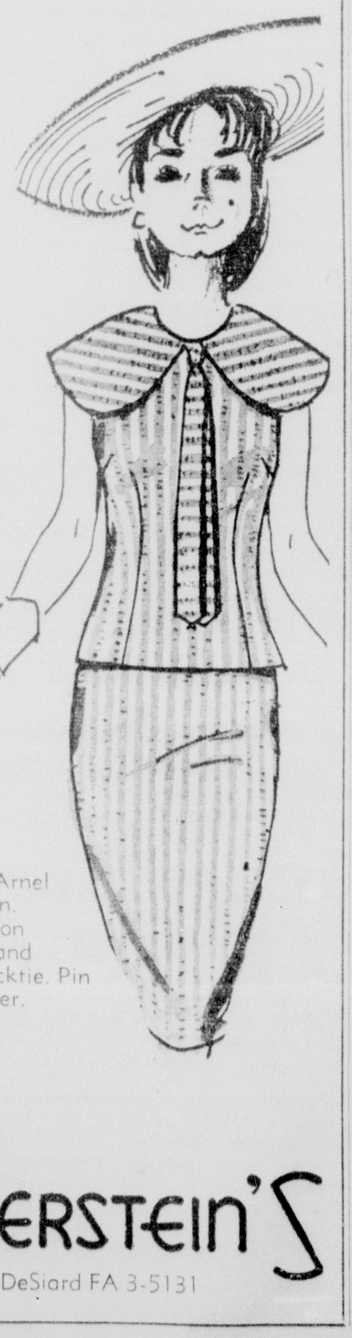

"I believe in children. . .they are the most important individuals in the family of education and the promise of a better tomorrow for everyone. If I am convicted of being qualified to serve on our City School Board on Saturday, May 16th, I will work as hard as I know how to make our educational system better and more effective."

Hargiss, an independent candidate with an open mind, pointed out that all decisions made by him, if elected, would be based on "what's best for the child".

Judge Notarizes Marriage Pact Of Whose Boss

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A Pennsylvania couple was married in suburban Towson after agreeing in writing that the husband would be the boss in the family.

The three-page, notarized premarital agreement was executed by William T. Metzger, 35, Camp Hill, Pa., and Theresa S. Balough, 35, Harrisburg, Pa., and filed with the Baltimore County Circuit Court clerk last week.

The wife pledged to "love, honor and obey" the husband in the dominant role of directing major decisions affecting the family welfare.

"In event of conflict," the agreement said, "such differences are to be discussed for their logical and emotional implications and solutions reached and acted upon with final authority with the husband."

The bridge agreed to assume responsibilities of "cooking washing, sewing and other areas tending to contribute to a happy home life." The husband agreed to help when necessary and "the acts of earning an income will so permit."

National Real Estate Boards Envoy To Visit

John J. Cronin, regional representative of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will be in the Twin Cities Tuesday for meetings with local realtors and other businessmen.

He will meet with officers of the Monroe-West Monroe Real Estate Board and speak at a meeting of the board at 7:30 p.m at the Paragon Club.

Cronin works out of the Association's national headquarters in Chicago.

Before taking his present job, he was a real estate negotiator for an oil company and has served on the Maryland Council of Retail Merchants as executive secretary. He also served on the Legislative Committee of the National Association of Retail Merchants.

Cronin's visit was announced by J. W. Webster Jr., president of the local Real Estate Board.

Caller Favors Turquoise Tops To Candidates

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., almost got a campaign contribution of $1,500 but lost out to a turquoise desk.

Brewster is standing in for President Johnson in Maryland's Democratic presidential preference primary May 19 against Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

The telephone rang Friday at his campaign headquarters. Richard Byrd, an aide, picked it up and heard a man announce he had a check made out for $1,582.25.

"I thought that was rather an odd sum of money for a campaign contribution," said Byrd.

"But I was polite, and we kept on talking. After a while, it seemed that we were talking about two different things.

"And, finally, he said he'd rather have the desk tops in turquoise than beige. They had the lines crossed with an office supply company."

But Byrd said the call may not have been a complete loss. "I gave him a quick plug for Brewster, and he told me he'd vote for him."

River Unblocked

MOSCOW (AP)—The Zeravshan River has begun to flow again past the shimmering blue mosques and fabled walls of Samarkand, the ancient capital of a Mongol empire.

The first trickle reached the city in Soviet Central Asia from the channel opened Wednesday through a landslide that blocked the river April 24, 100 miles upstream.

Rockefeller's Efforts Yield Few Results

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller has sown enormous amounts of seed — in the form of time, effort and money —in trying to win the Republican nomination for president.

The New York governor's harvest has been disappointing thus far by any measure—pledged delegates, encouraging results of primaries, help from national leaders, strength among local leaders or rank-and-file support voiced in unofficial public opinion polls.

But Rockefeller keeps up a grueling, intensive campaign.

He flew back from Oregon Friday night and will return there tonight for a final four-day campaign before that state's primary on Friday.

Next week, he will be in California again, fighting for votes in that state's primary June 2.

The big question is: Why does he continue?

Observers on the sidelines are becoming increasingly hard put to explain the Rockefeller activity. Few attribute it to any realistic prospect that he will win the nomination.

There has been speculation his actual goal is to lock the nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. The senator has been described by Rockefeller as an extremist, a man advocating highly irresponsible ideas.

Nomination of Goldwater, Rockefeller has said, could cost the Republican party the election this year and could wreck the party.

This helps growth of the theory that Rockefeller's sole mission is to head off Goldwater in what he considers a service to his party.

Rockefeller rejects this suggestion. "I'm in this to win," he says repeatedly, "I'm going to fight all the way."

The advisors and strategists around the governor insist this is not just window-dressing, that the prospect of a Rockefeller victory is not as remote as it might appear.

Against the background of defeats and discouragements, they explain the situation this way:

—The boom for Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge that began with his surprise upset victory in New Hampshire has reached its peak and will subside. A major campaign issue for the GOP will be the handling of the South Viet Nam situation, and the nomination of Lodge, who has represented the Democratic administration there, would neutralize that key argument.

—Rockefeller will do well in Oregon, despite current polls showing Lodge has a long lead. The governor may even win there, because he has conducted the most extensive campaign in the state.

—Rockefeller will win the California primary with the help of moderate voters who might not prefer him at the moment but want to oppose Goldwater as too far to the right. Rockefeller and Goldwater are the only contestants on that state's primary ballot. Write-ins are banned.

KENNEDY ROUND

Free World Trade Boon To Business

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)— President Kennedy's dream of freer world trade won't get you any big bargains in Scotch whiskey or Paris gowns even if the present tariff talks here—called the Kennedy Round—succeed.

High retail prices may hesitate a bit before they go even higher. Some manufacturers and importers will make bigger profits. Supplies and equipment and industry should get somewhat cheaper.

Many businessmen — but not the average consumer—will find the Kennedy Round a big boon.

Some Americans will lose their jobs because the firms that employ them won't be able to compete with cheaper foreign goods. The U. S. Government says even more Americans will get new jobs making goods for export.

In 1966 or 1967, if all goes well, the $4,000 European sports car you've been saving for could have almost $200 knocked off the price. More likely, the manufacturer's price will have risen by that time and he will divide the extra gravy with the dealer.

Europeans who want American cars could save up to 11 per cent. Or the benefits may go to the businessmen there too.

These are the most likely results of a 50 per cent cut in tariffs, aim of the long international dickering that formally opened in Geneva this week.

The reductions could apply to thousands of items, from American whiskey to Zanzibar cloves. But the world trend of prices is steadily upward and businessmen like to take a better profit when they can. So often a tariff reduction only holds back a price increase instead rather than ringing a price reduction.

There are items on which American shoppers may be able to make considerable savings by purchasing foreign goods — for example, Italian shoes, men's suits from Hong Kong and the cheaper kind of Swiss watches. These are, naturally, items on which American businessmen and labor unions put the most pressure to keep the protective tariff high. They want to preserve their own markets and jobs.

If the Kennedy Round succeeds alert businessmen everywhere — including the United States—will be able to increase their sales to foreign countries. Importers will find new bargains for themselves even if they do not always pass them on to the consumers. At least the shopper will see new and interesting foreign wares on the shelves.

American manufacturers with high costs will lose some of their home market unless they find new ways to meet the lower prices of foreign goods. High cost manufacturers in other countries will suffer in just the same way.

An exception will be made for the poorer countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. A hairpin manufacturer in Ghana will be able to sell his product more cheaply in the United States, but Ghanaian girls won't be able to buy American hairpins any cheaper.

The purpose is to strengthen industry and make more jobs in the undeveloped countries by giving businessmen there special tariff protection in their home markets.

American farmers also stand to profit from the Kennedy Round, if it goes through. The United States wants to make worldwide agreements that would protect the American farmer's markets in foreign countries, especially Western Europe, and keep prices on an even keel. Grains and meat will be the first items tackled, with dairy products following close behind.

Jackson Parish Youth Dies Of Gunshot Wound

JONESBORO (Special) — Jerry Ross Burson, 18-year-old Jonesboro youth, died enroute to the Jackson Parish hospital Saturday night from a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

Circumstances surrounding the shooting were not known late Saturday night, according to acting Coroner Dr. George E. Gibbons of Jonesboro. He said it had not been decided late Saturday whether an inquest into the shooting will be held.

The youth was dead on arrival at the hospital. The shooting reportedly occurred at the boy's home shortly before 8 p.m. Saturday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burson, of Jonesboro. The youth attended Jonesboro Hodge High and was an employee of Shell Oil Company here.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete but will be under the direction of Edmonds Funeral Home of Jonesboro.

Other survivors include his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bridges, Quitman; and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ermon Jordan, Bienville.

NO BIBLICAL SCHOLAR

LBJ's Bible Terms Learned In Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — Biblical allusions and quotations appear frequently in President Johnson's speeches.

Yet associates say he does not regard himself as a Bible scholar, but rather a person who has acquired a working knowledge of it over years of frequent but irregular reading and from regular attendance at church services.

Johnson himself says he is not a theologian and not a philosopher.

"But in more than three decades in public life, I have seen at first hand how basic spiritual values can shatter barriers of politics and bigotry," he told Baptist leaders at the White House March 25.

More often than not, Johnson's biblical quotations and allusions come from the Old Testament—often the prophet Isaiah.

The Golden Rule—"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you"—is quoted often.

Another favorite of the President's is, "Let us work together so that one day we may hear the benediction, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant'."

Some say Johnson at times takes poetic license to make a point, but without changing the sense of a biblical quotation.

A member of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Johnson points out that his heritage is heavily weighed with Baptist influence.

His great-grandfather on his mother's side, George Washington Baines Sr., preached across the South from Alabama into Arkansas, Lousiana and finally into Texas where he became Sam Houston's preacher. He also became president of Baylor University, a Baptist school.

On separation of church and state, Johnson has said this "does not mean the divorce of spiritual values from secular affairs."

Again on spiritual values: "Spiritual beliefs and actions must be the strongest weapons in our arsenal."

"The faith of our fathers, the faith of men like George Baines, may become the folly of their children if individually we fail to see God face to face," he told the Baptist leaders. "No man knows that better than I do."

Ellender Raps Efforts To Halt Prayer Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D.-La., said Saturday efforts to provide for prayers in schools through a constitutional amendment could lead to "a whirlwind of religious strife."

"To my mind," he said in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana, "it is a very dangerous undertaking. We may well wake up in some future years to find outselves reaping a whirlwind of religious strife and discord."

Discussing the proposed Becker resolution to amend the constitution, Ellender said, "we must be extremely careful when we begin tampering with the meaning of language of the first amendment."

Once the introduction of prayers and religious exercises into schools is given formal government sanction, he said, "It is not difficult to imagine a situation arising whereby all the religious groups in a community would begin vying with one another for the privilege of writing the prayer or selecting the exercises to be followed by the children."

This ultimately would lead to federal intervention, he said, and if this happened the prohibition against a state religion contained in the first amendment would be more or less nullified.

The Becker amendment was offered after two Supreme Court rulings, the first prohibiting the use of an official prayer in schools, the second prohibiting the voluntary recital of the Lord's Prayer in schools.

Ellender said he agrees with the first ruling since he believes that governmental authorities have no legal right to compose prayers to be repeated by young children in school.

TO BOX OFFICE

NEW YORK (AP) — Off-Broadway's oldest theater, the Gramercy Arts, is making its 50th anniversary.

The playhouse, at Lexington Avenue and 27th Street, opened as the Bramhall in a building previously used by a fraternal society, two religious groups and a spiritualist organization. For 34 years the only box office was a collection plate. Regular ticket rates were established in 1959 when the house was refurbished and dropped its experimental performance pattern in favor of professional Equity presentations.

GOSPEL SOLOIST

Singer's Recording Found In Wreckage

CONCORD, Calif. (AP)—The cracked record, prominently displaying a cross, bears the title song, "There's a Valley."

It lists the singer as Polly Johnson, soloist.

The nationally known 24-year-old gospel singer from Lodi, Calif. was among 44 people who died Thursday in the crash of a Pacific Air Lines plane. Investigation now shows it probably was caused by a gunman shooting the pilot.

The cracked record is among bits of wreckage suggesting the variety of the passengers.

As a state militia officer, Lt. Leroy Emby, looked at the record and noted another song, "Let Jesus Come into My Heart," he voiced the thought:

"She deserved something better. They all deserved something better than this."

There were silver dollars scattered about—mementoes of those who went to Reno to gamble. Some who went found gambling irresistible but kept their penchant for it to themselves.

One was Frank Gonzales, 27, a San Francisco department store warehouseman.

"Frank kept to himself," said his brother James in San Francisco.

"He had made a few trips to Reno before but always by car."

Frank Gonzales had adopted San Francisco as his home in 1960 on his way back from Naples where he had represented his native Philippines in the Olympic yachting races.

Interests of the plane's passengers ran in many directions.

Donald T. Kendrick, 36, boarded the plane at Stockton with his wife, Norma, 36, and their two sons, Richard, 3½ and Douglas, 1. Mrs. Kendrick's mother in Philadelphia had never seen the children or her son-in-law. So they were on their way.

Oldest man aboard was the Rev. Lon Eakes, 88, of Stockton, a retired Presbyterian minister. He as the oldest living alumnus of Emory University and was on his way to be honored at a reunion in Atlanta.

While investigators moved around the debris of the roped-off area, meadow larks sang.

The investigators had troubles from other than curious people.

Said Col. Bill Rayber of the state militia:

"We're going to have to rope off some more area to keep the cows from wandering here."

Warren Probe To End Query During Summer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said Saturday the Warren Commission undoubtedly will complete its investigation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy before the summer is over.

Cooper and two other members of the commission came to Dallas for an on-the-scene inspection of the assassination and subsequent events last November. He was accompanied by Allen Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and New York attorney John J. McCloy.

"Our visit to the various sites have given us a more clear and realistic picture of what took place and it has cleared up some speculation for us," Cooper said. "All in all, the trip has been very helpful."

The Kentucky senator said the commission intends to polish off its work by running down all the various rumors connected with the assassination and the subsequent shooting of the accused assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, by Dallas night club operator Jack Ruby.

"We've taken thousands upon thousands of pages of testimony from some 50 witnesses and we're reviewed the reports from various governmental and law enforcement agencies and information upon which the reports were based," Cooper said.

Madame Nhu Blames U.S. For Execution

PARIS (AP)—Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu said Saturday she blames the death of her executed brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Can, on the United States, which she called an "enemy camouflaged as allies and friends."

In an 850-word "message to the American people" handed through a crack in the door to the newsmen, Mrs. Nhu said Can, executed Saturday in Saigon, "would not allow himself to be second to his brothers in accepting in all serenity the same fate as the Christ to whom the Ngos had dedicated their lives lin serving their country according to the high principles of morality He taught."

After an attack against the United States and praise for her late brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Diem, the statement concluded:

Vietnamese Execute Diem Despite Pleas

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Vietnamese blindfolded Ngo Dinh Can with a black silk scarf Saturday, strapped him to a post in a prison soccer field and executed him with a volley from a 10-man firing squad. The squad used U.S.-made M12 carbines.

American appeals for clemency failed to save the diabetic, 53-year-old younger brother of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem. Can was the last important member of that Mandarin family in Viet Nam.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declined comment on the execution.

Two hundred persons — officials and newsmen—witnessed the carrying out of the death sentence imposed on Can April 22 by a nine-man revolutionary court that convicted him on charges of murder, extortion and misuse of power as a former overlord of Central Viet Nam.

Can's body crumpled and hung limply at the impact of the bullets. Blood spilled across his black coat and white silk pantaloons before the coup de grace—a final shot in the head—was carried out by an officer. The time was 6:22 p.m., an hour and 22 minutes behind the schedule set by Premier Gen. Nguyen Khanh's government.

About five hours earlier the chief of Can's secret police, Phan Quang Dong, was executed by a firing squad in a stadium at Hue, Can's old stronghold 400 miles north of Saigon. Dong, 36, had been sentenced March 28 on charges similar to those against Can. A silent crowd of 8,000 watched.

Can, like other members of the once powerful family, was a Roman Catholic. An official of Saigon's Chi Hoa Prison said Can received last rites in his third floor cell, where he had a wooden crucifix. Two priests accompanied him to the execution.

The victim of a recent heart attack as well as diabetes, Can was reported to have paled and stiffened in his cell when he was notified he had less than an hour to live. But a military spokesman said he responded, after a few moments of silence: "I accept that."

Prison guards bore him on a stretcher to the field, then lifted him up and half-carried him across the muddy grass to the execution post. The priests walked beside him and one, in a white pith helmet and white cloak over his black robes, talked with Can as he was strapped to the post and blindfolded.

Can requested that the blindfold be removed but this was refused, said a spokesman for the ruling military junta.

"Can told the priest, 'I forgive all my enemies,'" the spokesman said.

"Can asked the priest to pray for his forgiveness. He also asked the Vietnamese people to forget him and not talk about him anymore."

Resting on their arms 30 feet away was the firing squad, 10 Vietnamese military policemen in khaki uniforms and red, white and black crash helmets.

Can stood lashed to the post, with wind billowing his white pantaloons, as the commander barked out the orders that brought the squad into firing positions, with five men kneeling and five erect. The volley was ragged, but effective.

In the tradition of such affairs, the commander of the squad strode up and delivered the coup de grace, a bullet through the head.

Court sources said Can was originally condemned to die on the guillotine, but the revolutionary tribunal which sentenced him finally decided he should be shot.

Under old Vietnamese customs, prisoners sentenced to death were executed by one of three ways, by beheading, garroting or trampling by elephants.

Oregon Papers Throw Support To Rockefeller

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller picked up editorial support Saturday from Eugene and Salem in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

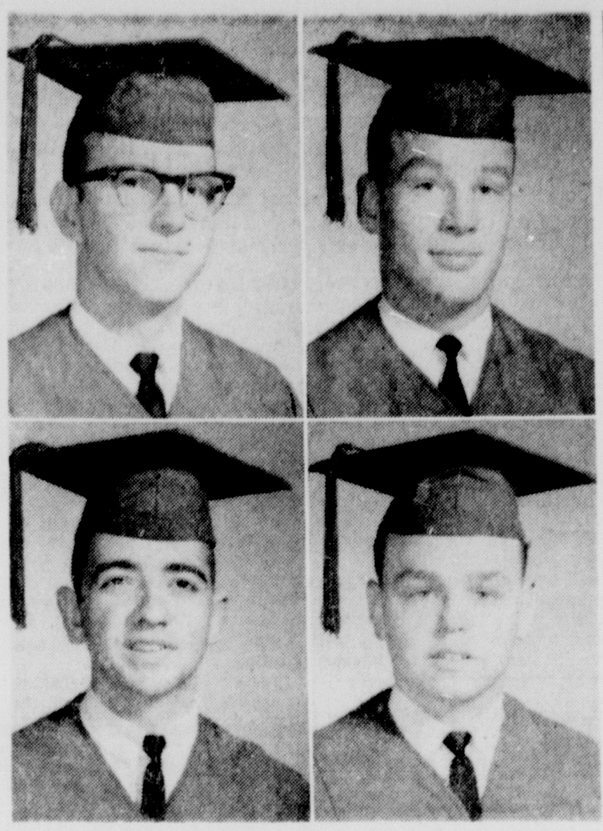

The Eugene Register-Guard in its Sunday edition said Rockefeller's experience in the New York governorship and in the State Department had made him the choice for executive background and for the handling of foreign affairs.

The Register-Guard, which describes itself as independent, has 43,158 circulation, largest in the state outside Portland.

Another endorsement for Rockefeller came in Saturday morning's Salem Statesman—circulation 28,203 — where Charles A. Sprague, publisher and former Republican governor of Oregon, said in his column he intends to vote for Rockefeller in next Friday's primary.

Sprague advised Republicans to do likewise or to vote for Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater if they want a conservative. Any other choice, he said, would leave the party "without a grass roots signboard of the direction in which to travel."

Rockefeller spoke Friday in both Salem and Eugene.

DUBACH HIGH SCHOOL honor graduates are, from left, top, Claude Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gene Colvin; Bobby Driggers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde J. Driggers, and below, Bruce Waller, son of Mrs. Lorena Waller, all co-valedictorians, and Joe Pilgreen, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Pilgreen, salutatorian. Commencement exercises will be held 8 p.m. May 25 at the Dubach High School auditorium, according to M. O. Colvin, principal.

THAT'S LOT OF ASPIRIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The U. S. government is perhaps the biggest customer for aspirin.

The Defense Medical Supply Center reports buying 263,784,200 tablets, mostly for military use, in the fiscal year ended last June 30. The Veterans Administration acquired 25,150,000, the U.S. Public Health Service another 14,346,400, for a grand total of 303,280,600 for the three federal agencies.

They went for treating headaches, backaches, footaches and rheumatoid arthritis and other inflammatory conditions.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SALLY

Wallace Asks Firm Stand In Viet Nam

BALTIMORE (AP)—In a rare sally into foreign affairs, Gov. George C. Wallace Jr. called Saturday for a "firm stand in Viet Nam," then flew home to Alabama for a brief rest from his Maryland Democratic presidential campaign.

About 1,100 turned out to hear the Alabama governor address the Johns Hopkins University Young Democrats.

The yfrequently applauded his standard attack on the civil rights bill being debated in the Senate, occasionally laughed at his denials of any meaningful racial discrimination among successful Alabama politicians, and once hissed him extensively.

Newsmen who had covered his presidential primary campaigns in Wisconsin and Indiana said the Johns Hopkins audience was the most courteous of any university group he had addressed.

Shortly after Wallace's departure for a one-day visit to Alabama, Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, the favorite son opposing him in the May 19 primary, told another Democratic audience that Wallace was "trying to pirate your votes by day, and your jobs by night."

In a speech at Salisbury, on the Eastern Shore of Chesapeake Bay, Brewster said Wallace was really running in presidential primaries in an effort to "lure more industry to Alabama."

Wallace called for a firm stand in Viet Nam in response to a question submitted from the audience after his 30-minute speech.

He also said U. S. servicemen in that embattled Southeast Asia nation "ought to have the best equipment." He said B26 bombers like those he flew in World War II are not good enough for use by American forces charged with the Viet Nam mission.

Throughout his criticism of the civil rights bill, Wallace expressed objection to provisions which he said would substitute federal control for the rights of individual businessmen to choose their customers and the rights of states to decide whether they should ban racial discrimination in employment and education.

The loudest applause came when he was asked why no Negro was among a group of men he had introduced to the audience as ethnic minority leaders who had come from Alabama to demonstrate their support of him.

Wallace replied he had the support of many Negroes back home but did not ask any to come to Baltimore because the activities of "some groups" posed a possible danger to their safety. He did not identify the groups.

The hissing followed his reply to a question about Alabama's law outlawing interracial marriages. He was asked whether this restriction on an individual's right to choose a marriage partner did not conflict with his belief on individual rights in general.

Wallace said he thinks that in some cases there should be "reasonable restrictions" on individual rights.

"Actually, I do not believe in interracial marriages," he said.

Navy Sets Sights On New Carrier

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has set its sights on a new type aircraft carrier that will be nuclear powered but smaller and less costly than the mammoth flattops built in recent years.

Two key factors — increasing efficiency of nuclear power plants and changes in the Navy's war role—seem to favor the effort to reverse the trend toward ever bigger and more expensive ships.

Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, the atomic power authority, has been telling Congress for months about significant advances in the efficiency of nuclear propulsion. He contended it was "folly" to start a new aircraft carrier with conventional power, but the Navy had to do so with its latest flattop on orders of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. The Navy's aircraft carriers no longer will be assigned strategic targets in the Soviet Union if war comes. That job will be taken over completely by Air Force missiles and bombers and Navy Polaris missiles.

No Third Trial Scheduled For Byron Beckwith

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Byron De La Beckwith, whose two trials for the slaying of a Negro integration leader ended with hung juries, will not be tried a third time, The Times-Picayune said in its Sunday editions.

Beckwith, 43, an outspoken Greenwood, Miss., segregation leader, was accused of being the sniper slayer of Medgar Evers, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

ARRIVES IN AFRICA

Egyptians Receive Red Chief Warmly

CAIRO, Eygpt (AP) — Premier Khrushchev arrived in Africa Saturday and received the warmest reception of any visitor in Egypt's recent history. Crowds surged through police lines and veiled Arab women squealed with joy.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser escorted the Soviet leader in triumph through the ancient port of Alexandria, villages of the lush Nile delta region and into Cairo.

Egyptians swarming along the route cheered Khrushchev and Nasser with enthusiasm that sometimes approached delirium.

Khrushchev, looking tanned and fit, beamed with obvious pleasure amid the tumult. The uproarious welcome contrasted sharply with the cool reception accorded Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai last December.

The demonstration, being carefully watched by the young African states, was certain to have far reaching effects in the Moscow-Peking contest for influence in Africa.

Khrushchev, here on a 17-day visit, disembarked from his luxury liner, the Armenia, at Alexandria.

As the gleaming white ship docked, other vessels shrieked welcoming blasts on their horns, Soviet-built MIG19 jet fighters roared overhead and cannon boomed a 21-gun salute.

The two leaders embraced after Khrushchev strode down the gangplank. They appeared arm-in-arm before a roaring crowd in the square before the ship terminal.

Nasser lauded the Soviet leader as "a courageous fighter who has fought all his life for his views and principles" and as "a noble friend who during our most difficult moments took the stand of a true and faithful friend."

The Arab leader spoke in glowing terms of Khrushchev's "struggle for peace" — sentiments almost certain to fall harshly on Communist Chinese ears.

In his reply, Khrushchev applauded Nasser's policies in Africa. He called them anti-imperialist.

Security precautions for Khrushchev's visit, touted in advance as the tightest ever seen in Egypt, practically collapsed as crowds surged through military police cordons for a closer look.

The mob scenes were repeated in Cairo as Khrushchev's motorcade made its way through the city to the Kubbah Palace, luxury-loving former King Farouk's winter residence.

Khrushchev is accompanied by his wife Nina, their son Sergei, daughter Rada and her husband Alexei Adzhubei, chief editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

Nasser and Khrushchev are to participate in ceremonies marking completion of the first stage of the Aswan High Dam project to which Russia has committed $400 million.

State Boost Of Economy Prime Goal

and Taylor O'Hearn of Caddo Parish will join the house as Republicans.

Major McKeithen legislation at the start is expected to consist of a code of ethics bill, an expanded investment of idle state funds, a central inventory of state property and equipment, a better system of listing unclassified state employes, equalization within each parish of industrial property assessments compared with other property, a natural gas severance tax rebate of one per cent of the state's 2.3 cent tax per 1,000 cubic feet to benefit Louisiana manufacturing plants and renewal of the natural gas severance levy.

Other major legislative proposals:

Sen. Dudley LeBlanc's three-part package for the teachers' to boost school bus drivers and other school personnel.

Proposals by both LeBlanc and Sen.-elect Willard Rambo for $100 maximum monthly old age payments. Rambo wants a one-cent sales tax raise for this purpose, if necessary.

Two Aldermen Re-Elected In Ferriday Voting

FERRIDAY (Special) — Two incumbent aldermen were re-elected while two new faces claimed seats on the board in Ferriday's close second primary election Saturday.

Leading the field with 573 votes was Guy Serio, incumbent, followed closely by newcomer Glen Ratcliff who tallied 505 votes. Incumbent E. E. Wallace was re-elected to another term with 466 votes, while the fourth vacancy will be filled by Raymond Galloway, with a 460 count.

Defeated in the second primary election for the four aldermen seats were incumbent J. W. Greathouse, 457 votes; incumbent Jack Harp, 362 votes; Ben L. Green Sr., 406; and H. O. Bagbey, 240.

Mayor L. W. (Woody) Davis was unopposed in the first primary held March 16, and James C. (Red) McNew was elected to the board of aldermen when he received a majority in the first primary.

Mayor Davis said the polls were open the usual 6 a. m. to 8 p. m. hours, and a good turnout of voters resulted. The men will take office in July.

Official returns will be promulgated by the Democratic Executive committee Tuesday.

STORMY CAMPAIGNERS

Panama Slates Vote For New President

PANAMA (AP)—Panama will elect its 15th constitutional president Sunday after a stormy election campaign in which the dispute with the United States over the canal seemed to fade as an issue.

Although the canal controversy had been expected to rouse passions to fever height, the campaign was fought mostly on pocketbook and personal issues.

Nevertheless, U.S. authorities had special security measures in force in the Canal Zone just in case.

Favored to win was Arnulfo Arias who has already been deposed from the presidency twice previously.

Arias, 63 faces his stiffest competition from Marco A. Robles, 58, an ex-banker, backed by the government coalition of outgoing President Roberto Chiari. Among four other candidates Juan de Arco Galindo, 53, is given the only chance of staging a long-shot upset.

Arias is Harvard trained, and Galindo is an engineer trained at Georgia Tech.

Arias was deposed in 1941 for taking a mystery trip to Havana, leaving the country without a president for two days.

At the time he was an outspoken supporter of Nazi Germany. In the current campaign he has been attacked for being pro-American.

His second ouster came in 1951 during another term after he dissolved the National Assembly and threw out the constitution.

In view of the hostile climate in which the election will be conducted, Panama shopkeepers have put up antiriot screens. The 600-man police force in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone was on special weekend duty. Some American families were reported moving from Panama into the zone.

During the voting, travel in Panama will be forbidden, a measure taken against the prospect of party workers transporting voters from one place to another.

Because of other elaborate precautions against vote fraud and the large numbers of candidates also running for 42 assembly seats and for city council seats, it was expected there would be no clear decision likely early Wednesday.

The issue of the Canal Zone and what to do about the treaty that gives the United States control over the canal in perpetuity has become a secondary issue in the presidential campaign, despite last January's rioting that took more than 20 lives.

The issue clearly has been one of personalities with Robles coming on strong in the last week, cutting sharply into Arias' unofficial polls' margin.

U.S. Trying For Soviet U.N. Defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is working hard behind the scenes to engineer a major defeat for the Soviet Union in the United Nations this fall.

The issue is whether Russia and other Communist nations will lose their votes in the General Assembly for refusing to help finance the U. N. peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Middle East.

It is expected to come to a head when the assembly meets in autumn and the secretary general certifies that the Soviet Union is more than two years behind in the U. N. debts.

U. S. policy was outlined in testimony made public this week by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Our purpose is to get them to pay, not to remove their vote," said Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state.

Challenge Expected

He said the Russians are expected to challenge any ruling by the president of the General Assembly that they have lost their vote for failure to pay their share of peacekeeping costs.

"That would go to the floor of the assembly and be settled by a simple majority vote," Cleveland added.

Rep. Frances P. Bolton, top-ranking Republican on the House group, quizzed Cleveland on what the United States is doing to make sure a majority exists.

"We have taken the question up with every country in the free world at government level within the last month," he said.

Cleveland said those nations have been told "that while it would be serious to remove the vote of a major power from the General Assembly, it would be even more serious if the General Assembly starts throwing overboard chunks of the Charter — that this would so erode the public support for the United Nations in the major contributing countries that it would be a whole lot more serious than not having the Russians voting."

However, Cleveland said, if the free world nations stick together through a complex parliamentary situation, "the Soviets can be brought to pay."

A NEW HOME for felines will be dedicated Sunday, May 17, at the Bernstein Park Zoo as part of the Third Annual Zoo Day sponsored by the Monroe Optimist Club. Third Annual Zoo Day Slated May 17

A Children's Zoo at Bernstein Park will be constructed with proceeds from the Third Annual Zoo Day to be held May 17th at the Monroe zoo sponsored by the Monroe Optimist Club.

Chairman Gordon Surguine announced Saturday that the Zoo Day program would consist of several attractions, ranging from the dedication of a new lion house to a hootenanny.

"As has been the case in the past, members of the Optimist Club will take contributions from persons with proceeds going to the construction of a new Children's Zoo," Surguine explained.

The Ouachita Parish High School Band will perform at 2 p.m. on the Zoo Day program while Kit Beecher, zoo director, will present on-the-hour demonstrations with snakes, animals and alligators.

A stage at the zoo has been constructed for Beecher's demonstrations. New animals to be introduced are a 7-month-old hippo and a gibbon ape.

Meantime, a new lion house — official home of the OPHS lion mascot — will be dedicated during the program. OPHS raised funds for the construction of the lion house.

Besides Beecher's demonstrations and band music by the OPHS band, the Zoo Day program will be highlighted at 7 p.m. with a hootenanny, featuring mood singers from the Monroe area.

The Optimist Club has sponsored two Zoo Day programs previously with funds going to the construction of a monkey island, tiger cage and reptile house.

U.S. Hopes To Split Red Bloc By Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoping to widen the cracks in the once-solid Soviet bloc, the United States agreed Saturday to hold economic and political discussions with Communist Romania.

Indicating the significance which U. S. strategists attack to the talks starting in Washington on May 18, the State Department announced a top negotiator, Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, will head the U. S. delegation.

Leading the Romanian team will be Gheorghe Gaston-Marin, vice chairman of Romania's Council of Ministers and chairman of its State Planning Committee.

Expanding U.S. - Romanian trade is to be the main formal discussion topic. The Romanians are especially interested in getting plants to extract products ro moil, such as synthetic rubber and intend to visit some U. S. plants after about two weeks in Washington.

But U. S. - Romanian commerce is generally small, and U. S. diplomats tend to look on the Washington talks in the context of the broader scene. The once-monolithic Communist empire is now troubled by rifts and the United States wants to make the most of them.

Washington moved to help Yugoslavia's independence of the Kremlin after the 1948 Tito-Stalin split and began aiding Poland after Warsaw cooled on the Kremlin in 1956.

Of the remaining East European satellites—Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Albania—Romania has become the most attractive prospect for Washington wooing.

State Department officials see it this way. Romania has objected to the Kremlin scheme for economic integration of the East European Communist lands; it has insisted on developing its own industry; it has refused to take sides in the Sino-Soviet dispute although it favors Moscow's "peaceful coexistence" rather than Peking's militancy; and it has removed some evidence of Soviet influence inside Romania by actions such as abolishing compulsory public school teaching of Russian and by changing the names of certain streets and theaters.

Also the Romanians have been showing an interest in improving relations and trade with the United States.

President Johnson told a news conference in New York on Saturday that the talks are part of a U.S. effort to improve relations with Eastern Europe.

State Department officials said various U.S. legislative restrictions will make it difficult to enlarge U.S.-Romanian commerce but some limited steps can be taken. They said American aid, granted previously to Yugoslavia and Poland, is not planned for Romania.

U.S exports to Romania dwindled from $1.8 million in 1959 to about $800,000 last year. American sales ranged from iron and steel products to farm goods such as dried beans.

U.S. imports from Romania dropped from $1.2 million in 1959 to some $600,000 in 1963. The Romanians sent over goods ranging from walnuts to glassware.

Fans Discover Two Beatles

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands (AP)—Fans found the two vacationing Beatles, Ringo Starr and Paul McCartney on Saturday after the entertainers had enjoyed anonymity for most of the week.

No one recognized them on shore excusions from their rented yacht because this is carnival time in the Virgin Islands and hundreds of the merrymakers were wearing Beatle wigs.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

993 New Library Books Are Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Many readers of this column tell me that they enjoy hearing about the great variety of books which are being added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and that of course is the purpose of the column. We cannot give complete book reviews, but merely let you know what books are available. In the month of April a total of 993 new books were added to the Library book collection, while 235 were withdrawn. This leaves us with a total book collection of 93,520 books. Our goal for January first is 101,663, so we need to gain a little over 8,000 in the next eight months. We hope that we can do so. You can help us achieve this goal by giving memorial books and we actually need them in order to bring our collection up to standard by January first 1965.

Among the many new books added during the past week are two which will interest real estate people. They are: "Prentice-Hall Treasury of Money-Making Real Estate Ideas and Practices" and "Buying or Selling Your Home" by John H. Denton. "Word Origins and their romantic stories" by Wilfred Funk is an interesting and informative book. "Seven Miles Down" by Jacques Piccard tells a great deal about the art of deep sea diving. "Downstream" by John Bardach is a discussion of rivers. "Fishers of the World" by E. N. LeDanois is a very beautiful addition to that subject.

"Anatomy and Physiology" by Diana Kimber will be most useful to students. Martin Caidin has written a very interesting history of parachuting, which he calls "The Silken Angels." "Gardening Without Poisons" by Beatrice Trum Hunter will be welcomed by many readers who were seriously disturbed by Rachel Carson's "The Silent Spring." A very lovely book of interest to horse fanciers is "The Horse and the Blue Grass Country" by Bradley Smith.

A book which came to us as a gift for the Anna Meyer branch and which we liked so well that we ordered copies for the other libraries is "Gifts From Your Kitchen" by Carli Lacklan. This book contains 300 recipees with 300 wrapping suggestions. This should be used by many women who enjoy cooking and like to give the results to their friends. "How to Clean Everything" by Alma Chesnut Moore is an encyclopedia of what to use and how to use it. "How to Organize and Operate a Small Business" by Pearce C. Kelley will be used by many readers.

In the field of literature there are a number of interesting new books. "The Little Package" by Lawrence Clark Powell is a delightful book of essays by one of our outstanding librarians in this country. Recently we have noticed a resurgence of interest in books of poetry and to meet this demand we have three new titles this week. They are "Collected Poems" of Robert Graves; "Swinburne; a Selection" by Dame Edith Sitwell and "The Sacred River; Coleridge's Theory of the Imagination" written by James Baker. Since this is the anniversary of Shakespeare's birth, a number of new books are being published about his life and work. The latest one is "An Introduction to the Sonnets of Shakespeare; For The Use of Historians and Others" written by John Dover Wilson. Ernest Tuveson is the author of "Swift; a Collection of Critical Essays." There are a number of books of continental literature. "Seven Plays" by Bertolt Brecht will interest students of the German theatre. Henry Hatfield is the author of "Thomas Mann" a book of critical essays of the work of this great German writer. "Four Screenplays of Engmar Bergman" is an excellent collection of the work of this Scandinavian author. R. W. B. Lewis has written a book of critical essays of the work of "Malraux" the great Twentieth Century French writer, while Arthur Day has made a collection of the "Best South Sea Stories."

There are a number of new books in the field of history, both contemporary and historical. "Change in the Contemporary South" by Allan P. Singler is a scholarly book which is well worth your reading time. "Bolivia, A Land Divided" by Harold Osborne deals with a country about which we know very little. Maurice Ashley is the author of "Great Britain to 1688", another in the series being published by the University of Michigan. "The Reichstag Fire" by Fritz Tobias is a vivid retelling of the events which ushered in the reign of Adolph Hitler in Germany . . . "Napoleonic Propaganda" by Robert B. Holtman is an unusual and interesting book. "The Fall of Richmond" by Rembert W. Patrick is another good book on the Civil War. "The Texas Revolution" by William Campbell Binkley gives much information about this conflict. "My Odyssey; Experience of A Refugee from Two Revolutions" is a reprint of a diary kept by Althea de Puech Parham, and was originally published under the title of "A Creole of Saint Domingue." It deals with the experiences of a lady who escaped the Haitian revolution of 1781 to 1804. "General Gage in America" by John Richard Alden sheds much new light on the American Revolution. "Bourbon democracy of the Middle West, 1865-1896" by Horace Samuel Merrill is an interesting book, while "The History of the United States Flag" by Milo M. Quaife will be widely used.

Thre are only two new books of fiction this week and both of them are msyteries. The titles are "Better Off Dead" by John and Emery Bonnett and "The Missing Man" by Hillary Waugh. 517 new borrowers registered at the Ouachita Parish Public Library last month. Were you one of them? If not, we give you a hearty invitation to do so.

Old Pop Gives Kids Red Faces

TO SIT ON A HORSE. By Al Morgan. Morrow. $3.95.

Sometimes there is a novel that is knee-deep in sentimentality, yet touches stronger emotions. Like Morgan's novel.

It is about Jack Judson, once a giant of the old vaudeville circuit, a natural clown, mimic and audience-enthraller. But now at 76 he has become "Pop," a retired old bumbler with shaking hands, who has been forgotten by the public..

His son Porter Judson is an up-and-coming Hollywood director, just starting on his first big-budget movie. Poor old "Pop" is an embarrassment to Porter's career. Poor old "Pop" can't get past his daughter-in-law's inhibitions about the grandchildren. Poor old "Pop" has a desperate, final and pathetic desire to appear just once in the public eye.

Despite his idiosyncrasies, you have to like the old boy for his touching wistfulness and his devotion to his memories.

In the narrative's counterpoint you catch the smart clap - trap of commercial Hollywood. Morgan brings it to you in wisecrack dialogue — which on its face is unreal, but still in the right key. It sounds like the supposedly ad lib patter of the old vaudeville stage itself.

Knowing readers may observe that a recent novel by Edwin O'Conner, "I Was Dancing," centers around a 78-year-old, retired vaudeville hoofer, waltzing Daniel Considine, and the tensions of his relations with the next generation.

Morgan's story about another old vaudeville character has more schmalz and perhaps less literary finesse. But it also has a greater tug at the viscera, more throb at the pulse-point.

What this novel has is affection and pathos. It may be expresse' in less than eternal prose, but it has an earthy kick.

Interest In Back Of Book

THE HAIRCURL PAPERS. By William K. Zinsser. Harper. $3.95.

Part of this collection of magazine pieces falls — with the accompanying sound of jeers — into the category of acid humor, aimed at several of the asininities of modern life.

The rest of the book, though written in a light vein, casts a more serious and more affectionate glance at the pleasanter features of today's changing scene.

Zinsser uses all the available tricks of slapstick satire, burlesque and exaggeration for his biting attacks in the early part of the book. Mostly he is fighting the individualist's battle against being overwhelmed by modern complexity and pressure.

At the beginning he describes his losing warfare against his bank for giving him an unintelligible number, and later he is considering the invasion of privacy. He recites a ghastly array of advertising jargon and swoons at the nauseating grins of weather girls, airline hostesses and jungle chanters. He burlesques the sterotyped gush with which magazines portray movie actors, and apes the affectations of stage directors.

He is more interesting in the back of the book. There is a pleasant descriptive piece on Long Island's summer colonies. He presents a charming analysis of the music of songwriter Harold Arlen, ruminates on the ways in which movies present a national image, and recalls nostalgically the movies and movie people of another era, as seen now in television reruns.

He concludes with an affectionate appreciation of an old - fashioned crew of vaudeville comics in England, and a really engrossing story about the London auction firm of Sotheby & Co.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

We thought by this time we'd have closed out these weekly etudes built around the coming and going events of the concert season. After all, when you've run through the entire roster of scales — including the sharps and flats — you could let matters rest.

But along came a thoroughly musical local program last Monday featuring our own young orchestral players and guest soloists which simply cannot be overlooked. And a West Monroe movie house came through with the Academy Award winner, "Tom Jones," for its first run in this area. We usually don't deal with the cinema in our run of the artistic gamut here, but "Tom Jones" is an exception. So we'll flex the fingers once more and hit the keyboard for another couple of octaves.

YOUTH SYMPHONY

Clean presentation and musical vigor marked last Monday's program by the Monroe City School's string students and the Youth Symphony orchestra, which includes assisting woodwinds and brasses from the Ouachita Parish High School band.

The groups are instructed and directed by Roger Di Giulian, a patient taskmaster who shoots for — and usually achieves — the scaffolding of professional musicianshhip with even the younger students.

From the clean attacks and positive bowings in the opening selection, "Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra," by Vaughn Williams, a critical listener would have to glance at the program and back at the stage again to believe youngsters from the "all-city elementary" string classes were doing the work. They were indeed and with no fake motions whatsoever.

SOLOISTS

No wonder, then, that Michael Galasso, artist teacher of violin from LSU, made the trip here to perform with the group. At no time did he have to sacrifice tone or tempo to compensate for the young orchestra's handling of the instrumental background for his performance of Saint-Saens "Introduction et Rondo Capriccioso." By the way, this is the first serious violin with orchestra number a Monroe audience has heard in many a year, since virtually all of the travelling pro's have brought a pianist along for the fill-in.

Rex Morris, pianist, showed excellent insight in the handling of the first movement of the "Concerto in E Flat Major" by Mozart. Some of the chord voicings in the tricky orchestral portion may have wavered somewhat on this one, but the foundation was solid for the soloist.

Perhaps young Morris could afford to work for a slightly larger tone in some of the more heavily shaded portions of his playing, but let's hasten to add that the intricate finger work and trills were well beyond the usual teenage level of pianistic understanding.

While we're on the subject of Mozart's pianism, we might as well acknowledge the fact that it requires a sensitive instrument to respond to the typical 18th century melodies and ornaments. We understand the resurrection of the Neville stage piano was carried out locally in a tradition dating back to the days when ear, eye and hand worked together to give that "extra mile" of good tone. We doubt that there's a better concert grand in the area for Mozart, Schubert, Chopin and even some of the Beethoven sonatas.

The Youth Symphony closed the program with the first movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 6," a fine workout for dialogue among small groups of instruments. All told, the presentation was tops, musically as well as visually. We certainly would have enjoyed hearing the remaining movements of the Beethoven, but the kids can be expected to load up their busy schedules only so much. Maybe next year?

RIGHT BANK

If the award-winning film, "Tom Jones," based on the novel by Henry Fielding, has scored capacity attendance at the Rialto in West Monroe, it is small wonder. Underground sources from Shreveport tell us they're booking passage on a bus tour to see it in Waskom, Texas.

Some movies attract attention because a panel of judges said they rated some kind of honor and really ought to be seen. This sort of reasoning just does not follow with "Tom Jones." It's at once radically different, profane, profound, historical and as up to date as your own conscience.

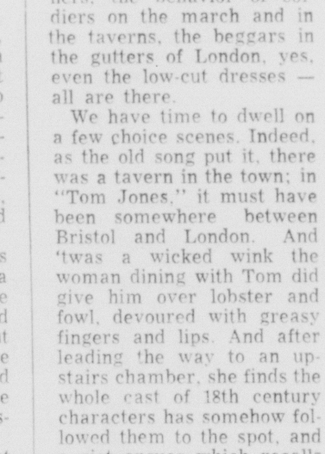

We understand the fellow who wrote the novel — the date was 1749 — was later to become a lawyer and a judge. As such, he was already taking a keen interest in the happenings of his day in England and could see in human nature everything from nobility of character to social hypocrisy.

Who could better transcend all classes, manners and morals than an illegitimate young man named Jones?

The movie people did the idea complete justice. Someone must have meditated well in the art museums where the Hogarth sequences hang. For the table manners, the behavior of soldiers on the march and in the taverns, the beggars in the gutters of London, yes, even the low-cut dresses — all are there.

We have time to dwell on a few choice scenes. Indeed, as the old song put it, there was a tavern in the town; in "Tom Jones," it must have been somewhere between Bristol and London. And 'twas a wicked wink the woman dining with Tom did give him over lobster and fowl, devoured with greasy fingers and lips. And after leading the way to an upstairs chamber, she finds the whole cast of 18th century characters has somehow followed them to the spot, and a riot ensues which recalls a fast game of drop the handkerchief (or were they sheets in this case?)

PRESIDENT'S GRANDSON

University Denies Professor Tenure

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Tufts University trustees voted unanimously Saturday to deny tenure to Prof. Woodrow Wilson Sayre, grandson of President Woodrow Wilson.

The trustees' vote upheld the decision of the university administration last fall to notify Sayre he was being dropped at the end of the academic year.

The administration spokesman, Dean Charles E. Stearns, said at the time that Sayre was a good teacher, but had not published any scholarly research.

Robert W. Meserve of Waltham, chairman of the trustees Educational Policy Committee, said of Saturday's decision that Sayre has had every opportunity to state his case, before the administration, a faculty committee, and the trustees.

The trustees said they did not want to rule that publishing research was a requirement, but said that nevertheless Tufts has many good teachers who are also scholars.

"This is not the oversimplified matter of 'publish or perish' that it has been made to appear," Meserve said. "It is, instead, a decision on the part of the university, that on the basis of all the academic evidence, Tufts does not wish to appoint Prof. Sayre for life."

Sayre, an assistant professor of philosophy, is completing his seventh year at Tufts. In his appeal, he contended he was entitled to tenure under the rules of the American Association of University Professors.

The faculty committee had agreed he would have tenure under the AAUP rules, but those rules have not been adopted by Tufts.

Sayre is 45. He recently published a book detailing his experiences with two fellow climbers who came within several hundred feet of reaching the top of Mt. Everest from the Tibet side.

Industrialists Told Of Deficit Decline

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The country's top industrialists were told Saturday that the balance-of-payments deficit probably will decline this year to a level between $1.5 billion and $2 billion.

This prospect of a billion-dollar improvement in the international gap was brought to a closed session of the Business Council at its spring meeting here by Carter L. Burgess, chairman of the council's Committee on International Trade.

Burgess, board chairman of American Machine & Foundry Co., New York, reported that the improvement apparently was a basic one, not caused by special circumstances in the international flow of currency and gold. Vigilant and continued effort by government and industry will assure that the gap continues to decline, he said.

The payment deficit last year was $2.7 billion, which in itself represented a substantial correction from the alarming imbalance of 1960 when a $3.9-billion deficit caused loss of confidence in the dollar and a massive outflow of gold.

Burgess told about 100 heads of major corporations that government efforts to correct the deficit had been helpful, and suggested that the payment problem might be further mitigated if mutually advantageous bargains are struck in Geneva at the negotiations on tariff reduction.

There is reason, he said, for a "degree of optimism" on the Geneva talks, provided that safeguards are established to ensure that foreign countries do not set up nontariff barriers to trade, such as import quotas or prohibitive taxes, after agreeing to reduce their tariff barriers to trade, such as import quotas or prohibitive taxes, after agreeing to reduce their tariff barriers.

Burgess told the industrialists that U. S. negotiators also might need the services of expert technical advisers from industry in the course of the negotiation.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy also addressed the council, appealing to business leaders to intensify their effort to promote racial harmony.

"The pending civil rights legislation is important," Kennedy said, "but it is not going to solve all the difficulty in race relations, and the problems are not going to disappear when the bill is passed and signed by the President."

Although the council meetings were closed to reporters as usual, Kennedy told newsmen later he had urged members to "do all they can to see that there is compliance with the law and respect for law and order."

He said the industrialists had been a "very responsive" audience, and that business in general has given great assistance in the drive to eliminate discrimination.

CAPTIVES OF VIET CONG

Four U.S. Prisoners View Viet Situation As Luckless

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Wilfired Burchett, Australian-born newspaperman who has been Communist-oriented, has returned to Moscow after spending five months in South Viet Nam with the Viet Cong forces.

In the jungle he met four American prisoners of war. In the following story, written for The Associated Press, he describes their lives and conveys messages to their families in America.

Burchett, formerly a reporter for British newspapers, now lives in Moscow and writes regularly for Communist papers and some Western papers and magazines. During the Korean War, he covered the Communist side and was reported in 1953 to have helped write germ warfare "confessions" for American prisoners of war. He also has been seen on the Communist side in Laos.

The Associated Press presents his view in the interest of bringing news of American prisoners held by the Viet Cong.)

By WILFRED BURCHETT

MOSCOW (AP)—In a remote corner of South Viet Nam, in a patch of jungle so dense that at midday only tiny patches of sky shine through like stars in the gloom, our American sergeants are living in individual, tiny bamboo huts, each encircled with a high palisade, each with an air raid shelter.

They are the first inhabitants of a newly established prisoner of war camp, the first to be set up by those the West calls "Viet Cong" and who call themselves the "Giai Phong Quan" or liberation army, the military arm of the National Front of Liberation. Other American prisoners are plodding along jungle trails or moving by night in sampans in the general direction of this camp, now that an organization has finally been set up to deal with POWs. The four Americans are:

Staff Sgt. Kenneth Roraback, Fayetteville, N. C.

Spec. 5 Claude D. McClure, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Sgt. 1.C. Issac Camacho, El-Paso, Tex.

Sgt. George E. Smith, whose mother lives in Chester, W. Va.

They were captured together when the special forces training camp to which they were attached as advisors was overrun on the night of Nov. 23-24, 1963. They have reason to consider themselves, as they themselves expressed it, "out of luck."

If the raid had taken place 10 days later, they would have been on their way home, as their six-month tour of duty was to be cut short to get them home for Christmas.

McClure considers himself doubly unlucky because he married only a few days before leaving the United States on July 10, to go to South Viet Nam, and was counting on a reunion with his bride. He was wounded in the left arm by mortar fragments during the attack, got first-aid treatment a few hours later and had the fragments removed at an emergency surgical station four days later.

Smith had been wounded in the right leg and Roraback in the shoulder in an engagement in Can Tho Province just three days after arriving in South Viet Nam.

Before a POW camp organization was set up, captured Americans had been released after several weeks, or months, during which they received what their captors term "explanations of liberation front policies and the nature of our just struggle."

By the new set up, I judged that in the future, POWs will be held, pending some sort of negotiations, either on a prisoner exchange issue, or to end the war.

But the authorities at the tiny camp were unable to enlighten me on this. Their orders, they said, were "to set up a camp, prepare to receive prisoners, prepare to look after them."

I was able to speak to each of the four in turn and later all of them together, during a brief visit to the "camp."

Their own uniforms have been taken away and replaced by black military type, heavyweight cotton shirts and trousers, two sets for each man and surprisingly well-fitting. They had been allowed to keep their military boots, but when I saw them they were wearing slipper-type sandals.

Roraback, senior of the four with 15 years service including the Korean War, said his captors had been "very considerate from the moment of capture."

"It was quite a shock to me," he added.

"I had expected to be shot. When this did not happen immediately or during the first day, I thought they must be taking us a bit further from Saigon before they shot us.

But they saw I was rather anxious: They patted my back, stroked my arms and in general made signs that there was nothing to worry about.

"As for the food, it is probably as good as they can provide under the circumstances. Of course, it is nothing compared to ours. But I consider the treatment very fair so far."

McClure said:

"They treat us real well—that's the main thing. No rough stuff at all."

Smith commented:

"Treatment has been fair considering guerrillas don't have proper facilities for taking care of POWS. But food is a problem. We can't get used to eating rice three times a day. We get some sardines, an occasional bit of meat, some jungle roots and condensed milk now and again. I suppose they do the best they can under the circumstances."

Camacho said he had been "treated very well but it is very difficult for them to supply us with food we are used to."

They got supplies of tobacco and paper for "homemades"; the tobacco supply was ample but "a bit rough," as Comacho expressed it.

The jungle roots referred to by Smith are in fact manioc, the root from which tapioca is made and widely used in Viet Nam when rice gets short.

Meat in the parts where they are held depends on the skill of the hunters and is likely to be anything from monkey or wild cat to wild pig, dog or boa constrictor, all of which, except the latter, I ate during my visit to the guerilla areas. Each military unit has a hunting and fishing team whose job it is to supplement the staple rice diet.

Roraback said that boredom was one of the worst features of POW life. To overcome this, he had — in his imagination — "made six model planes for the kids—he has four—built a barbecue pit, put shelves in the kitchen and built three radios."

He requested me to relay a message to his wife:

"I'm alive. I'm in the jungle. Look after the kids."

He added that "she's a terrible worrier and likely to make herself ill worrying after me."

Smith wanted me to let his mother know that he was "alive and being treated well."

Camacho also to his mother: "I'm in good health. Being well treated. Hope some day to see you again."

McClure to his wife:

"Hope to be home some time."

For all of them the lack of contact with home was a problem, also the lack of any reading matter except an English-language news bulletin put out by the liberation front's news service. To find any sort of English-Language books in the guerrilla areas is an obvious problem.

Later, I was able to raise, with the head of the front, former Saigon lawyer Nguyen Huu Tho, the question of whether—providing the Cambodian Red Cross was willing—it would be possible for the POWs to receive and send letters through the Cambodian Red Cross and receive food parcels. And in the case POWs were to be released in the future, whether this could also not be handled through the Red Cross, instead of just putting them on a jungle trail and order them to: "Straight forward, march."

INAUGURATION TUESDAY

Governor Ready To Grasp Reins

BATON ROUGE (AP)—John J. McKeithen, a hip-shooting politician in the style of Earl Long, takes office as governor Tuesday with a promise to bring Louisiana a new way of life.

A forceful, quick-witted country attorney, the 45 - year - old McKeithen campaigned for a new era of decency and dignity in government.

He defeated efforts of Sen. Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the son of Huey Long, to sell young Rep. Gillis Long, D-La., as the next governor.

To help, McKeithen had in his corner the widow of the late Gov. Earl Long, Huey's brother, and most of the old Long leaders.

He defeated deLesseps Morrison, onetime ambassador to the Organization of American States, in the Democratic runoff primary, then turned back in the general election an unprecedented challenge by Republican Charlton Lyons, a Barry Goldwater enthusiast.

No one is more keenly aware than McKeithen of public weariness of political hayrides. And he did not win with the smashing power of Huey or Earl.

McKeithen hotly attacked the oft-criticized regime of outgoing Gov. Jimmie Davis, but he sought Davis' behind-the-scenes help to beat Morrison.

In the next four years, McKeithen will woo industry with tax favors and political stability.

A key feature of his program for the legislature opening Monday is a code of ethics to improve state capitol morality.

"Louisiana must demonstrate to the world a new era, a new way of life—a new generation has taken over, if you please," he says.

McKeithen, Earl's house floor whip 1948-52, for years has been a state public service commissioner, a traditional stairstep to higher office used by Huey and Davis.

"My political beginning was with the old Long faction," McKeithen says, "and what we accomplished in state programs is now universally accepted."

When campaign foes struck at his tax raising record under Earl Long, McKeithen demanded which of the old Long programs — public welfare, free school lunches for the needy, a vast charity hospital network, free school books—would they repeal.

McKeithen wants a new industrial buildup, instead of tax raises and an expanded welfare state.

McKeithen is a segregationist, but not a racist. He is the first top Louisiana political figure to invite Negro leaders to sit down with him and talk. He foresees no racial violence in the four years ahead.

"I'm the best friend the poor white man and the Negro ever had," says the offspring of ol' Earl.

McKeithen heaps praise on Alabama Gov. George Wallace for taking the fight against the civil rights bill into Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland presidential primaries. But he refuses to commit himself on Wallace's unpledged elector plan.

The governor-elect says President Johnson will carry Louisiana in November, something he says the late President Kennedy could not have done.

Seeking a political coalition—to show sincerity in ending old factionalism — McKeithen is bringing Morrison and former education Supt. Shelby M. Jackson into his administration.

But an uneasy truce continues with Senator Long — for Gillis Long faces a congressional election in July and Speedy Long, who was on McKeithen's ticket, plans to challenge Gillis.

During the campaign, Sen. Long scoffed at McKeithen, saying he would "carry in a bunch of political crumbs who want to get at the political trough again."

McKeithen, sensitive to criticism, knows his gubernatorial appointments will be closely watched.

The inauguration of McKeithen comes at high noon Tuesday, 365 years after Louisiana's first governor — Pierre Le Moyne d'Iberville, rowed up the Mississippi with a band of French settlers.

VOTE No. 2

Moise L. Peters

For Mayor, City of Monroe

I humbly and sincerely solicit your vote and support to the position as Mayor of the City of Monroe on May 16, 1964. I have been working hard and diligently; I have gone from door to door; I have no organization or employees to intercede for me; I am an independent candidate responsible only to the citizens of Monroe; I entered this race with a will and a determination to win; and win I will with your help; I have a sound and workable platform that I believe you the people feel is necessary; I will repeat my platform again;

1. Abolishment of Garbage Tax and a reduction of other city taxes. (The Garbage Tax was imposed as an expedient measure for ten-months only. Why must it continue? Other city taxes can be reduced without jeopardy to jobs or department by means of equal and impartial taxation)

2. Reduction of Utility Rates. (To hold and encourage business and industry that Monroe can be competitive and move forward.

3. Encourage fair and impartial Law Enforcement. (This is a Necessity to all in order to encourage out-of-town visitors to use our shopping, recreational and entertainment facilities)

4. Devote my full time to the duties of the Mayor's Office. (I pledge to you the citizens of Monroe, that I do not have nor do I intend to participate in any outside businesses that will keep me out of the Mayor's office)

5. Preservation of State's Rights. (I believe and will support the traditional southern way of life.)

6. Better wages and working conditions for our city employees.

7. Reorganize the Building and Zoning Commissions to encourage new business and industrial growth and expansion of existing industry. (A more liberal approach to this problem is necessary in promoting and encouraging business and industry that the City of Monroe is alert to their desires)

8. Elimination of open ditch drainage within city limits. (This problem has existed for many years; but, as the city has grown no action has been taken to eliminate these cesspools, and breeding areas for mosquitoes)

9. Promise courtesy and an open door to all individuals or groups wanting to see me at all times. (This policy will give you, the citizens, an opportunity to interrogate, inspect, or visit any office or department in City Hall)

10. Develop deep well water for present and future needs of our city. (We will never again need the Ouachita River as our emergency source of potable water)

Each and every plank in this Platform is workable. I pledge to you, the citizens of Monroe, that I will work as hard and as diligently as I am now doing in order to achieve these goals. Again I humbly solicit your vote and support for the position as Mayor of the City of Monroe. Thank You.

Northeast Pageant Co-Directors Busy

Two Monroe coeds have their hands full this week as they round out the finishing touches on a series of elaborate preparations for the annual Miss Northeast pageant scheduled May 15 at 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Co-directors of the pageant are Barbara McCoy and Jerilyn Gilstrap. Both are majoring in speech education with minors in English. Miss McCoy is a junior and Miss Gilstrap a senior.

The directors are trained in beauty pageant productions and similar theatrical stagings, both on and off the college campus.

Miss McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCoy, was assistant to the director at the Monroe Little Theatre for the comedy, "Send Me No Flowers," and has appeared in several Strauss Playhouse productions, including "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon," and "Ask Any Girl."

Beauty titles she has held include Louisiana Shrimp Maid, and Miss Richland Parish, in addition to a runner-up place in the Miss International Queen of Queens, in Las Vegas and a finalist in the 1962 Miss Louisiana beauty pageant.

Miss Gilstrap, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Gilstrap, has served as assistant to the director and stage manager of numerous Monroe Little Theatre productions, including "The Solid Gold Cadillac," "The Miracle Worker," and "The Glass Menagerie." She was co-director of the 1961 Miss Northeast pageant and has also directed and appeared in several dramas for the college stage.

Both students are active members of the Northeast chapter of Phi Beta, national professional speech and music fraternity for college women. Miss McCoy is serving her second straight presidency and Miss Gilstrap has served as president for one term and is currently secretary of the organization.

The two pageant directors assisted in the preparation of Phi Beta's annual spring Supper Theatre, given Thursday night at the Paragon Club in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare.

NOW THAT THE BABY IS GROWN

LOUISVILLE (AP) — On a cold, rainy night in February 1934, Dr. U. R. Ulferts delivered a baby but made no charge because the family was poor.

Recently, he received this letter from Oklahoma City:

"Inclosed you will find a check for $50 in payment for an old doctor bill of $15. Although we were grateful for the medical care, we were unable to pay. I hope the extra $35 will be enough for the interest."

The letter was signed by that mother of 30 years ago.

President's Wife Returns To Tour For World's Fair

NEW YORK (AP)—Lady Bird Johnson was back in the traveling entourage of President Johnson on Saturday, holding her husband's Texas hat, watching his World's Fair news conference and giving speeches, too.

Daughter Lynda, 20, who had been her stand-in on a six-state antipoverty tour with the President the past two days, went back to the White House on Saturday to rest after an opera-going overnight visit to New York with her mother.

Mrs. Johnson was greeted as an old friend by Jacob S. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and as "an honorary member" of the union.

He told a union crowd at the Singer Bowl at the World's Fair, where the President spoke, that Lady Bird had come to New York's garment district several years ago to sew on the first label launching a union label campaign for neckties and gloves.

He said that she went on to wearing union-made hats and union-made dresses.

Mrs. Johnson, speaking briefly, praised the union and its officials for making the union a tool to provide a better life for all its workers and said she was happy to come and celebrate their 50th anniversary with them.

While the President addressed the group and got off some humorous remarks about how much he has to pay for clothing the women of his family, Mrs. Johnson held his Texas hat.

The President [illegible] he was happy to meet the representatives of this industry "to which I owe much, literally."

He said that from years of married life, with a wife and two daughters, he had discovered that if clothes don't make a man, "they can certainly break him."

Nutritional Science Boosted In Area

Dietitians point the way for the healthy and the ailing to get maximum possible benefit out of foods through proper diets. Here is a report on the advance of this science in the area, and some of those engaged in the work.

Monroe Morning World

The famous Greek physician, Hippocrates of Cos, born around 460 B.C., recognized diet as an important therapeutic agent, but the science of human nutrition has made its greatest strides in the past 85 years.

The results of these advances in the field of dietetics are being brought into the spotlight in the area this week with the special observance of "Dietetics Week."

The week is one of the highlight chapters in "Nutrition Month" in Louisiana during May.

AREA GROUP

A report from the Northeast Area Dietetic Association, which was formed in September, 1959, with a membership of seven dietitians living in Monroe, West Monroe, Ruston, and Downsville, states that "Only in the past 85 years have tools and methods of research been adequate for making meaningful studies of the effect of food intake on physical well-being. The dietitian is equipped through education and experience to apply scientific discoveries in nutrition to the feeding of individuals and groups."

MISS MARLENE BOND, supervisor in this area with the school lunch section of the State Department of Education, speaks at a school lunch workshop.

The Northeast Area Dietetic Association, as an affiliate of the American Dietetic Association, and the Louisiana Dietetic Association, has adopted their objectives, which are to advance the science of nutrition and dietetics, to improve human nutrition through application of their knowledge of these sciences, and to promote education in these areas.

The Northeast Association devotes its activities more specifically to the problems of dietetics as they develop on a local level. Since its founding, its membership has grown to 20. Mrs. Marvin Ellis of Ruston is president of the group.

An association spokesman said that most of the dietitians in the area are engaged in hospital work, but even in that field the scope of their jobs varies considerably.

ADMINISTRATIVE DUTIES

In a large hospital, for example, there may be an administrative dietitian whose duties are to formulate departmental policies, to hire, train, and supervise employees, and to plan for quality food within a specified budget.

Working alongside of the administrative dietitian will be a therapeutic dietitian who plans all of the modified diets ordered by doctors for their patients, instructs patients in their particular dietary needs and in ways of fitting their special requirements into their daily living pattern.

The therapeutic dietitian also correlates dietary care with other aspects of the patients' care, and in a teaching hospital instructs student nurses and medical students in both normal and modified nutrition.

Usually these dietitians are assisted by other professionally qualified personnel. Very large hospitals frequently have a special clinic dietitian who is primarily concerned with diet therapy, but deals with out-patients referred to her by doctors for dietary instruction.

In Monroe, Sister Martha de Bethanie of St. Francis Hospital, and her three staff dietitians, Mrs. Alton Braddock, Mrs. Max Lerner, and Miss Ann Winkler, carry out their duties, as well as supervising all tray service and cafeteria meals.

In a smaller hospital there is no specialization of jobs, since one dietitian may be able to handle all of the administrative and therapeutic work alone, or with the aid of one professional assistant.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE

An example of one dietitian planning and supervising all patient, staff, and guest meals is that of Mrs. Charles Denham of Glenwood Hospital in West Monroe, according to an association spokesman.

Dietitians who prefer the field of food service management may serve in positions in college food service, school lunchrooms, homes for children or the elderly, restaurants, hotels and transportation companies.

THE DIRECTOR OF food service at Northeast State College, Mrs. H. A. Aswell, looks over cuts of meat which will be prepared for serving in Gunby Dining Hall. With her is Mike Lagenby, student worker. (Northeast State Photo)

The director of food service at Northeast State College here is NADA member Mrs. H. A. Aswell, who with the cafeteria manager Mrs. M. C. Green, supervises meal service at Gunby Dining Hall.

Four other NADA members are employed as dietitians at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. One member of the association supervises food service at a Ruston home for retarded children, while another is dietitian at a Ruston nursing home.

POSITIONS SIMILAR

The position of nutritionist with state or local health associations is similar to that of the clinic dietitian. The nutritionist teaches classes in nutrition to expectant mothers, to diabetics, tuberculosis patients, and individuals who are sent to her through health agencies.

One interesting incident pointed out by the Northeast Area Association is that of a young child, unable to walk, who was brought to a crippled children's clinic. Investigation showed that his trouble was a general weakness stemming from malnutrition.

The mother of the child was sent to the nutritionist who instructed her in how to most effectively feed him within the limitations of the family income. With proper diet, the child eventually recovered

SCHOOL LUNCHES

One member of the NADA who has served as regional nutritionist with the Louisiana Public Health Department is Miss Marlene Bond of Monroe. At present she is supervisor with the school lunch section of the State Department of Educations, and has offices here.

All dietitians receive special training in teaching, since most jobs in that field involve some teaching work. Besides training employees and teaching patients, dietitians may serve as college instructors on such subjects as nutrition, diet therapy, quantity food service, institutional management and food cost accounting.

Sometimes in their line of work, dietitians discover a special talent that may lead them away from their first interest, into another field. A teaching dietitian may become a full-time professor, or a cafeteria manager may open a restaurant of her own. A dietitian who can prepare photogenic pot roasts, may turn to advertising, publicity, or become a food editor for a magazine or newspaper.

MORE ENTERING FIELD

Although all of the local dietitians are women, the association reports that in some areas men are entering the field in increasing numbers.

The association gave this summation of the qualities which dietitians, whether men or women, possess to make good in this field:

". . An interest in food and an ability to distinguish between good foods and poor quality foods. A liking for people as well as a willingness to serve them is essential. A strong aptitude for science is necessary, since college preparation leans heavily toward the field of science, and the graduate dietitian will find herself a part of a health team which includes professional people with much scientific training. In addition to these traits, the dietitian needs patience, flexibility, a sense of humor, and buoyant good health."

Electronic Eavesdropping Is Increasingly Popular Art

The market in 'bugging' equipment is active, but so is the demand for anti-eavesdropping devices. An expert gives an insight into some of the tricks of the trade.

By DON MEIKLE

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — "I could plant a microphone in your living room that would pick up everything said anywhere on the first floor of your house."

The words are spoken in a Maryland drawl by an expert in the increasingly popular art of "bugging" — electronic eavesdropping.

The microphone, says Ralph V. Ward, vice president of Mosler Research Products, Inc., one of the leading manufacturers of such devices, could be hidden on the underside of a sofa, beneath a rug, behind a drawer in a desk or end table, in a lamp or a chandelier or behind a Grandma Moses on the wall.

PINHOLE

Or there could be just a tiny pinhole in the wallboard.

"You see this hole?" Ward points to a just visible aperture in a piece of wood paneling like that which lines his office. "That's actually bigger than it has to be. But I made it that big for demonstration purposes."

He turns over the wood. Protruding from the back is a narrow tube placed over the pinhole, and on the end of the tube is a tiny microphone.

Ward opens a plain leather carrying case and displays an arsenal of electronic eavesdropping devices.

"I would like to see the use of these things prohibited — except by police departments and other government agencies," he says. "Invasion of privacy is a problem these days."

Until last year, those were the firm's only customers except for foreign governments approved by the State Department.

Now the company also sells to licensed investigators, but Ward says he would be willing to lose the trade if Congress and state legislatures would restrict the sales.

Ward opens another carrying case and shows an array of equipment capable of sniffing out the snooping devices.

"We're selling more and more of these," he says.

Anyone can buy the anti-eavesdropping devices.

Ward's employes are busy working on such things as the model PIC-2 picture frame transmitter.

As the catalogue describes it, the picture frame transmitter "provides a swift and dependable method of concealing a microphone in a room without requiring lengthy preparation."

It has no wires or switches. The space between a picture and the backing holds a sensitive microphone and a miniature battery-powered transmitter capable of sending a signal for three blocks.

LISTENING POINTS

Anyone with the right kind of radio and a head set can sit in a hotel room or parked car and hear everything that's said in the room decorated with the picture frame transmitter.

The catalogue also offers such items as:

The telephone tap, in which the telephone itself is used as a microphone and picks up conversations in the room where it sits.

The microphone encased in a small rubber disc that can be slid under doors or through windows or pressed against the walls of telephone booths.

The spike microphone which is driven through to touch the wall of the room you're interested in.

Microphones without transmitters are the hardest to detect, since they have no telltale signals. But they do need to be wired, usually to some existing wiring like an electrical outlet, a telephone line or an intercom system.

NO WIRING

The advantage of transmitters is that they require no wiring.

To find a transmitter, you need a broad band radio capable of picking up signals of unusual frequencies.

Locating a microphone involves, first, a search for telltale wires, and second, a metal detector.

Ward, who is aware of the difficulty of maintaining privacy, says police should be required to obtain a court order before they use eavesdropping devices.

But he thinks evidence thus gathered should be admissable in court.

At the recent PAR Tenth Annual Conference on Louisiana Government, Governor - elect John J. McKeithen said:

"I believe that Louisiana now is facing a crisis — that we are at the crossroads. . . . The time for action has now arrived. So far as I'm concerned the days of the study groups, the day of the study committees, and essentially the days of the recommendations are passed. And now has come the time for labor."

John J. McKeithen becomes governor of Louisiana Tuesday under conditions unique in the state's history.

Needs Support

Rarely have the people of this state been so much in need of a strong hand at Baton Rouge to cement together the fragments of a political and economic structure which has disintegrated over a period of past administrations — with none alone to blame.

Rarely has an incoming Governor been so much in need of complete and selfless support by public leadership — business, political, professional and social — from all over the state if he is to accomplish the worthy task he has set for himself.

* * *

Mr. McKeithen is, so far as we know, the first Louisiana Governor who had to go through three rough, tough, full-scale campaigns to get elected. Each was a battle in which political blood was shed right and left and the wounds were deep. It seemed that some never could be healed. Emotions were hot, tempers were short, attack and counter - attack were quick.

At the start of each of his Democratic primary campaigns, Mr. McKeithen was the underdog. It looked like he might have to drop out in the first contest for lack of funds. In the general election, approximately 285,000 registered Democrats were so strong against Mr. McKeithen that they voted Republican.

Wins Alone

But, with a will to win that still astounds many, he went on to victory. He alone of his original ticket was elected. None of the elected state officials who will serve with him were with him at the start of the gubernatorial campaign.

The political shambles created by such a devastating war might well have brought deep discouragement or bitter resentment to the heart of the victor.

Instead, he has made allies of past political enemies. This has come about in large part because of Mr. McKeithen's own understanding that he must have these people with him to get Louisiana back on its feet. THEY now must understand that unless they stand by him, state government again may bog and sink disastrously.

* * *

When the political war ended, persons on the inside felt that never again could there be a friendly word between Mr. McKeithen and Senator Russell Long. Today they are working side by side on state problems.

Join Forces

Most people would have thought it inconceivable — at the end of the three campaigns that deLesseps Morrison and John McKeithen ever could stand side by side. Tuesday, when Mr. McKeithen steps into office as Governor, Mr. Morrison will take over a special office in the capitol, without pay, but with a sizable budget to be used in attracting industry to any or all parts of Louisiana.

It would hardly seem that former Governor Sam Jones would be standing at Mr. McKeithen's side, for he had no part of Mr. McKeithen in any of the three political battles. But the Governor - elect turned to the former Governor for counsel and advice and assistance — and got it, especially in the work of planning a code of ethics for all state employes, including the Governor and all others elected to office. He has called on many others of this type and they are responding.

Since election, Mr. McKeithen has visited industries in different parts of the country. He has gone through industrial plants in Louisiana never before visited by a Governor or a Governor - elect. He has sat down at the private conference table with Louisiana leaders in the professions, in business, in industry and in labor — including labor leaders who fought him bitterly politically — and set forth his plans and sought their help. Hardly any of these supported him in either Democratic primary or in the general election.

Need Outlined

It was this course by Mr. McKeithen that caused a former high state official who is respected in every one of our 64 parishes to say earnestly to The World a couple of days ago:

> "I come from a different political camp than McKeithen. I am of a different political breed. But I have studied his program upside down and inside out and it is sound and good. He came to me for help when I thought he hardly would have spoken to me. He is intensely earnest in his desire to govern well. But the man faces many pitfalls. If WE don't help him, those who don't want the kind of government he has set forth in his statements since election may win; and WE may be to blame."

By "we" this gentleman meant everyone of "a different political camp" and "a different political breed" than the Governor - elect.

* * *

Clouds Loom

There are clouds on the horizon. For example:

From within the Legislature come some rumblings of plans to undercut the proposed Code of Ethics which has been prepared by the Council for a Better Louisiana at Mr. McKeithen's request. The Governor - elect wants an enforcement commission made up of former and retired judges. There are those who would pass a Code with cheers but nullify it with a politicalized enforcement agency.

The new Governor approves a $52 million pay increase for school employees, but says there is not money for it now. Professional educationists privately are talking of a move to urge teachers to teach only seven months instead of nine unless they get the pay increase. Political educationists in the Legislature are demanding new taxes if necessary to provide the raise, where Mr. McKeithen will demand tax reductions from the Legislature, particularly in behalf of corporate business. With state spending money tight, some Legislators may protest his planned tax cuts.

The list of troubles and pitfalls ahead could be carried on somewhat indefinitely.

* * *

This is not likely to be a push-button administration. There are many new and independent faces in the Legislature. Mr. McKeithen was elected as an independent — without support of any organized group — and the rest of the elected state officials gained office without original alignment with him. The Lieutenant Governor — the "Deputy Governor" and the man who will steer legislation in the Senate — was elected as an independent.

Legislative conditions easily could arise to discourage the Governor in the program he has announced. But if he sticks to that program; if he retains his present trust in those who have opposed him but who now are willing to help; if these people continue to help as he wants them to — then Mr. McKeithen can be headed toward a great administration and Louisiana toward a new era in prosperity. But, truly, 'now has come the time for labor' — by everyone.

City School Square

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

To the candidates for the Monroe city school board:

We would like for you to answer a question.

What do you want done with the old city school square?

Last May — 1963 — we presented the Monroe school board with a petition signed by nearly 1,000 voters asking them to make a park out of the square — between Jackson, Wood, St. John and Oak streets. It is the best place in downtown Monroe that can be a park. An architect drew a pretty plan for a park.

The sale of the old bricks from the school would pay for making it.

Most important in the deeds of that property to the city are strict stipulations that the property can never be used for commercial purposes. If it is, the property will revert to the donor's heirs. So, should the city school board try to sell or use it commercially, they would end in court.

Remember the cases over trying to sell Cooley Sanatorium and the Alma Meyer library property? Neither can be sold.

So — "Where do you stand, sir?"

Over 900 voters want to know.

Mrs. Harry Russell

New Governor

Kelly, La.

To the Editor:

This Tuesday sees a new occupant in the governor's chair in Baton Rouge.

We will have a chance to see whether the campaign promises will materialize into anything. Already certain persons have been getting ready to ask for particular sums of money for some pet projects, of which some were cut off at the beginning of the Davis administration.

One of these persons, Commissioner of Agriculture Dave Pearce, has said that he will ask the legislature for $300,000 this year to give to the various district fairs and to the state fair.

His reason is that it would help the Louisiana farmer by putting before the country the products of Louisiana agriculture. However, I doubt if any of the small fairs and carnivals would draw any people except those in that particular community, excepting the state fair at Shreveport.

This one seems to draw people from many states, including Winthrop Rockefeller from Arkansas, the Hudgines from Texas and many others who bring their registered show cattle to Shreveport and go back home with a goodly sum of money from the prizes they win.

If Mr. Pearce is successful in getting his request, the prize money will be raised substantially and will be more enticing for out-of-staters to come in and get our tax money.

But maybe the new legislature will do as the last one did and turn down this request and use the money for something that is needed, not to make the rich a little bit richer with the people's tax money.

Civil War Indicated

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In a sense, four southern senators indicate we are in a civil war. It comes as a great surprise to me that our Louisiana Senator Russell Long has practically admitted defeat on the so-called "civil rights" issue, as well as one or two more of our southern gentlemen. I would hesitate to say what the late Huey P. Long would think if he were here to hear such commitments.

Apparently, Russell has admitted defeat and has also committed himself to the support of Mr. Lyndon Johnson, who, in my opinion, went to Washington from the great state of Texas and seems to have forgotten all the traditions of his southern ancestry.

Actually, there has been much more trouble up north among whites and Negroes than we have had in the south, which indicates to me that the northern Democrats have become weaker and have begun to lose their power control.

In my opinion, Mr. Long is also showing his weakness toward his old family "southern tradition" and is losing ground as a Democrat in admitting almost certain defeat on the civil rights issue.

The majority of the citizens of Louisiana put their faith in John McKeithen to handle the affairs of this great state, and a wise decision it was. Mr. McKeithen has already begun to straighten out many of the affairs of Louisiana and, in my opinion, we will all see some drastic and profitable moves made by him in the near future. To date Mr. McKeithen has made no commitments toward who he thinks should be our next president and I imagine that he is much like a lot of us in that we have lost faith in our government in Washington, and most of those who represent us there. This calls for a hard decision until we can hear the proposed platform of our president to be.

I think that any man who has to pick up his beagles by the ears to make them yelp and who is supposed to run our government, if nominated for president of the United States, should be stricken from the ballots of our voting machines in the state of Louisiana.

Blaming The South

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

When politicians substitute their prejudices for facts, it is indicative of their lack of knowledge, of truth, or else a desire for political gain for themselves.

The governor of Indiana accuses the south of trying to put the Negroes off on them for not wanting to feed them ourselves. Due to the reason, the Negro, is not qualified, and learned, in any way, that suits their state they might use for employees. The governor's lack of knowing the condition in the south is obvious or he would not think of the south's developing programs, in progress of its industrial expansions, and increase in commerce. It is no reflection on the Negro to prefer to reside in the north, if he chooses to do so. And the northern politicians are not showing their self-apprisal in hospitality by such remarks.

Civil Rights Lobbying

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Having heard the news of the plea of the some 400 southern ministers that they want the civil rights bill and that they represented the south, I would like to offer a few comments.

First, I sincerely believe that they do not represent the south nor or they looking at the full contents of the Bill. Secondly, if I and 399 others had our salaries paid so that we could journey to the capitol we would we lobbying against the bill, just as these ministers are lobbying for it.

I have been in the past and am still an active church member. I can see no benefit for the church or the individual, whether he be colored or white, in the passage of such a bill. The word religion (along with the words race and discrimination) is not defined in this bill. Therefore, issues may be dealt with as the enforcing officer sees fit. It seems that if these and other ministers and also supporting officials would look more closely at the contents of this bill, and take into consideration the results attributed to the use of such undefined terms (in all probability an atheistic policy) they too would be lobbying against it.

I personally urge each reader not to take this bill lightly and to obtain information concering the bill and inform yourself of the contents. Also write your senator, representative and your church leaders and urge their support for defeat! If we as individual taxpayers, Americans, students, church members or what ever we may be, do not let our representatives know we stand, they may be "brainwashed" that all the south is for this bill to the extent that it will be past the point of no return. Then we, very likely in the future, would not have the opportunity to worship, write, or express our thoughts in any way, shape or form.

I remind you to not take this issue lightly, for, as you can see, the proponents sure are not, and after all who is footing the bill now and who will continue to do so?

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, May 10, the 131st day of 1964 with 235 to follow.

The moon is new.

The morning star is Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1775, Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys, the colonial militia of Vermont, stormed the British-held fortress at Ticonderoga, N.Y.

In 1865, Confederate President Jefferson Davis was captured and arrested as he was fleeing from Irwinville, Ga.

In 1940, 89 divisions of the German army, moving by land, air and water, led a surprise invasion of Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands.

In 1962, former President Dwight Eisenhower accused President Kennedy of seeking too much power.

A thought for the day—American lawyer Robert Ingersoll said: "In nature things are things are neither rewards nor punishments. . .there are consequences."

CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY

Pressures Hardly Hurt Rights Bill

NEITHER THE strong showing of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace (D) in the May 5 Indiana Democratic Presidential primary, nor other election-year pressures, are likely to have much influence on the outlook for civil rights legislation.

This is so despite indications of anti-civil rights "backlash" by Indiana residents and by voters in the April 7 Wisconsin primary, where Wallace also received a sizeable "protest" vote.

In the House, where Members went on record Feb. 10 in a 290-130 roll-call vote to pass the civil rights bill (HR 7152), re-election pressures are no longer a major factor affecting the measure.

SENATE OUTLOOK

In the Senate, 33 incumbents will face the electorate in 1964. Of this number, however, only four are considered to be wavering or undecided regarding their vote on the bill, or on a cloture roll call that might be necessary to limit debate and bring the measure to a vote.

Two of these four — Sens. Roman L. Hruska (R Neb.) and John J. Williams (R De.) —are overwhelming favorites for re-election regardless of their stand on civil rights.

Thus, 1964 election pressures relating to the civil rights bill narrow down to two Senators —Edwin L. Mechem (R N.M.) and J. Howard Edmondson (D Okla.). Even in these races, the candidates' positions on civil rights represent just one of a variety of factors that could influence the voters' choice in November.

Mechem, a conservative, faces a serious election challenge from Rep. Joseph M. Montoya (D), who voted for HR 7152 in the House. Mechem has said that many parts of the measure are "not good" and "not understood," and that it contained "tremendous areas of new grants of power to an already potent central Government."

In Oklahoma, Edmondson came in first in the May 5 Democratic primary, but he faces a May 26 runoff against state Senator Fred Harris. Should he win, Edmondson still is expected to receive strong opposition from former Oklahoma University football coach Bud Wilkinson, who easily defeated two opponents in the Republican primary. Wilkinson has said that, were he in the Senate, he would oppose the House-passed civil rights bill.

CLOTURE PROSPECTS

Even two Senate votes could make a difference in any effort to cut off debate by invoking cloture — a move that might be the key to civil rights legislation. A two-thirds majority of Senators present and voting is required to invoke cloture. With all Senators voting, 67 votes would be required.

Senate civil rights leaders recently admitted that they were at least four votes shy of the number needed for cloture. Opponents of the legislation, however, say the civil rights forces lack at least seven votes.

SENATORS FOR BILL

Of the Senators up for re-election this year who are counted as committed on the civil rights bill, 22 are considered supporters of the measure. Of this number, 17 are Democrats and five Republicans.

The lone Southerner in the group, Ralph W. Yarborough (D Texas), is a liberal. In the May 2 Texas primary, he beat back a serious challenge by Gordon McClendon, a conservative Dallas radio executive, to win renomination for a second full term.

SENATORS AGAINST BILL

Of the seven Senators opposed to the civil rights bill, three — Harry F. Byrd (D Va.), Spessard L. Holland (D Fla.) and John Stennis (D Miss.) — are members of the Southern Caucus which has been filibustering in opposition to the measure.

Writes To Dirksen

Shreveport, La.

To the Editor:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I have written to Senator Dirksen relative to his actions and attitude on the Civil Rights bill. I believe that I have expressed in this letter the feeling of the native Louisiana Republicans and Conservative Democrats as well as the same groups throughout the South.

TAYLOR W. O'HEARN

EDITOR'S NOTE—A portion of Taylor O'Hearn's letter follows:

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen,
Senate Office Bldg.,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Senator Dirksen:

. . . After having carefully studied H. R. 7152, "The Civil Rights Act of 1963," it is my considered opinion that the Congress does not have the right, under the Constitution and under every Supreme Court opinion I have read relative to the powers of Congress, to pass this Legislation. Moreover, in this case the Congress is dealing with the Civil Rights of all of the people; this legislation proposes to use the Congress and the power of the Federal Government to impose the will of 10 per cent of the people of this country upon the other 90 per cent.

It is not my intention to question your personal views on this matter. I believe they are obvious, nor do I sit in judgment on you as an individual; however, I am unable to understand how a man with your background and experience in government could support this blatant power - grab which would rob every citizen of the human rights guaranteed to him under the Constitution.

You apparently are not aware of the struggle which has been going on in the South to promote a strong Republican party. Admittedly the Southerners are conservatives and by this I do not mean racist but I do mean that in the broadest sense we hold to the tenets of orthodox form of government as provided under the Constitution and we cannot see, at this time, any reason for the Congress or the Supreme Court being allowed to amend the Constitution by simple legislation or judicial decree.

It has been an extremely difficult task here to build a Republican party and your attitude and apparent cooperation with the liberal elements of the Democrat party, specifially Mr. Hubert Humphrey, make it almost impossible for us to reconcile these pronouncements and activates with what we proclaim to be the basic political phylosophy of the majority in the Republican party, especially its leadership.

Southern Republicans have pledged their support to Senator Barry Goldwater in his efforts for the nomination and race for the presidency and I feel that you perhaps are aware of this fact. However should the Civil Rights bill pass, in any form, with your considerable assistance, it would make it more difficult for Senator Goldwater to carry the Southern states because the Conservative vote will be split between the Republican and Conservative Democrats. This could give President Johnson the election. Furthermore, I believe it will set the Republican cause, in the South, back another ten years.

I realize that your time is at a premium but it is my opinion that this bill will do irreparable damage to the very foundation upon which our freedom has been built and I implore you to exert your influence, not just to amend this bill, but to see that it is defeated.

PTA Denies Charge

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Accusations are being made concerning the P.-T.A. Magazine and its writers. I submit herewith a reply to my request for information from the National Congress of P.-T.A. and also a letter from Louisiana Congressman Otto E. Passman concerning these accusations. These letters amply refute the contention that the P.-T.A. is being infiltrated by communists and the assertion that the magazine's writers are being influenced by communists.

Mrs. M. L. DeFreese

West Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Mrs. DeFreese:

Mrs. Wiener has referred your letter of March 16 to me, and I hasten to assure you that any insinuation that the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is Communistic or that The PTA Magazine has Communistic writers is completely unfounded. In fact, before any author appears in the magazine he is carefully checked and I say with no hesitation at all that insofar as we know, there has been no infiltration into the organization.

You of course know that any citizen is entitled to have his own opinion and to voice constructive criticism. However no one is entitled to make irresponsible statements about our publication or any of the people who write for it. I am sure you realize that it is an actionable slander to call a person a "Communist" when the fact is otherwise and anybody who uses such words about another has the burden of proving them.

I suggest therefore that you ask any persons who insinuate that we do have Communists writing for the PTA Magazine to provide full information and to furnish us with the names of such authors. If we ask such persons to document their charges and to supply proof, such action may make them think twice before making false statements.

Indiana Spotlight

FOR SOME reason, it required close scanning of the wire service news releases this week to see the actual number of votes cast for Alabama Governor George C. Wallace in the Indiana primary. Various percentages were juggled about in newspaper and broadcast accounts of the contest, but such figures could mean the percentage of combined Democratic and Republican votes or what have you.

GOVERNOR WALLACE

Governor Wallace came up with some 170,000 votes in the race, while Indiana Governor Matthew E. Welsh — a Johnson supporter—captured around 366,250. Other Democrats divided about 31,000 votes.

Senator Barry Goldwater picked up Indiana's 32 convention delegates by collecting some 258,000 votes, though much was made of the 103,000 votes received by "dark horse" Harold Stassen.

Civil Rights

THE SENATE, after nearly 50 days of debate, voted down two amendments to the civil rights bill on Wednesday. Some chose to term the votes a "dramatic test of strength" as to factions supporting and opposing the whole bill.

One rejected amendment — defeated 46-45 — was offered by Kentucky Republican Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky. His amendment would have provided for jury trials in all cases arising from supposed civil rights violations.

Senator John Sherman Cooper also proposed jury trials for criminal cases arising from the public accommodations and fair employment sections of the bill if it should become law. His amendment was voted down 74-19.

SOUTHERN SENATORS attacked Cooper's amendment even though they had supported Morton's. They called it discriminatory in providing jury trials for some but not for others.

BY THE way, as a public service the Commission on Constitutional Government, Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia, has published the complete text of the Civil Rights bill. There is one page of editorial comment on a "Note to Americans" at the beginning of the publication. Otherwise, the text is a complete copy of H.R. 7152, the bill now being debated in the Senate. Up to 10 copies may be had without cost; for more, there is a slight charge. The Commission is an agency of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Others Return

REPRESENTATIVE ROBERT Taft Jr., son of the late Ohio senator dubbed "Mr. Republican," and Democratic incumbent Stephen M. Young hurdled the civil rights issue to clinch senatorial nominations in Ohio's primary.

REP. ROBERT TAFT JR.

Ted W. Brown, secretary of state and a veteran vote getter, banked on his civil rights opposition in a sharp clash with Taft for the Republican nomination but failed to carry a single county in Tuesday's voting.

Young's nomination was unintentionally challenged by ailing Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., who withdrew from the race too late to have his name removed from the ballot.

IN FLORIDA, Spessard L. Holland, a senator for 18 years, won the Democratic nomination for a fourth term.

Six Democrats were running for governor. Mayor Haydon Burns of Jacksonville and Mayor Robert King High of Miami won spots in the May 26 runoff.

IN NEW MEXICO, Land Commissioner E. S. Johnny Walker had a narrow lead over State Sen. Fabian Chavez in their race for the Democratic nomination as U.S. representative.

IN OKLAHOMA, former football coach Bud Wilkinson was an easy winner in his try for the GOP senatorial nomination. His opponent was to be decided in a runoff between the incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmondson and State Sen. Fred Harris.

IN ALABAMA, there was no question about a Wallace victory. His slate of unpledged electors won by a lop - sided margin over a pro-Johnson ticket. Once more Alabama Democrats are in full revolt against the national party.

On State Scene

WHILE THE primaries are causing a stir on the national scene, perhaps with our allies, adversaries and in-between friends looking on, Louisiana also came in for its share of the limelight last week — again on the political front.

Governor Wallace, fresh from his successful showings in Wisconsin and Indiana, visited New Orleans and this state's Governor-elect John J. McKeithen.

WALLACE, the first southern governor to campaign nationally against the civil rights bill and to take issue with the popular misconception that segregation as practiced in the South is somehow not moral, told a New Orleans news conference that he had knocked out the liberals' eye teeth in Wisconsin, their wisdom teeth in Indiana and in Maryland, "we're going to knock out some of their false teeth."

WALLACE'S MEETING with reporters and delegates to the national convention of the Editorial Cartoonists of America convention was full of humor rather than fight.

NO ENDORSEMENTS

Asked who besides himself he would like to see elected to the White House this year, Wallace replied, "I don't want to endorse anyone. It might damage them immeasurably."

"Actually, all the candidates are glad I'm running," he continued. "They are afraid I might come out and endorse them."

WHEN ASKED his impression of President Johnson, the Alabama governor drew a laugh from the 100 or so persons jammed into the hotel room for the news conference when he shot back:

"My impression of what? His love of dogs?"

GOVERNOR-ELECT McKeithen was somewhat more outspoken than his usual "uncommitted" policy has called for in the past. While careful not to project personal views into the matter directly, he predicted President Johnson would carry Louisiana and the South in November unless Attorney General Robert Kennedy or Senator Hubert Humphrey was chosen as a running mate.

In a question and answer session with the cartoonists, McKeithen declined to endorse Johnson outright for election saying he preferred "to wait until after the convention to declare myself."

Mother's Day

TODAY IS Mother's Day, and the occasion carries with it a special meaning for every family. In more recent years, the day makes for a little extra attention also for grandmothers—there are more of them these days because of longer life spans—and even mothers-in-law and great-grandmothers.

There is a Mother of the Year for 1964, Mrs. Cora Hjertaas Stavig, 63-year-old wife of the president of Augustana College of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. She was chosen from nominees from all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

MRS. STAVIG still loves to ice skate and believes her home life as a child laid the foundation for her selection Wednesday as Mother of the Year.

WHILE HER husband goes about his college duties, Mrs. Stavig busies herself entertaining visiting lecturers, faculty and students.

She lectures occasionally, and also serves as a marriage counselor.

The advice she gives most often to young married couples "is that it's very, very important to have the right sense of values."

"What used to be black or white has now turned for so many people into a shade of grey," she said. "This is true even on the very high levels of our society."

Mrs. Stavig believes in discipline, a "firm but fair discipline," and recalls that she was a "sparing but effective spanker" when her sons were young.

Men On The Move

While President Johnson's "War on Poverty" has called for his appearance at the front in that conflict in the region of Appalachia, there are other world figures also on the move.

ALGERIAN PRESIDENT Ahmed Ben Bella left the Soviet Union today with a long-term loan of $126.5 million, part of it to be used for construction of a 300,000-ton steel mill of Soviet design and equipment.

Ben Bella left for Bulgaria after a 13-day state visit to the Soviet Union. He also will visit Czechoslovakia.

As Ben Bella exchanged farewell toasts with Soviet leaders in Moscow Wednesday night, Khrushchev boarded the new Soviet motorship Armenia at Yalta.

BEN BELLA and Khrushchev will meet again May 15 at the dedication of a bypass channel for the Aswan High Dam on the Nile. The Soviets are contributing $247 million plus engineering know-how to the dam construction.

Senator J. William Fulbright and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara both got travel orders from the administration last week to look into far-flung trouble spots about the globe while President Johnson toured the poverty front.

AT ANKARA, Turkey, Fulbright criticized both Greece and Turkey for their actions in the Cyprus crisis.

SENATOR FULBRIGHT

Arriving on the last leg of his Cyprus fact-finding mission, the chairman of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee said:

"Congress, and I especially, feel a sense of frustration if our friends and allies are engrossed in their own affairs and do not take into consideration the security of the Western world."

Fulbright came to Ankara after a day in Athens, Greece, and a day in London.

Fulbright said he did not bring any solution or proposal for Cyprus.

MEANWHILE, Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense, who has become something of a general trouble shooter for President Johnson in South Viet Nam's vexing problems, set out again on a world-girdling trip back to Saigon.

Johnson told a news conference Wednesday he had asked McNamara to go to South Viet Nam to take a new look at the situation there.

At the Pentagon, McNamara's aides said that the new trip, coming only two months after his previous trip, did not mean that any new, critical emergency had arisen.

Counter Attack

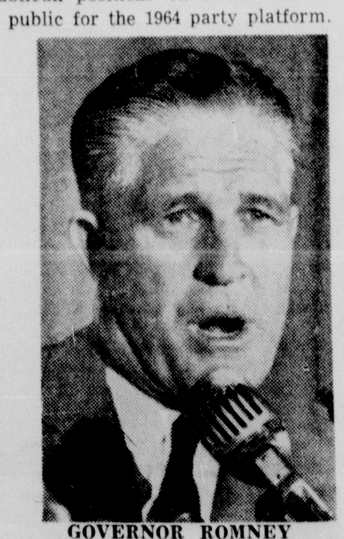

NO DOUBT, the Republican Party leaders have had a difficult time formulating an answer to President Johnson's anti-poverty program. On the surface, it would seem simple enough to counter with the flat statement that the government —federal or otherwise — cannot wipe out a condition which has been with us since primitive man met with a poor hunting and berry-picking season.

But, politically speaking, what is a party going to do? Can the GOP say now it's "pro-poverty?"

So at a Chicago meeting last week, Republican leaders began to put their thinking in the matter into more concrete terms for the upcoming campaign.

DEMOCRATIC policies were criticized at a GOP "Party to People Forum," the second in a series of six public meetings held around the nation.

Robert E. Merriam, national coordinator of the forums and formerly deputy director of the Budget Bureau in the Eisenhower administration, said the purpose of the sessions was twofold: to present Republican positions on issues and to gather material from the public for the 1964 party platform.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY

Gov. George Romney of Michigan, one of nine panelists, predicted that it was "just a question of time until we face a real economic crisis."

Romney said the Democrats have ignored basic flaws in the economy.

"Under current laws permitting the concentration of economic powers, unions and employers have been picking up the full share of progress," he said. "Customers are not being made the principal beneficiaries of economic progress."

Romney said competition makes the U.S. economy grow, but the government encourages monopolies in an effort to solve inequities of the 1930s.

Harold Stassen Is Serious In 4th Bid For Presidential Nomination

By STAN BENJAMIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Citizen Harold E. Stassen views the United States as one big town meeting, and the presidential contest as a forum.

So, when politicians scoff at his latest bid for the Republican presidential nomination — the fourth time his name has come up — Stassen just brushes it off.

"Defeats to me have been very incidental in the picture," he said in an interview. "I don't know of anyone who has done anything worthwhile who hasn't suffered his share of defeats."

"I feel very strongly that America must move forward building for peace, that it must solve the problems of automation and civil rights. On these three great issues of our time I felt I had something important to say, and that I could stimulate action. I want to break loose both major parties. The Republican party should be a progressive, forward - looking party with a common - sense approach."

And Stassen, 57, is using his candidacy in presidental primaries across the country to expound what he describes as his "middle-of-the-road Eisenhower-type" philosophy.

What raises eyebrows is his contention that this time—after not winning an election in 17 years—he is making a serious bid for the nomination and that he stands a real chance of getting it.

Twenty years ago no one would have questioned such a statement. After two four-year terms as district attorney of Dakota County, in Minnesota, Stassen was elected governor of that state in 1938 at the age of 31. He won re-election for two more two-year terms, and was being spoken of as a "boy wonder" politician, when he resigned to enter the Navy.

In 1945, while Commander Stassen was serving in the Pacific with Adm. William Halsey's Third Fleet, Halsey got this telegram from President Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"Stassen needed for delegation to draft U.N. charter."

Stassen joined the American delegation which drafted the charter, then returned to the Pacific and emerged from the Navy in 1946. In the next year and a half, before the scramble began for the 1948 presidential election, Stassen practiced law, wrote, lectured, travelled, and worked informally with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, then chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"I had been a three-term governor, our senators were in office, and besides, I was never interested in being a senator," Stassen said. "I had a more executive turn of mind."

The state executive mansion has always been an advantageous springboard to the White House, and Stassen made his bid in 1948.

"It was a fairly major race," he recalls. "I won some primaries — in Wisconsin and Nebraska, for example."

But Stassen was five years out of public office and no president or vice president of the United States had ever come from Minnesota. Thomas E. Dewey was nominated.

After losing the nomination in 1948, Stassen moved to Philadelphia, to become president of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1953, President Eisenhower appointed him director of foreign operations, and, later, a U.S. representative in international disarmament talks.

In 1958, he lost the nomination for governor of Pennsylvania.

In 1959, he tried to win election as mayor of Philadelphia, but lost to Democrat Richardson Dilworth.

"This time I'm making a serious bid for the nomination," he says, "within the framework of a constructive impact on policy. Realistically, 1964 is an unusual situation. Seven or eight names are being considered and none has a strong chance individually. The two very active candidates, (Sen. Barry) Goldwater and (Gov. Nelson A.) Rockefeller, came out of the New Hampshire primary with only 23 per cent and 20 per cent after very extensive campaigns. In that picture, it's impossible to predict what will happen. The strength of my position is that I'm the last one to become active, and I fit in the center area."

"I realize this whole approach of mine is not fully understood," he said. "People usually look at it from a normal political view, but I don't fit the pattern."

HAROLD STASSEN is both an active candidate and a citizen who wants to "stimulate action on major policies of the nation." The three-time governor of Minnesota has lost several bids for the presidential nomination but is back in the thick of battle. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Aswan Dam Project Booms Along

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

CAIRO (AP)—Two years ago the giant Aswan High Dam was in trouble. Its engineers spoke guardedly to foreigners, and Russians and Egyptians were touchy and embarrassed.

Today the vast Soviet-financed project is booming along right on schedule, its engineers pridefully awaiting the arrival of President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Soviet Premier Khrushchev for next Friday's ceremonies marking completion of the impressive first stage.

The two men will engage in formal button pressing, setting off dynamite charges allowing the ancient Nile to flow into a mile-long diversion channel.

They will stand on a special platform built over gaping entrances to six ship-sized tunnels which will eventually house the dam's great turbines, now under construction in Russia.

The tunnels, connecting two sections of a diversion channel, the channel itself and the beginning of the rockfill foundation for the dam comprise the first stage.

Started in January 1960, the work is awesomely impressive. Channels and tunnels were hewed from solid rock. The channel is a 300-foot-deep canyon set in impressive cliffs overlooking the Nile.

The site is famed for beauty. Blistering hot in summer, it is balmy in winter and long was a retreat for wealthy Europeans. In ancient times it was a holy place—the beginning of the Nile home of paramount gods and the source of life.

Fifty years ago the British built a dam here which curbed the worst of the Nile excesses but which will be a pygmy beside the new Sadd el Ali, the high dam.

Seventeen times the size of the Great Pyramid, needing 15 times the steel used in the Eiffel Tower, the structure will be 2.6 miles long and 436 feet high.

It will not be the world's tallest, nor biggest, but in overall complexity no other dam can match it.

These complexities, language difficulties, bureaucracy and the prickly sensitivity of Russians and Egyptians gave the dam monstrous teething troubles.

Khrushchev and Nasser had intervened to straighten out what threatened to become a mess. Khrushchev fired some key people, jolted Soviet bureaucracy into action and laid down top priorities. Nasser fired the minister for the dam, reorganized the work force, drafted local engineers and gave the dam top priority for hard currency.

These measures hurt a lot of feelings — for one thing they pained the Russians by bringing in Swedish drills, English trucks and other foreign equipment—but they worked.

Visitors to the dam site quickly noticed morale climb as the dam righted itself. Nowadays the quickened pace of the 25,000 Egyptians at Aswan is remarkable to those coming from the leisurely delta 430 miles downstream.

The Russians themselves—there are perhaps 3,000 including families — became notably more outgoing though they still stick mainly to their own clubs and air-conditioned housing.

The teething troubles also doubtless increased the cost of the great project though the over-all official figure still remains one billion dollars. Of this the Russians have already pledged to put up credits equivalent to $271 million—repayable at 2.5 per cent interest in 12 installments beginning with the completion of each stage.

It is highly likely that Khrushchev will learn the total cost to the Soviet citizen will be greater — and with Soviet prestige now so closely identified with the dam he can hardly back out.

Whether his propaganda benefits will equal costs is problematical.

With the first stage completed Egypt will feel immediate benefits. With the waters already being backed up, a beginning is being made on irrigation projects which will bring an extra million acres of cultivable land to Egypt's 27 million people.

A start on a power station is due next year and the first third of the electric power will be available sometime in 1967, eventually doubling Egypt's present electric power.

The dam and power stations are scheduled to be finished by 1970 but it will take several more years to fill the 367-mile-long lake which will almost completely submerge the 5,000-year-old land of Nubia.

In this area, the dam is causing troubles of its own. Since work began at Aswan, international teams of archeologists have been swarming through the Nubian Valley in a last minute effort to save countless ruins and temples, large and small.

The greatest of these is at Abu Simbel, where a German firm is working on a project to carve the great temples into blocks and rebuild them on higher ground.

The internationally financed project is now being threatened because the U.S. House Appropriations Committee has rejected a grant of $12 million in Egyptian currency which was received in payment for American wheat sales. Total cost of the Abu Simbel project is $36 million.

About 50,000 residents of the Nubian Valley are being resettled in villages in Sudan and Egypt. The mass exodus began last winter and is about half completed.

Commonwealth To Be A Memory?

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Rather like the old woman who lived in a shoe, Britain has so many Commonwealth children she doesn't know what to do.

There's a tribe of 16 of them now. Thirteen have been born since the war. Two more are on the way this year.

The British Commonwealth is a family of nations straddling five continents and taking in 700 million people. If it carries on the way it's been going, critics say, it will become a memory.

It accommodates everyone from Australians to Zanzibaris but it no longer can afford to boast that its strength lies in diversity.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home is arranging a meeting for early July to take a long, cool look at the affairs of the family and to try to modernize some of its institutions to fit today's needs and moods.

Unfortunately for Sir Alec, his hopes of performing a Commonwealth rescue act are imperiled by a brewing storm. Southern Rhodesia, a self-governing colony where 225,000 whites rule 3.7 million Africans, wants statehood now and with it a seat at the London conference table.

The issue may dominate the longer-term, more basic problems of Commonwealth philosophy that have been penciled into the July agenda. Thus the conference might follow the 1961 and 1962 pattern—when bread-and-butter business gave way to assaults on South Africa's apartheid or racial separation policies and on Britain's plans for joining the European Common Market.

MANY THINGS

The Commonwealth is many things to many men and it's easier to say what it is not than what it is.

Pragmatic Asians, for instance, see it as a grouping of nations that exchange trading preference and share a global monetary system.

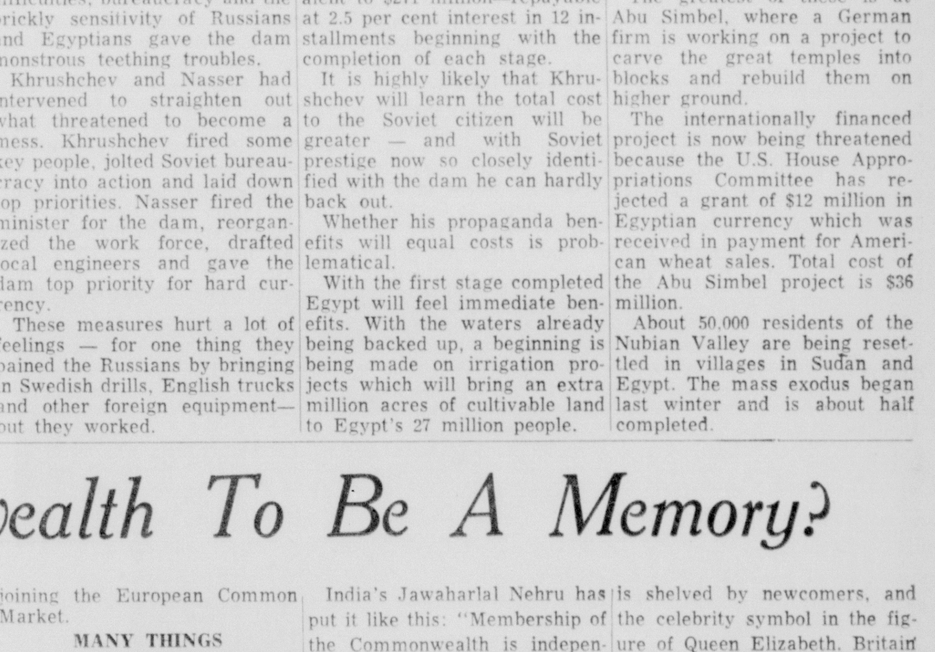

Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda once offered a loftier view: "South Africa was expelled for reasons other than trade."

India's Jawaharlal Nehru has put it like this: "Membership of the Commonwealth is independence plus."

It is a social, political and economic system consisting of many human links. These include the blood bonds of the older, white member-states like Australia, New Zealand, Canada; the shared memories of the British and their Asian partners; the maze of help-each-other agencies; the trading and sterling money network; the English language and the democratic heritage that sometimes is shelved by newcomers, and the celebrity symbol in the figure of Queen Elizabeth. Britain stands at the center of these components.

But things are not what they used to be.

The British no longer share their political or military secrets with all their partners—some of whom gaze with fascination toward the Soviet Union or Red China. There is an inner circle of the older members. There is a disdain for fellow-members who have chosen one-party systems of rule.

LINES FROM LONDON connect England with the 16 commonwealth countries comprising the "family" of the 700 million persons straddling five continents. England has so many of these children, some old, some new and some in the process of being born, that she is hard put as to what to do with them or how to handle their various whims. (AP Wirephoto)

A Think Factory?

By RICHARD WHALEN

HARMON-ON-HUDSON, N.Y. (AP)—Herman Kahn, who contends a doomsday machine could be built, now runs a "think factory" where scholars ponder and debate nuclear war.

"We think about the unthinkable," Kahn likes to say.

His staff of 25 do their thinking in sylvan seclusion high above the Hudson River at the Hudson Institute. This year it has nearly $1 million in federal contracts, mostly for advice on nuclear strategy.

Kahn, a rotund, bespectacled dynamo who speaks at breakneck speed to keep up with his thoughts, is a physicist-mathematician, turned philosopher. He's lectured at most of the major universities.

A doomsay machine, if you didn't know, is a super-nuclear bomb buried deep in the ground and powerful enough to blow up the whole world. It would be set to go off by computer under a given set of circumstances—for example, if another country destroyed the United States by atom bombing.

Kahn is opposed to doomsday machines. But seven years ago he declared it's theoretically possible to build one. His purpose: to provide a ridiculous extreme as an antidote to overly eager militarism.

"It's the best deterrent you can think of," he says, "but nobody wants one. The goal is controlled deterrence."

He says the institute aspires to operate something like a Chief Philosopher for the government.

"Our job is to think about how a president, a secretary of state, a secretary of defense would think about a probem. One difficulty is the tendency to superficiality. We have to avoid superficiality. The interdisciplinary approach helps and the fact that we're working on specific problems for government agencies, usually, that helps, too.

"What we have to do is get into one skull a lot of specialized information needed to solve the overall problem. It's not committee thinking. It's individual action with a lot of help."

The nonprofit institute, which Kahn founded in 1961, is one of the newest of a dozen independent or university-connected establishments that give advice to the government. The Rand Corp., the biggest of the lot, provides technical studies of missile systems and such.

Hudson specializes in long-range policy thinking on national security and international order.

"How would you like the year 2,000 to look?" asks Kahn. "And then what could you do or what would you be willing to do to make it come about?"

The atmosphere at the institute, 35 miles north of New York City, is much like that of a university graduate school, without classes. Secretaries type out long papers from handwritten notes. Pipe - smoking thinkers read, write and muse in their offices, which are usually jammed with periodicals, books and papers. Cryptic scribbles cover blackboards.

One such scribble said:

"Tac nuc concept-least worst . . . May not know effect of using tac nuc, but if we losing without them it can't hurt . . . BUT"

"Tac nuc" stands for tactical nuclear strategy or weapons and it was made clear the scribble was only an idea thrown out for discussion, not a policy statement.

The thinkers get together occasionally in seminars when one has an idea he wants to test. They also play "strategy games" in which the roles of nations or even continents are taken by staff members, a problem is set up and they all decide how their nations would react. The games sometimes take weeks.

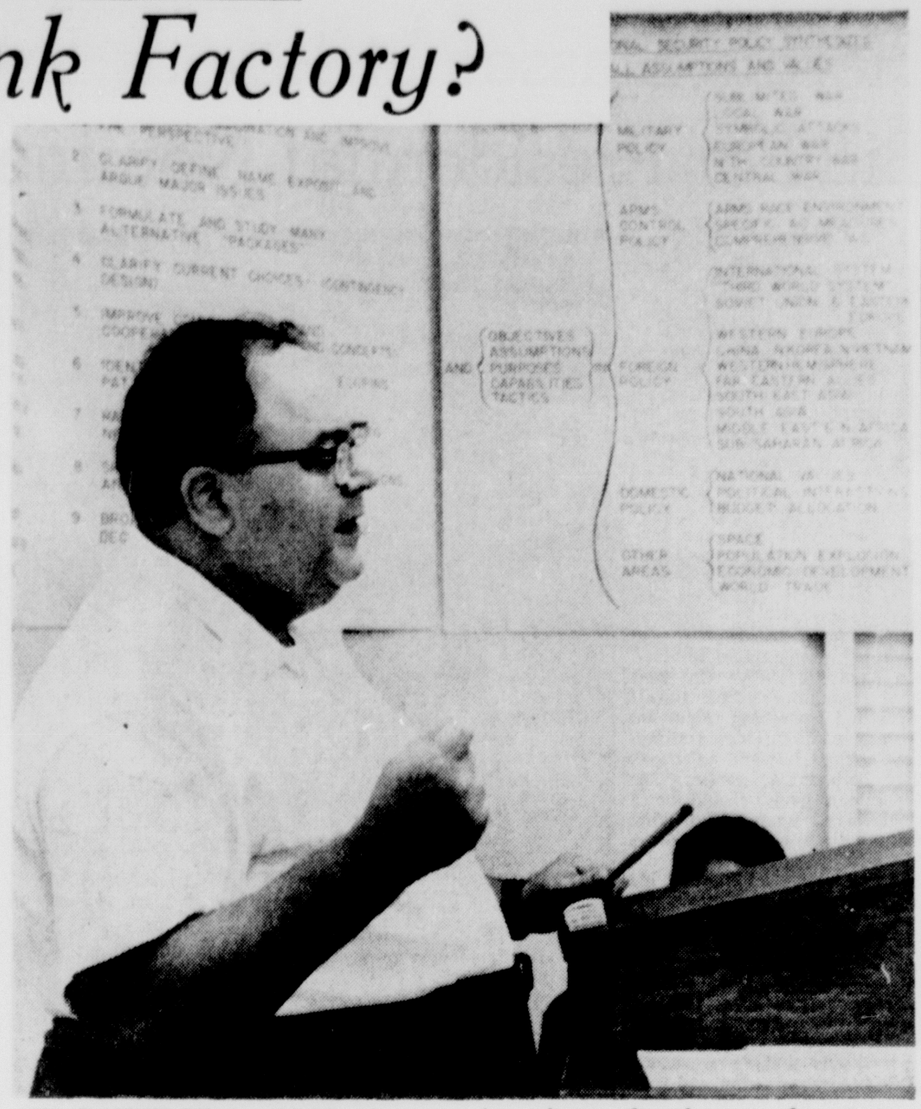

But most of the thinking is old-fashioned brainwork, done alone in an office. Outside are the lawns, trees and shrubs of the 21-acre estate.

The building was originally a mental institution, a point seldom overlooked by those who disagree with the think factory's output. It was built to look like a Tudor mansion and was primarily for rich patients. The institute has added a fully stocked bomb shelter in the basement.

The institute makes an effort to get a wide range of opinion on the spectrum from "Ban the bomb" to "Hit 'em first." Most of the staff are in the middle range.

There are political scientists, lawyers, former diplomats, mathematicians and even a French literature scholar.

The studies are done for government agencies such as the Department of Defense, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the Air Force and the Army. The end result usually is a written report and a briefing of officials in Washington.

THE RANGE OF the thinking is suggested by the lists behind Herman Kahn at his "think factory" at Harmon-on-Hudson, N.Y. Kahn and his staff of 25 at the Hudson Institute think about, debate and report on various phases of nuclear war for government agencies. Kahn says of the nonprofit institute, which he founded in 1961, "We think about the unthinkable." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

It's Safer In Space – John Glenn Convinced Orbiting Earth Better

By SAUL PETT

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — He walks slowly and uncertainly now, leaning stiffly from the hips like an old man after surgery, hands reaching for the nearest table top or chair, moving cautiously, making slow, awkward turns, as if his head were locked to his shoulders, this man whose body never failed him on a football field or in a war plane or a space capsule.

It is, we are told, a temporary condition which is improving and will disappear in time but, remembering who he is and where he has been, it is a moving sight to behold, even temporarily.

He has his moments of depression when he surveys the sudden wreckage of plans; of impatience with a body he can't count on now, this man who had seemed the eternal optimist.

But, while he is aware that people feel sorry for him, John Glenn, ex-astronaut, ex-candidate for the U.S. Senate, himself resists that temptation to slide into a bath of self pity because of his ironic accident.

"I'll be all right," he says. "Like the man said, your outlook on life can be determined by the way you look at a glass of water. Is it half empty or half full? I have to regard it as half full and tell myself it will be completely full one of these days."

One of these days is late summer or fall when Glenn hopes to be completely recovered from the bathroom accident which gave him a brain concussion, knocked him out of politics on the eve of his first campaign, and left him in debt and his plans completely uncertain, on earth or in space. Will he one day try politics again or return to the space program?

"All I'm thinking about now is being able to turn my head a few more inches without getting nauseous and dizzy," said Glenn, who flew around the earth in 90 minutes, the first American to orbit the globe.

"The whole thing is completely incongruous. I had never been in a hospital before, except for checks, never been injured. When I think of all the crazy things I've been through—all the sports, two wars, 149 combat missions, getting my plane hit 12 different times by ack-ack, all the training for the space flight, and the three orbits themselves. In all that, the worst I ever got was a knuckle skinned getting out of my Friendship Seven capsule. And now this."

With his weight back to normal after losing 17 pounds, Glenn looks pretty much like the man we remember, blue-eyed, freckled, sandy-haired, his twinkle somewhat dimmed, his humor just a bit less frequent but still there, nevertheless.

Until his recovery is complete, he is pretty much confined to home, an attractive ranch house outside of Houston. There he spends his time resting, reading of world events, trying, with the help of Annie,his wife, to catch up with thousands of letters from well-wishers.

In the months that followed his space flight of Feb. 20, 1962, he turned down many business offers, some of which would have made him a millionaire. Because of his age—now 42—it became unlikely that he might eventually take part in a moon landing. He resigned from the space program and on Jan. 17 this year announced he would run in Ohio for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

On Feb. 26, a bathroom rug slipped under him in an Ohio apartment, and Glenn fell, his head striking the tub. The concussion affected his inner ear balance.

Weeks went by and his recovery remained slow. Doctors barred active campaigning. Supporters said he might win the May 5 primary even without campaigning.

On March 30, Glenn withdrew from the Senate race. It would be unfair, he said, to ask people to vote only for a name, without knowing his views.

Suddenly thousands of John Glenn buttons and bumper stickers had nowhere to go, but a warehouse.

"I had given strict orders about not running up bills," he says, "but we still had more than we expected. Now I've got a good sized debt in Ohio, several thousand dollars. No one wants to pick up the tab for a primary campaign, especially a defunct one."

When he quit the space program, Glenn gave up $16,000 a year as his share of the sale of the astronauts' magazine rights and $2,000 a year in flight pay. He is still on the Marine Corps payroll, drawing $10,000 a year as a lieutenant colonel. Thus, the Glenn treasury faces a squeeze, what with the Ohio debt and the fact that his son, David, starts college next fall and his daughter, Lynn, a year later.

"If I ever think of going into politics again—and I'm not now—money will have to be a large factor in the decision. This can be pretty discouraging to anyone but a rich candidate."

Had he learned anything in his brief fling in politics, any illusions changed?

Glenn, whose 22 years of government service were relatively sheltered, paused in thought, frowning.

"Well, I didn't change any of my basic attitudes, about trading votes or half truths or twisted truths. I hate to see this side of politics but it seems to be the accepted method of getting elected. I'm talking generally now, but about any individual or specific race."

Had he felt comfortable in politics, this earnest new candidate who reminded some people of Mr. Smith going to Washington?

"Not exactly. Since I hadn't yet resigned from the Marine Corps—I was about to when the accident occurred — I couldn't make any political speeches. I think I would've enjoyed making my views known. But politics is a strange business. When I said I was definitely pulling out of the race, some people didn't believe me, others were hunting for a double meaning. But I meant what I said. I wasn't playing games."

Was there any connection between his injury and the hours of weightlessness he had spent in orbit, between his condition and the fact that astronaut Alan Shephard has developed similar trouble?

"Absolutely none. That's a lot of hogwash and every doctor will tell you that. Remember, I never had a bit of dizziness during or after my flight."

Glenn rose slowly and led his visitor into the den, where we saw a scale model of Friendship Seven, a globe with the three orbital tracks, the medals, the citations, the pictures—all the souvenirs of a big, warm moment in history.

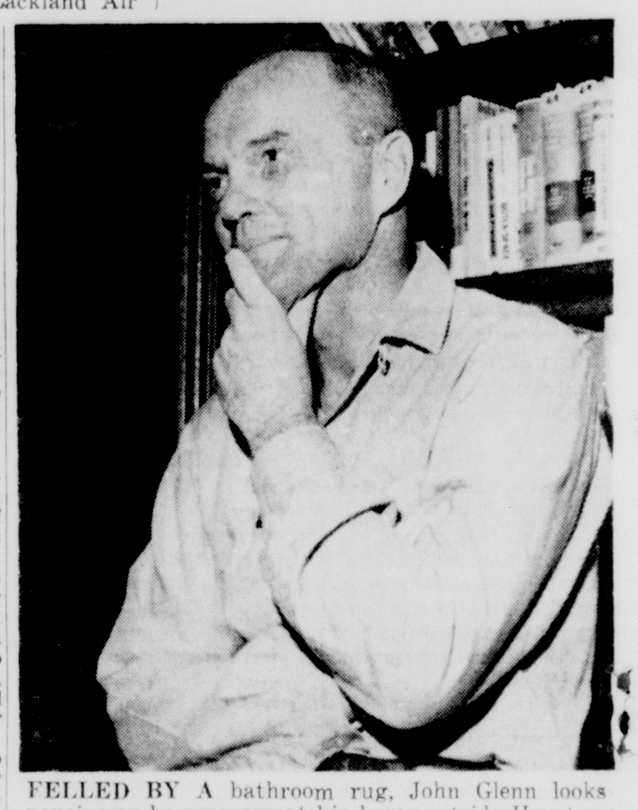

"Oh, yes," he said, "I think about that flight often—not because of my condition—I just think about it. I'd like to have a connection with the space program again and would have, even if I'd been elected to the Senate.

"Sure, I'd like to orbit again. I'd love to have that experience again but I don't think I will. It's very unlikely I'll go back to active flight training again, not because of my condition, but because there wouldn't be much point in it. The younger astronauts will be going to the moon."

The older astronaut led the way back to the living room, turned on the hi-fi set, lowered himself carefully into a chair and grinned, blue eyes glowing again. John Glenn wasn't mad at anybody or anything. He might, it seemed, even forgive that bathroom rug, in time.

EX-ASTRONAUT and now ex-candidate, John Glenn takes a back seat as his wife, Annie, talks to newsmen after Glenn's announcement that he was pulling out of the U.S. Senate primary race in Ohio, last March 30. Glenn made the announcement at a Lackland Air Force Base hospital at San Antonio, Tex. He since has moved to his home outside Houston to continue his slow, but he says sure, recovery from an inner ear balance upset caused by a bathroom accident last Feb. 26.

FELLED BY A bathroom rug, John Glenn looks pensive as he recovers at his home outside Houston, Tex. A concussion from the Feb. 26 accident upset the inner ear balance and the plans of the first American to orbit the globe. It knocked out his first political campaign, for Democratic nomination for senator from Ohio, and left Glenn facing an uncertain future. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

Agents Keep Tab On Gaming

By BILL STALL

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—The shiny red plastic dice gambol down the green felt, past the stacked chips and silver dollars, and bound to a stop against the end of the craps table.

Necks crane.

The dealer drones, "Hard eight. Eight's the point."

The shooter whispers to the cubes and tosses again.

Two men walk up to the craps table and introduce themselves to the "pit boss" in charge. They show cards identifying them as agents of the Nevada Gaming Control Board.

It's no swooping raid. The agents wait courteously until the game in progress ends. The dealer, "the man in the box," scoops up the dice and drops them in a manila envelope. The game resumes with a new pair of dice. Many of the customers aren't aware what's happening.

The process is repeated at two nearby blackjack tables, where decks of cards are picked up. The agents leave.

The agents may make a dozen pickups in one evening. They take the envelopes, tucked away in a black satchel, back to their third floor offices in a modern state building at Carson City.

There, Thomas Hill, 43, chief of enforcement for the control board, checks each pair of dice and deck of cards to make sure they are "square," not fixed in any way to change the odds.

Many gaming board officials are former law officers, several with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. But Hill's credentials are 10 years as a dealer and supervisor in Reno casinos. He knows the game inside out.

"It takes guts to cheat," Hill says. "There are a few rotten apples. There's bound to be, particularly the way this industry is growing.

During 1960-1963, Nevada gaming agents conducted card and dice pickups on 90 different days and nights, made 15,728 casino observations, and inspected 5,612 slot machines. But the board doesn't consider cheating a major problem.

When Hill goes through the cards and dice after a pickup, he rarely finds something wrong. However, Nevada thinks it's worth the trouble to assure customers they are getting a square deal.

Cheating, when it does occur, is most likely found at the small, out-of-the-way casino. The large clubs have a big bankroll and reputation to protect, gaming authorities say.

A main concern of gaming agents is the cheating dealer, known as a mechanic, deuce dealer or fireman (he's supposed to put out the fire if a player has a hot streak).

Hill brought out a deck of cards and dealt some hands at an ancient 21 table, the only furnishing in the modern office that hints at the role of this unique state agency.

He demonstrated how a mechanic can peek at the next card on the deck and "deal seconds" if he wants to bypass the top card.

Dealing seconds isn't a sure thing, Hill points out.

"The dealer might go busted, but he's got the edge."

The gaming board's main weapon against mechanics is the undercover agent. This is someone with a keen knowledge of gambling, who poses as a player.

If an agent spots a dealer he thinks is cheating, the board doesn't immediately lock up the club. Hill sends in another agent to observe the suspected game, but doesn't tell the agent what to look for.

Observation after observation is made, often fruitlessly. "It may take three months or longer," Hill says, "before we can be sure."

If the board is convinced there is cheating, it can seek an emergency order closing the casino. The club has a chance to answer the charge and present its case at a hearing.

The customer isn't the only one who can be cheated, however. Clubs lose thousands each year to "outsiders" or "crossroaders," hit and run cheaters who prey on the house.

"The club loses 100 per cent and the state loses 5, maybe 5½ per cent in taxes to the crossroader," Hill says.

Hill gets sacks of mail each year from customers who were sure they were cheated. He checks out each letter as thoroughly as possible. Some are legitimate. Many are from cranks.

THE EYE WHICH Thomas Hill keeps on gambling in Nevada was made keen by 10 years as a dealer and supervisor in Reno casinos. He is chief of enforcement for the Nevada Gaming Control Board, whose agents make frequent checks to stop any cheating. Here Hill deals a demonstration hand to employes of the board on an ancient 21 table in the board's office in Carson City. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

HOW A CHEATING card dealer, called a "mechanic," works is demonstrated by Thomas Hill, a former dealer who is the Nevada Gaming Control Board's enforcement chief, at the board office in Carson City. For a look at his hold card, a legitimate move, he uses his left hand. At the same time, his right thumb pulls down the corner of the next card up on the deck. The action is exaggerated for the demonstration. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

MUCH PHOTOGRAPHED Gina Lollobrigida now is taking pictures herself. In 1962, she focused a telephoto lens on a subject during a break in shooting of the picture "Vernere Imperiale" in which she played Napoleon's sister.

TOKYO (AP) — Gina Lollobrigida, one of the world's most photographed women is turning professional picturetaker herself. Regarded as a fine amateur photographer, Miss Lollobrigida said she has decided to enter the pro ranks to give her photos added prestige.

"From now on I will get paid," Gina told The Associated Press. "They will not respect me as a photographer any more if I dont' get money."

"I think I should get even a little bit, just for the principle," Miss Lollobrigida added.

PUBLISHED WORKS

Gina's photographic works have appeared in Paris Match and many other publications.

The diminutive film star with the celebrated hourglass figure was in Tokyo helping to promote an Italian film festival.

Miss Lollobrigida hastened to note that her new profession will not interfere with her movie career.

"My chance for photography usually comes when I'm working and have to wait for my scenes," she said. "It's a good way of relaxation for me. When I get sometimes nervous, if I do pictures, I'm relaxed.

"I like to photograph people," Gina continued. "I shoot the other actors and the workers. I like people because there is a reality if you catch the right moment."

Miss Lollobrigida started taking pictures in earnest when she was in Spain on location for "Solomon and Sheba." Having studied at Rome's Academia de Belle Arte before becoming an actress, she took easily to photography.

"It is for me like doing paintings because I know the composition," Gina explained. "I can imagine the pictures."

Taught by some of the world's best, including David Seymour and the late combat photographer Robert Capa, Miss Lollobrigida became an expert with a camera. Two years ago, attending a Russian film festival in Moscow, Gina took a series of pictures that made a lay out in an Italian magazine.

She is especially proud of a closeup of Yuri Gagarin, the pioneer space man.

"He has the most wonderful smile," Gina noted. "But I don't know if the smile was for the camera or for me."

Although Philippe Halsman has called her the most photogenic woman in the world, Miss Lollobrigida is not generally satisfied with pictures of her.

"It's very difficult," she said, "When you are photographing a man, you can do a character portrait and it's always good. But with a woman, she must be beautiful. So the lights must be good. I'm not very technical, but I understand the lights," Gina expounded. "Often even when the picture has character, it's not good for the woman.

AMUSEMENTS

CURTAIN CALL

"My Fair Lady" will be given at Strauss Playhouse this summer. The hit musical is scheduled to open Friday, July 24, and run through Sunday, August 2. In addition to nightly performances at 8:15, there will be one matinee on Sunday, July 26, at 2:30 p.m.

Admission to "My Fair Lady" will be on the basis of a special summer membership at $3.75 for adults and $2.50 for full time students. Owing to the extraordinary costs involved for sets, costumes and royalties, the board found it impossible to include this show within the membership charges for a normal winter season.

Applications for summer membership to see "My Fair Lady" may be made to Box 868, Monroe, beginning at once. The mailing that members should receive shortly covering advance reservations for "Take Her, She's Mine," also has an application blank that can be submitted for "My Fair Lady." No membership cards will be issued for the summer, but all names will be on file at Little Theatre so that seat reservations may be made against them.

MEMBERSHIPS LIMITED

Summer memberships will be limited to the capacity of Strauss Playhouse for the scheduled run, so even if you do not know this far in advance which performance of "My Fair Lady" you wish to attend, we suggest applying now and reserving your seats later. But if you have a specific night in mind, you may make reservations at once by mail or during the box office hours for "Take Her' She's Mine."

With all the fanfare for this sensational musical, let us not overlook the delightful comedy that closes the winter season. "Take Her, She's Mine" opens Friday, May 22, and will run Saturday and Sunday, 23 and 24. After a three-day interruptions, it will reopen for four more nights from Thursday, May 28, though Sunday, May 31. The box office will be open between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. May 20-24 and again May 27-31.

NEW DIRECTORS

At the annual meeting last Monday, the members elected five new directors for three year terms. They are Mrs. Thomas W. Davenport, Mrs. Carl H. McHenry, Mrs. Felix J. Willey, Scherck Bogen, and Tom Henry. Three of these have had associations with Little Theatre extending over many years.

Eula Davenport has been an outstanding actress, from "A Doll's House" down to this season's productions of "Auntie Mame," and "The Glass Menagerie." She has served on the board in the past and her late husband was president in 1941-42.

Frances McHenry and Little Theatre are almost synonymous. She has twice served as president in the course of many terms on the board. She is a member of the building and finance committee that understood the construction of Strauss Playhouse. Her talents have been given freely to play reading and hospitality.

Scherck Bogen appeared in his first Little Theatre play in 1936 and has taken part in 10 altogether. He also has served on the board many times and helped with box office, play reading, and casting.

While Velma Willey and Tom Henry will be joining the board for the first time, they have served Little Theatre in various ways. Velma has been rehearsal pianist for the last two musicals and also played with the college orchestra during the run. Tom is a regular on box office and, with his brother "Bud," was a mainstay of the building project. He is completing a term as trustee.

We had a lapse of memory last week in saying that members would elect new trustees at the annual meeting. The bylaws provide for directors to elect trustees following the annual meeting.

We are indebted to Mrs. R. W. Guelzow for the gift of some costumes to add to our wardrobe. And thanks to Marillyn Taylor for a handsome fur stole.

OLD VIC ON THE AVENIDA JUAREZ— SOLD OUT!

"To be or not to be . . ." "Ser o no ser . . ." Hamlet, translated into Spanish, was a recent standing-room-only success in Mexico City, as were plays by Molière and Tennessee Williams.

At various times, the Old Vic and U.S. Actors' Studio have played to packed houses.

And in the plazas of Guanajuato, classic Spanish dramas are presented during a yearly festival.

Original Mexican drama and musical comedies, sidewalk art exhibits, performances or the corps of ballet—Mexican cultural fare is as richly varied as the cuisine at its famous international restaurants.

In the many galleries filled with vital modern art . . . in a concert of the National Symphony at the Palace de Belles Artes . . . in the historic dances performed by the international award winning Ballet Folklorico Nacional . . . throughout Mexico are elements of the two great traditions which Mexicans have blended into their modern national culture—the learned Maya-Aztec and the European, strong with Renaissance spirit.

Knowledge of our modern neighbor is important today. Send for the free 16-page booklet, "Know Mexico," Box 1900, New York 19.

Presented in the Interest of international goodwill through the cooperation of The Advertising Council, the Consejo Nacional de la Publicidad, and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

ACTION CONCLUDES TODAY

Jacobs, Casper Share Lead In Colonial Meet

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Young Tommy Jacobs and Bill Casper took rare liberties with the treacherous Colonial course Saturday and shared the 54-hole lead in the national Invitation golf tournament.

Jacobs could have seized the lead outright, but he bogeyed the final hole when a putt slid to the lip of the cup and refused to drop.

The 29-year-old California sharpshooter circled the par 70 layout in rounds of 69 and 71 for a total of 209. Casper, admitting that his putter performed miracles, shot a 67 and a 70.

The 36-hole scramble was ordered Saturday after a thunderstorm washed out Friday's round.

Former U.S. open Champion Gene Littler closed with a 68 after a 71 in the morning. His 210 total was just one stroke away from the leaders.

Jacobs said he overshot the final green and then a single blade of grass prevented his 10-foot putt from falling into the cup.

"It trickled up the hill and went right up to the hole," said Jacobs, who finished here a year ago with a 310 total.

Gary Player, the South African who held the lead after 18 holes, lost his touch in the afternoon and stumbled to a 74. It left him trailing by four strokes at 213.

Casper was jubilant about his putting. He needed only 56 putts for the two rounds, part of which was due to a 50-yard chip-in on the third hole.

"I can't play this game at all," Casper grinned. "All I can do is putt."

Except for a collapse Thursday he would have a comfortable lead. He finished with two bogeys and a double bogey for a 72.

Near the leaders were Art Wall Jr. and George Knudson at 214. One stroke back were Mason Rudolph, Kel Nagle, Billy Maxwell, Gay Brewer and Arnold Palmer.

Palmer broke par for the first time Saturday afternoon, carding a 69 after earlier rounds of 75 and 71.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 72 and a 71 Saturday and was 10 shots out of the lead.

SAYS GHANA BOARD

Ramos Wins, But Bout May 'Go Out'

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—Featherweight champion Sugar Ramos survived a 13th round knockdown and was awarded a wildly-hooted split decision over Ghanaian Floyd Robertson Saturday night, but the Ghana Boxing Board ruled it may declare the 15-round title bout "no contest."

The announcement of the possible action by the board was made by the Ghana News Agency. The agency said the board is likely to throw out the result. If such a ruling was made, Ramos would retain his title.

The action came after an angry crowd of natives bolted into the ring and stormed around the platform demanding the decision be reversed after the champion was declared the winner.

Ramos was dropped for a six-count in the 13th and was warned three times for low punching.

Ramos, a Cuban exile, came in at 125¾ pounds, just under the 126 pound limit for the third defense of the title he won from Davey Moore. Robertson, shooting for Ghana's first world championship, weighed 124.

A crowd estimated by British promoter Jack Solomons at 30,000 jammed into the outdoor Black Star Stadium and loudly disputed the decision.

Some bolted into the ring at the close of the fight. Many other surged arond the platform, demanding that Ghana boxing officials reverse the decision and shouting:

"Dirty American officials."

Ramos was dropped with a straight right in the 13th and the count reached six when the bell sounded.

English referee Jack Hart scored for Robertson while judges Ed Lassman of Miami, president of the World Boxing Association, and Ramon Velaquez of Mexico City had Ramos the winner.

Chicago Romps By Colts, 9-1 After Big First

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Cubs batted around in a seven-run first inning, enabling lefty Dick Ellsworth to coast to a 9-1 triumph over the Houston Colts Saturday.

The Cubs' booming start included a two-run homer by Billy Cowan off Joe Hoerner, who had replaced starter and loser, Ken Johnson.

After Andre Rodgers' leadoff homer in the third, the Cubs were handcuffed by Hoerner and Larry Yellen.

Ellsworth yielded six hits and lost a shutout bid in the fifth when Bob Lillis singled home Al Spangler from third.

Chicago's assault on Johnson was capped by Ernie Banks' two-run double with the bases loaded.

That brought in Hoerner, who was nicked for a sacrifice fly, Dick Bertell's single and Cowan's homer.

Kevin Trower Joins Sports Staff At LSU

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Kevin Trower, who led Jesuit High of New Orleans to the state high school basketball championship this year, was named to the Louisiana State University coaching staff Saturday.

Trower, voted AAA coach of the year, will join LSU in September as an assistant basketball coach and freshman baseball coach. He intends to work toward a doctorate in education.

In five years at Jesuit, Trower coached a national championship American Legion baseball team in 1960 and state championship baseball teams in 1961-62.

Trower, 30, served two years as assistant basektball coach at Loyola, where he got a bachelor degree in 1957 and a master's degree in 1960.

Gary Pappas Wins Twin-Cities Award

Gary Pappas from Neville took the outstanding athlete-of-the-year award at the annual Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce all-Twin City banquet held at the Paragon Club Saturday night.

Pappas, who excels in many sports, also took the outstanding track man presentation. Pappas is a senior and was a star Neville halfback on the Tiger football team.

The football presentation went to David Jones from West Monroe. Jones was an all-district, all-state end for the Rebels last fall and has signed with Louisiana State University on a full scholarship.

Malcolm Smith, a two-year all-state center, took the best basketball player award. Smith made the all-tournament team at the "Top-Twenty" state tournament and has signed a grant-in-aid with La. Tech.

Ray Alexander, the only junior to receive an award, took the outstanding athlete in baseball presentation. Alexander is the fire-balling righthander on the West Monroe squad that is in the semi-finals of the state championship playoffs.

The highlight of the evening was a speech given by Neville athletic director Bill Ruple. Ruple spoke on the values of athletics in their importance in the school program. Ruple also talked on the difference in the sports of when he went to school and the modern day sports now.

Hoyt Moncrief, president of the La. Football Officials Association, made the presentation to Pappas.

The project of the banquet was considered a success by Jaycee president, Jack Murphy.

The banquet was ably handled by Kirby DesOrmaux and was assisted by Rex Carter.

Approximately 130 people were in attendance at the affair.

Lock's Home Run In Tenth Inning Beats Bosox, 5-4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don Lock slammed a home run in the 10th inning Saturday, giving Washington a 5-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Lock's lead off home run against Bob Heffner sailed into the bullpen in left field.

Washington, which took an early 3-0 lead, tied the game in the seventh on Chuck Hinton's fourth home run of the season.

The Red Sox scored in the fourth on two singles and two walks, then erupted for three runs in the fifth.Frank Malzone cracked a homer following Ed Bressoud's double, and Tony Conigliaro doubled home Lu Clinton, who singled.

Singles by Jim King, Bill Skowron and Lock, a walk and a double play scored two runs for the Senators in the second. Hinton knocked in the Senators' third run with a single in the third.

MANTLE GETS ONE

Home Runs Take Yankees To Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four home runs, including two in the first inning by Tony Kubek and Mickey Mantle, powered the New York Yankees to a 6-2 victory over Cleveland Saturday.

Joe Pepitone led off the fifth inning with a home run, and Hector Lopez connected following Bobby Richardson's single in the sixth.

The American League champs had hit only nine homers in 17 previous games. All four Saturday were off Pedro Ramos.

Joe Azcue hit a homer for the Indians in the eighth.

It was the fourth homer this year for Mantle and his second in as many days against Cleveland pitching.

Yankee southpaw Whitey Ford got credit for the victory, scattering seven singles and a double over six innings.

The Indians managed to scrape up one run off Ford in the 6th when Ramos singled, Dick Howser walked and Leon Wagner cracked a single to right.

Long Breaks World Record For Shot Putt

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Dallas Long obliterated his own world's shot put record Saturday night with a mammoth heave of 66 feet 7½ inches on his second effort at the West Coast Relays.

Moments before, Darrel Newman of Fresno State blazed 100 yards in 9.2 seconds, equalling the listed world's mark.

Long, who set the previous world heft of 65-11½ five weeks ago, put 65-3 on his first effort and then exploded with what the 11,000 fans immediately knew was a record.

The former University of Southern California star had almost skipped the meet because of a foot bruise suffered when he dropped a weight two weeks ago.

Two watches caught Newman in 9.2 and a third registered 9.1 as the wind-up session of the meet got off to a brilliant start in calm, warm, clear weather.

Frank Budd set the 9.2 record in 1961 and it has been equalled by Harry Jerome. Last year's 9.1 clocking by Bob Hayes of Florida A&M has not yet been approved because he ran on an asphalt track.

Newman will have no trouble in that regard because Ratcliff Stadium is a clay track. The wind was a legal 3.2 miles an hour.

Moments before Newman's record run, Travis Williams of Contra Costa, Calif., Junior College set a national JC spring record of 9.3 and Friday night at the meet's opening session, James Hines of Oakland, Calif., equalled the high school mark of 9.4.

Saturday's afternoon program was highlighted by Frank Covelli's final-throw javelin victory at 261-3.

His voctory came in one of four major afternoon events. The rest of the final day program was run at night.

Lane Takes KO Win Over Steyn

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, (AP)—Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., No. 1 contender for the world lightweight boxing title, stopped South African champion Stoffel Steyn in the ninth round of their scheduled 10 round bout here Saturday.

Coming off the canvas after a count of eight in the first round, Lane completely outboxed his 22-year-old opponent.

Lane put on pressure in the third round and by the eighth round the South African's face was a bloody mess.

Tennessee Wins Meet At LSU

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Tennessee won 11 events Saturday to beat Louisiana State 87½ to 57½ in a dual track meet.

The victory established Tennessee as a favorite in next Saturday's Southeastern Conference track championships at Lexington, Ky.

Tennessee's Jim Webster and Don Pinkston each won two events. Webster ran 100 yards in :09.8 and the 220 in :21.2. Pinkston did the mile in 4:20.1 and the two-mile in 9:41.5.

Tigers Homers Power 7-5 Win Over Tulane

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Home run power boosted Louisiana State to a 7-5 victory over Tulane in the first game of a Southeastern Conference doubleheader Saturday. The nightcap was canceled because of rain.

Gene Achord opened LSU's scoring with a first inning solo homer and wound up the scoring with another solo blast in the seventh. Bob Stewart had a two-run homer in the second.

LSU won the game in the fourth inning. After Dick Haydell and Newton Thomas singled, Pat Screen walked. Joe Moock drove in Haydell and Thomas with a single. Pat Screen then came home during a triple steal with what proved to be the winning run.

Tulane rallied for two runs in the seventh inning and had the bases loaded when Dennis Malpass flied out to end the game.

LSU finished the season with a 5-7 mark in the SEC and 11-11 over-all. Tulane wound up 4-10 in the conference and 12-13 for the year.

Tech Surprises For Second Spot

By EDGAR COLTHARP
World Sports Writer

LAFAYETTE—Northeast State's track machine swept to its third straight Gulf States Conference cinder win here Saturday night, and in the process won its second consecutive All-Sports Trophy.

The depth-laden Indians won five of the 17 events and scored at least three points in everything but the shot put to nail down their fifth league title in the past six years.

Northeast got 85½ points to 42½ for surprise runnerup Louisiana Tech.

Northwestern State had 41½, McNeese 41, USL 38½ and Southeastern 36.

The Indians' star hurdler Roger Morgan injured his left foot as he hit the next to last hurdle in the 120 yard highs, stumbled into the next lane and was disqualified. He did not participate in the 330 yard immediate hurdle race.

Morgan was expected to lower the conference standard in the highs and establish a record in the immediate hurdle race which is a new event this year. His 13.7 clocking in the highs is the fastest in the nation by a college athlete this spring.

Northeast freshman, Roger Mann picked up the slack in the 120 highs and won the event with a 14.3. Tech's Allen Carpenter was second with 14.4. Fred Vogel and Dalton LeBlanc, two more Indian hurdlers, copped fourth and fifth in the race.

Two old GSC marks were bettered and records established in two new events.

Southeastern's Mike Reid posted a 20.7 in the 220 yard dash to break the old straightaway mark of 21 flat held by Brue Lenoir of Tech set in 1955. The 220 record was the oldest on the books.

Northeast's Gary Walker pushed the discus standard to 162-9, bettering the old mark of 157-6 held by another Indian Hoy Rogers set in 1960. Walker's win was an upset as Tech's duo of Jim Goodwin and freshman Tim Hall were expected to battle it out for the top spot. They finished second and third respectively.

Doug Constant of Northeast triple - jumped 48-4¼ to take first place in the other new conference events. Constant's leap is believed to the best in NAIA competition this spring.

Along with winners Mann, Constant and Walker, Ronnie Fountain took top honors in the 100 yard dash with a 9.6 clocking and West Monroe's Cline Averett won the 440 yard dash in 48.8.

Averett was pegged to battled with teammate John Baker in the one lap race, but Baker aggravated an old leg injury in the preliminaries and was forced to withdraw.

The Tribe placed second in both relay races as Southeastern took the 440 in 41.4 and McNeese won by a step in the mile relay with a 3:14.9.

In the short baton race Northeast anchor man Ronnie Fountain ran a spectacular leg to move from fourth place to a close second. He lost by only inches.

At the mile distance, Fountain led off and finished in a dead heat with McNeese's Art Garcia in a 48.5 first lap. The Tribe was two steps back at the 880 mark, but Averett gained a one-step advantage at the end of three laps. Constant waged a torrid battle with McNeese's Byron Nelson with Nelson overtaking the Tribe runner to win by a stride.

Northwestern's Jerry Johnson took first place in the pole vault at 14-6 on fewer misses over Northeast's Ronnie Overby. Paul Hobgood, also of Northeast, finished third with a 14-0 vault. Johnson and Overby both took a crack at the 15-0 mark, each turning in one near miss in three tries.

Malcolm Robinson, Southwestern's ace distance man, pulled up lame in the mile and Northwestern's Ray Hale won the race in 4:12.3. Robinson came back in the two mile run and waged a seven lap dual with teammate Mickey Sullivan before pulling away to a 25 yard win in the final lap. The Englishman withdrew from the mile when he injured the Achilles tendon on his left foot. It apparently gave him little trouble at the two mile distance.

When asked about Morgan's condition, Northeast track coach Bob Groseclose said, "There is little or no swelling in his foot so early fears of a broken bone are unjustified. We feel like it is just a bad bruise."

Morgan is slated to enter the Coliseum Relays in Los Angeles, Calif. on May 15, and the California Relays at Modesto, Calif., May 23, but this injury could force his withdrawal.

Nancy Roth Wins Ladies' Amateur Crown Saturday

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP)—Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla., utilizing "the most consistently good putting I've ever done," won the Southern Women's Amateur Golf Championship Saturday by defeating housewife Paulette Lee 7 and 5.

The sandy-haired 25-year-old was six over par 79 when Mrs. Lee, of Coral Gables, Fla., lost on the 31st hole.

Miss Roth said she was "very tired but very happy." She has competed in four tournaments in the last month and was eliminated in the semifinals of both the North-South and the Trans-Miss. championships.

"But this one was the hardest," she said. "When I saw the brackets last Tuesday for match play, I felt like forgetting the whole tournament. These were the toughest pairings I've ever seen."

She downed archrival Tish Preuss of Pompano Beach 2 and 1 and fast rising newcomer Barbara Faye White of Shreveport, La., 1 up to get to the finals. This was her sixth tournament this year. Her only other win was the Doherty in January, also played on this 6,256 yard Coral Ridge Club course.

Miss Roth was three up at the end of the morning 18-holes. She increased her advantage to four up after 27 holes, parred 28 and 30, then hit her third shot to the 31st hole seven feet from the pin.

Mrs. Lee, two of her four you children watching, was over the 31st green in three, chipped back strong past the cup and conceded.

Ted Kroll, winner of the 1962 Canadian Open, became a golf pro in 1937 just before his 18th birthday.

KOUFAX LOSES

San Francisco Stops Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco, held hitless by Sandy Koufax through four innings rallied for three runs in the fifth inning and beat Los Angeles 3-2 Saturday.

Jose Pagan, Jesus Alou and Willie Mays each drove in a run during the uprising. Mays belted a double and ran his hitting streak to 16 straight games.

Bob Hendley won the battle of southpaw pitchers, squaring his record at 2-2 although he served home run pitches to Tommy Davis in the third inning and Frank Howard in the eighth. It was Howard's seventh homer off Hendley in his last 11 appearances against the left hander.

The victory before a full house of 42,316 in Candlestick Park kept the Giants in the National League lead by one game over Philadelphia.

Jimmy Davenport singled to lead off the fifth, reached third on Del Crandall's single and scored on a sacrifice fly that second baseman Dick Tracewski ran back to grab. Alou singled home a run and another scored on Mays' ground rule double.

Koufax, in his second start since recovering from an elbow injury, worked six innings and gave up four hits before being lifted for a pinch hitter.

Hendley allowed only five Dodger hits, struck out 12 and walked seven.

RECRUITING PRACTICES

Texas, SMU Are Placed On Probation By League

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Texas, the nation's collegiate football king, and Southern Methodist were placed on probation Saturday by the Southwest Conference for violations of recruiting rules.

In the case of Texas, there was little pain since the school won't have to forego post-season play, but for Southern Methodist, it was a deep and bitter blow.

Southern Methodist was put on probation for two years and can not participate in bowl games. It can, however, compete for the Southwest Conference championship.

Texas and Southern Methodist were two of four schools penalized for recruiting violations as the conference ended one of its stormiest meetings in history. A record number of complaints had been filed by the schools against each other.

Baylor and Texas Tech were reprimanded for exceeding the limit of two visits to prospective athletes, but there was no curtailment of either's athletic activities.

Two other cases were left hanging because they were not completed in time for submission at this meeting and will be handled in December.

This also may not be the end of the conference's troubles. The NCAA may step in and impose stiffer penalties.

Southern Methodist was penalized for violating the rule prohibiting excessive financial inducements to athletes, financial aid to athletes already in school and the offer of financial aid to prospective athletes beyond what is permitted.

The athletes were not identified by Howard Grubbs, secretary of the conference who announced the actions of the faculty committee, governing body of the conference, that met for 15½ hours over a three-day period.

They reportedly were Jim Helms of San Benito and Randy Behringer of Waco, whom Southern Methodist attempted to recruit but who went to Texas and Baylor, respectively. They will be sophomores next fall.

The charge against Southern Methodist reportedly involved the offer of an automobile by an alumnus to an athlete.

Coach Athletic Director Darrell Royal of Texas said the charges against his school, which consisted of an alumnus not accompanying a prospective athletes to the campus and excessive entertainment, were inadvertent.

"Any time as large an organization as we have and as complicated as it gets, you can be certain it may get out of step a little," he said. "We knew of the incidents and we have already made corrections."

The conference made the probation against Texas indefinite. The school must show at the May, 1965, meeting evidence of a satisfactory revision in its procedures and practices. This obviously means that the probation won't last more than a year.

TWO RBI'S EACH

Boyer, Groat Lead St. Louis By Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Boyer and Dick Groat drove in two runs each as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the New York Mets 5-1 Saturday.

Boyer hit his fourth home run in the fourth inning and capped a four-run seventh with a run-scoring single. Groat singled home two runs in the inning.

Bob Gibson, winning his third game in three decisions,scattered eight hits, struck out seven and walked two. He lost his shutout when Jesse Gonder homered in the eighth.

Bill Wakefield's wildness led to the Cardinals' big seventh. The young Met reliever walked Johnny Lewis, Gibson and pinch hitter Doug Clemens, filling the bases with one out. Ed Bauta replaced Wakefield and was greeted by Groat's single to center, which scored Lewis and Gibson.

Bill White's second double of the game drove home another run before Boyer singled to right for his third hit.

The Mets put runners at second and third with none out in the sixth but failed to score. George Altman singled and went to third as Gonder reached second on Gibson's two-base throwing error. The Cardinals' right-hander then retired the next three batters.

Vernon Law Gets 1st Win Of Campaign

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vernon Law, backed by lusty hitting, pitched a nifty five-hitter against Milwaukee Saturday for his first victory of the season as Pittsburgh downed the Braves 10-0.

Law, who is attempting a comeback this season after being voluntarily retired part of last year, allowed only a double to Lee Maye and four singles.

The big right-hander, who has lost twice, collected two singles himself.

The Pirates exploded for five runs in the opening inning. Willie Stargell drove in two with a bloop double and Bill Mazeroski added a two-run homer.

Stargell drove in another pair of runs in the seventh inning with a bases-loaded single.

Pittsburgh loaded the bases for the third time in the game in the eighth inning and scored two more runs on a double by Manny Mota. Mota also drove in a run in the sixth with a single.

ROME INTERNATIONAL MEET

Cliff Richey Nearly Pulls Off Upset Against Osuna

ROME (AP) — Schoolboy Cliff Richey of Dallas won the first two seats and led 4-1 in the third before dropping a controversial five-set match to Mexico's top-seeded Rafael Osuna Saturday in the Rome international tennis tournament.

"They rooked me out of the match," the fiery, 17-year-old American junior champion said after bowing in the fourth round 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3. He protested an umpire's call in the eighth game of the final set.

The only other remaining American in the singles competition, Roger Werksman of Los Angeles, also was eliminated. He lost to Jan Erik Lundquist of Sweden, fourth seeded, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3. Lundquist, like Osuna, entered the men's quarter-finals.

The stocky, hard-hitting Richey, unseeded, won the first two sets easily from Osuna, holder of the U.S. national title, and ran up a 4-1 lead in the third.

He appeared to have the tournament's major upset in the making when the quick, fox-like Osuna suddenly found his volleying touch and ran out five games in a row to salvage the set.

The Mexican Davis Cup ace also won the fourth set and went into a 4-3 lead in the fifth. In the bitterly fought eighth game, Richey got to advantage and hit a blazing shot down the sideline which he thought gave him the game and knotted the set at 4-4.

The umpire, however, called "out." The crowd howled objections. The angered Richey stormed to the umpire's chair in protest and demanded the umpire's removal.

The tournament referee, after consulting organizers, changed umpires but did not reverse the line call. Richey lost the final two games and the match.

Osuna acknowledged later that the umpire may have made a bad call but he said, "At least three of my shots were called out when they weren't."

Fred Stolle of Australia and Sergio Tacchini of Italy joined Osuna and Lundquist in the quarter-finals. Stolle beat Pierre Barthes of France 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 8-6 and Tacchini won over Ingo Buding of Germany 2-6, 7-5, 0-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Three Americans lost in mixed doubles. Linda Crosby of Arcadia, Calif., and Iyo Piment of Venezuela lost to Deidre Catt and Graham Stilwell of Britain 6-3, 6-2. Carole Ann Prosen of Orlando, Fla., and Nicolas Kalogeropoulos of Greece bowed to Madonna Schacht and Martin Mulligan of Australia 6-2, 2-6, 6-1. Mary Habicht, an American living in Athens, and Jaime Pinto Bravo of Chile lost to Robin Ebbern and Bob Hewitt of Australia 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Allison Propels Minnesota Past Athletics, 10-8

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bob Allison laced a three-run double into the left field corner, carrying Minnesota past Kansas City 10-8 Saturday in a homer-hitting contest.

Allison's double came after the Twins, trailing 7-6, loaded the bases on two walks sandwiched around Wayne Causey's two-base error on Tony Oliva's grounder. Allison, who also hit a home run in the fourth, scored on Earl Battey's single.

The Athletics had built up their lead on Wayne Causey's home run in the third, Manny Jimenez' three-run homer in the third and Rocky Colavito's two-run blast in the fourth. Jim Gentile also singled in a run in the fourth.

Rich Rollins slugged a homer for Minnesota in the first, while Jimmie Hall and Allison connected for back-to-back homers in the fourth. Don Mincher smashed a home run with two aboard in the sixth.

Three Run Rally In Seventh Gets Phillies By Reds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies rallied for three runs with two out in the seventh on Johnny Callison's double and singles by rookie Richie Allen and Tony Gonzalez for a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Cincinnati Red.

The Phillies had managed to score single runs only on a passed ball and a wild pitch before loser Bob Purkey faltered in the seventh.

After Bobby Wine and pinch hitter Roy Sievers grounded out, Tony Taylor drew a walk. Allen moved him along and Callison scored him on a double through the infield. Purkey was lifted for Bill Henry. Then Gonzalez singled to short center as Allen and Callison scored.

Gordy Coleman scored two Reds with a triple against the right field fence in the third.

Probe Uses Of Chemicals

With Sam Hanna

More Information Needed

If anything is evident from the hearings conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service on the use of chemicals to poison insects, it is the need for more information for public consumption.

Hearings conducted at Washington, D.C., Memphis, Baton Rouge and New Orleans brought out testimony by government officials, including biologists, to the effect that pesticides and insecticides are harmful to fish and wildlife.

Of major concern in the hearings was a major fish die-off that occurred in the Lower Mississippi River. Government officials say the die-off was caused by Endrin and Dieldrin, which are used to control weeds and insects.

Louisiana's own Robert Lafleur, secretary of the Stream Control Commission, testified in Washington that the chemicals could kill fish. He appeared before the hearing because of a major die-off of fish, ducks and animals in the Atchafalaya Swamp below Baton Rouge.

Die-offs in the Atchafalaya have happened before, but the die-off this year was a major one.

To off-set testimony given by government officials, spokesmen for the manufacturers of pesticides denied that their products caused the fish die-off in the Mississippi. They said, in short, that a report by the Public Health Service was "unsound."

In short, the Public Health Service Report said that "after months of chemical analysis, it was concluded that dead fish (millions) from the lower Mississippi River contained toxic amounts of two commonly used pesticides, Endrin and Dieldrin."

One of the best articles that we've read on the subject of pesticides appeared in last week's edition of U. S. News & World Report, which quoted various agriculture officials to the effect that pesticides are necessary to produce the quality of fruit and vegetables that we eat today.

Without pesticides, the agriculture officials contend that today's apples would be soggy, that today's vegetables would not be worth eating.

On the other hand, all of us have heard people complain that today's vegetables aren't as good as they used to be. Some people we've talked to blame this on the use of poisons.

So the arguments pro and con continue.

This is not a new issue. The late Rachael Carson, a noted biologist, warned America in 1962 in her book "Silent Spring," that we are poisoning our food, poisoning our drinking water, poisoning our fish and are poisoning ourselves.

She was accused of being an "alarmist," but if she was an "alarmist" then we need more of them, because she documented in her book specific cases where die-offs of fish and game were traced to poisons.

Shouldn't the public have more information on pesticides? Shouldn't the people in this area where cotton poisons and other agriculture poisons are used frequently have more information on the subject?

Before the recent hearings, the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, the state game and fish departments and the nation's conservation organizations had to carry the load of the "objection" work.

Now we see that the Public Health Service has stepped in. Why? Because the Public Health Service is charged with the responsibility of protecting the human race.

Rachael Carson said, 'As you listen to the present controversy about pesticides, I recommend that you ask yourself: Who speaks? And why?"

You should read "Silent Spring."

Big Deer Kill

Fred Thompson of the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish recently polled all 50 states in an effort to determine the number of deer killed annually by vehicles on the nation's highways.

His survey showed that more than 71,000 deer were killed on the highways last year.

All 50 states responded to the survey questionnaire but only 43 states could give definite figures. Of these, 20 states estimated their total kill at 33,692 and 23 states reported on actual count of 37,381 deer for a nationwide total of 71,073 in 1963.

New York reported the highest estimate — 24,000. But Pennsylvania had the highest actual figure of 12,153.

There have been numerous recommendations made to prevent this needless waste of wildlife on the highways, including adding markers on game crossing signs advising motorists of the distance game can be expected on the highway right-of-way, more experimental work on devices, such as reflectors, to keep deer off highways, treating salt spread on highways in winter with deer repellent, clearing of dense woods from highway rights-of-way, and thinning heavy deer populations near major highways by controlled hunting.

Ouachita Parish may have a problem of this nature in the future when the I-20 is completed through the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area where the deer herd is rapidly expanding. The commission has asked for a fence tall enough to keep deer from crossing the highway, but to date the request has not been approved.

For the protection of motorists and preservation of game, a fence might be a good investment.

Status Of Deer

People aren't the only creatures on earth that are socially inclined.

Studies disclose that social stratification extends from the human race down through the insect and animal kingdoms. Latest to be found socially inclined was the whitetail deer.

According to a team of researchers in Texas, there is a definite social "pecking order" in whitetail deer herds. It is especially pronounced when it comes to their "table manners."

The studies were made chiefly to determine why the antlers of some bucks remained in the velvet and fail to harden. Except for the rutting period, male deer assembled on the feeding grounds in small groups apparently lead a congenial existence.

In larger groups composed of adult does, yearlings and fawns, the social order begins to assert itself, with leaders commanding the choicest, and those on the lowest rung of the social ladder taking what's left.

Occupying the last position in whitetail society is the buck in velvet, whose antlers have failed to develop normally. Even the more aggressive fawns outrank them.

Little Man's Corner

The weather was spring-like and the little men made news afield.

Black Bayou at Monroe continued to be a good fishing spot. Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Moore of West Monroe landed 135 bream. Another West Monroe fisherman, Homer Moffit caught 80.

Monroe fishermen having good luck with the bream on Black Bayou included Mr. and Mrs. John Whitfield, 85; James Dunn and Thomas Cash, 50; Sidney Fitch and C. R. Tillman, 75; Joe Throilkill, 44; Robert Ewing, 65; J. C. Zagone and Pat McCarthy, and Bud Munson, 90.

Fred Golson, a local fisherman, landed one of the biggest bass of the week. It went five and three-quarter pounds.

Incidentially, Louisiana is included in the 10 best bass states in the United States. This is the opinion of Don Latta, a fisherman-writer, who ranks Florida first and Georgia second.

But third - place Arkansas notes that Florida and Georgia have a largemouth bass that is a separate sub-species — Micropterus salmoides floridanus.

In short, it's a bigger bass than the kind we catch in Louisiana and the Micropterus salmoides landed in Arkansas.

At Ferriday, Mrs. Esther Kelly and Mrs. Carolyn Craft landed a 4-pound black bass out of the barpits. Apparently it took both of them to bring in the bass.

Mrs. Ed Short and Mrs. L. S. Beasley of Winnsboro caught the limit of bream at Lake St. John. Fishing with red worms, John Grady of Lake St. John caught 72 chinkapins in St. John.

At Lake Providence, Bill Shirey and W. P. Rushing landed 13 bass in the lake. W. A. Harris and Lloyd Clements caught 11 in Old River.

Jack Weber and his wife, from Vidalia, caught the limit of bream in Lake Concordia. Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Perry of Ferriday, Willie Freeze of Vidalia, Ernest Pett and Rex North, both of Vidalia, have been catching bream below Vidalia at Derr Park.

At Lake Concordia, Jimmy Gaspard landed the limit of bass. Buford Halford of Ferriday got 10 bass and two white perch at Jughead Jones place. Al and Bill Strickland got the limit of bass there.

Director L. D. Young Jr. has been elected vice-president of the Southeastern Association of Game and Fish Commissioners at Atlanta.

There still is not any official word on whether Young will be replaced in the McKeithen administration. And if the new governor plans to appoint a commissioner from the Fifth District, one of the present members will have to go.

LEGS TELL STORY

Another Milestone Is Near For The Old Brown Bomber

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former world heavyweight champion Joe Louis reaches another milestone in one of sports' most remarkable careers next Wednesday—his 50th birthday.

And in the typical, simplified philosophy of Joe Louis, he views the matter this way:

"My mind tells me I'll be 50 but my legs say I might be older."

No, the Brown Bomber isn't ready for the wheelchair, but he admits that on a golf course he does enjoy an electric cart.

Louis makes his headquarters in Los Angeles now, but he's likely to show up most anywhere in the country. And if he doesn't have his golf bag in tow, he'll know where to locate one, as well as the nearest course.

Golf has been Joe's main passion for years, and too often in the company of golf sharpies, his biggest weakness.

Over the years Joe hasn't changed much. He emerged without a scar from his 71 bouts—bouts in which he bombed 54 opponents and outclassed 13 others by decision.

"I weigh 240 now. My last fight, with (Rocky) Marciano, I weighed 214. I got to step up on my diet. I'd like to weigh around 225. No more," Louis said.

Joe said he has several things going for him now, including a connection with a New York public relations firm. He seemed a little vague about it, however, indicating he might welcome something more substantial.

He was a sort of advisor for Sonny Liston in his losing fight with Cassius Clay. But since Sonny says the government still has his purse tied up, it is doubtful if Louis has received any compensation.

Joe himself doesn't bother to go into details in such matters. Money never has been very important to Louis. He earned almost $4 million in purses, plus more out of the ring in the good years.

Where it all went no one really kn

Seven Injured In Three Twin City Accidents

Seven persons were injured in three separate accidents, one involving a tractor, in West Monroe Saturday.

Four were injured as a result of a three - car mishap at Crosley and N. 5th Sts. in which a car driven by 16 - year - old Sandra Nordstrom, of 202 Plum St., West Monroe, was going north on 5th St. when it slowed for a stop sign, then proceeded to cross Crosley, police said.

The Nordstrom car collided with a car driven by Louise H. The Nordstrom car continued on and collided with a car driven by Roy W. McMillion, 17, of 509 Stella St., West Monroe, which was stopped on 5th St. He was reported not injured.

Police said that the two women and two other persons, Andy Nordstrom, 13, and Harold Nordstrom, 8, both of 202 Plum St. and passengers in the Nordstrom car, were injured. All were taken to Glenwood Hospital. The accident happened at 1:55 p. m.

Miss Wolfe and Steve Wolfe, 15, of the same address and a passenger in the car, were taken to Glenwood Hospital.

Four - year - old Jerry Gates, son of Johnny Gates of Shreveport, suffered a leg cut about 4 p. m. Saturday when he apparently fell while riding with his father on a tractor on Arkansas Rd.

DOING IT HIS WAY

ARLINGTON, Ky. (AP) —After the veterinarian prescribed a number of pills for Mrs. Ova Jones' dog, her son decided that he'd make the pet swallow them.

He pried open the collie's mouth, put the pills far back on her tongue, then held the dog's mouth shut. Lassie gulped and the youngster let go.

"The dog promptly spat out the pills," said Mrs. Jones. "My son got disgusted and threw the pills on the floor. Lassie then ambled over and ate them all."

U.S. Asks Cuban Trade Halt

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged the European allies Saturday to stop selling strategic goods to Communist Cuba, which he said is a "threat to democracy."

Rusk, who leaves today for the Hague and a crucial three day meeting of the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) opening Monday, spent 90 minutes with Belgian Foreign Secretary Paul-Henri Spaak Saturday morning and another 60 minutes during the afternoon.

He also met for an hour with Prof. Walter Hallstein of Germans, Common Market executive president, and other top officials of the six-nation European economic bloc.

Spaak is a former long-term secretary general of NATO, a champion of European unity and of close American-European cooperation.

Rusk could count on the Belgian foreign minister for a complete up-to-the-minute briefing on current European thinking on these main issues which the secretary of state plans to bring up at the NATO conference.

—The need for the NATO allies to further coordinate their policies outside the North Atlantic area. In this connection Rusk was expected to try to persuade the NATO allies to back the U.S. trade embargo on Cuba and to contribute more aid to South Viet Nam.

Rusk called on America's allies in Europe to curb trade with Castro's Cuba and "cooperate" with the Western Hemisphere nations which "have the primary responsibility for dealing with this threat to democracy."

PETROGYLPH IN OHIO

JACKSON, Ohio (AP) — In a little park owned and supervised by the Ohio Historical Society near the village of Leo is the Leo Petroglyph.

It's a collection of drawings — birds, fish, etc., probably done by prehistoric Indians — on a large sandstone outcropping. If there is a message, it never has been translated.

Johnson Quips About Beagles, Bagels, Bills

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson thinks he may finally be out of the dog house—the beagle dog house of course.

The President drew many protests recently when, at a gathering in Washington, he lifted a beagle by the ears to make it howl as emphasis to a point in his talk.

Saturday, he drew a number of laughs when he spoke of his troubles over the incident in opening remarks at an address to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers convention.

Johnson began by saying that Jacob Potofsky, the union president, had called him in Washington to say that he should cancel his speech. With a broad smile Johnson said the reason given by Potofsky was that, "People are pretty mad because you pulled the ears of a bagel."

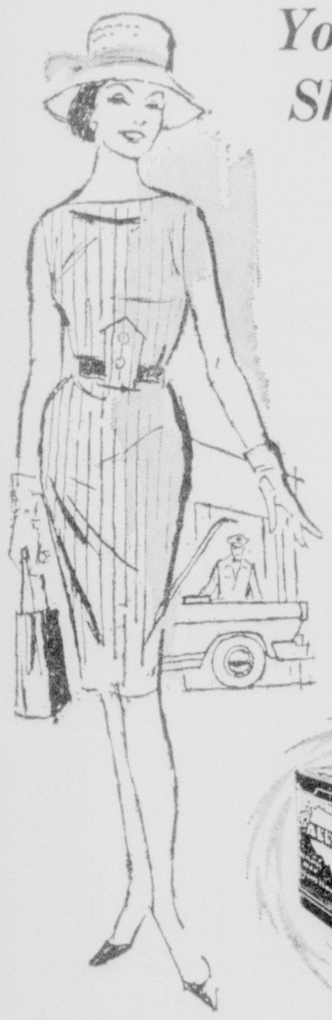

A bagel is a doughnut-shaped roll popular in New York.

"Well," Johnson continued, "I am out of the doghouse finally—at least for the time being."

Johnson also had fun kidding the clothing workers about their industry.

Classic New Fashions Demand Jewelry Accents

"Soft" suits and easy shifts in modern classic design for spring '64 rely on jewelry accents.

American and French designers agree that Chanel's interlocked initial pins are conversation jewels for understated cardigan jackets. Lapels on cut-away suits and coat dresses demand a favorite pin; scarfed necklines and sashed waistlines call for an "anchor" pin. Long-sleeved blouses focus attention on the textured gold dome ring strewn with tiny diamonds and rich-colored gems.

One important jeweled piece sparks elegance and adds the feminine touch to tailored, uncluttered dress lines.

Pocketed suits will show off chains a la Chanel; pins will accent diagonally - cut fabric when placed on pocket edges. The stark mandarin necklines provide backgrounds for pins in pairs, one placed slightly higher than the other.

VERSATILE PINS

Banker's gray flannel suits need the fancied-up look of a classic gold pin dew-dropped with a diamond and creamy pearl as it perches at shoulder level. The same pin is versatile; it can be placed on a little hair band of fabric to match a suit or dress, an idea born of a famous American dress designer.

Nifty navy reefers with wide collars have ample space for a fresh flower clipped into place by an impressive pin.

The "in" trends of soft rippled collars and "V" necklines are an open invitation to new-look necklaces. Fancy necklace clasps do an about - face when worn center front of the throat for added design interest.

Matinee-length necklaces and diamond-drop pendants enjoy a revival as fill-in focal points for "V" neck overblouses and open-neck jacket seaters. Elongated necklines call for long-line jewelry.

Spring's bold patterns — florals, paisleys and abstract prints — call for careful selection of jewelry. The size of a jeweled piece should be of large enough scale to be noticed as part of the costume accent.

CHOOSE BIG JEWELRY

"Busy" fabrics tend to overshadow small, dedicate jewelry. Good-sized pins with textured surfaces don't become "lost" causes on active printed fabrics. Checks and dots also require jewelry of recognizable size.

Long-sleeved blouses teamed with jumpers and sleevelsss tunics direct attention to jeweled fingers. "Occasional" rings are bold in proportion, yet of simple design frosted with tiny diamonds accented with polished coral of turquoise.

Jewel - tone gems build the colorful drama so necessary for the avalanche of black - white print dresses. Chanel approves of wearing a single piece of jewelry with a print; her choice is a gemmed ring for a pinky finger.

A little paste wax on the screw top of a nail polish bottle will make the cap easy to remove.

A crystal and silver epergne filled with roses and accent of white centered the refreshment table in the dining room which was overlaid with a natural imported linen cloth. Mrs. Julia Bassett presided at the silver coffee service and Mrs. Carlotta Baynes served punch. The serving table in the den overlooking Bayou DeSiard, was centered with an arrangment of spring flowers and was presided over by Miss Gyl Rowell.

Fifteen new members of the club will be honored at the tea to be held at the McSherry home, 2500 Island Drive, at conclusion of the tour. Honorary members and early presidents of the club, will preside at the guest books and tea services. Tea girls will be fifth graders at Lexington, known as the Primary group, under supervision of Mrs. Ben Davis.

Layton Castle was built in 1910 by the widow of Robert Layton II and incorporated within its dull-pink brick walls is part of the Old Bry House, built about 1810 by Judge Henry Bry, a prominent early settler of Monroe. The principal architectural feature of this house is a tower worthy of feudal Europe. The house contains treasured lithographs and chromolithographs of pictures painted by John James Audubon, and a small folio of his works.

Judge Bry was a close friend of Don Juan (Jean Baptiste) Filhiol, and often entertained Audubon. He led the delegation that welcomed the steamboat "James Monroe," — the first steamboat to sail up the Mississippi to Fort Miro in 1819, and renamed the settlement, Monroe, in honor of the occasion. About 70 feet from the house, in a grove of trees and shrubs, is the cemetery of the old Bry homestead, enclosed by a brick wall.

"Noesgay," an elegant Louisiana Colonial home is a blend of the picturesque English - Caribbean planter cottage style of architecture with the paradigm lines and sophistication of the 1730 Prudhomme - Natchitoches type. Authentic English Coach lanterns flank the wide Colonial door leading into the entrance with its unusual gleaming cedar flooring. The traditional stairway leading to the upper half-story is accentuated by the ageless pineapple stanchion post. Furnishings throughout are in Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Louisiana style.

A frame structure of two stories with gabled roof, broken by wide three-windowed dormers and supported by classic columns, Upper Pargoud is considered one of the oldest plantation homes in Ouachita Parish.

Located at the end of Island Drive in Monroe, it was built in the early 19th century as an overseer's home by Hypolite Pargoud, one of Monroe's first wealthy planters and merchants. About 400 yards north of the plantation house, between the levee and Ouachita River, is the Pargoud Indian Mound. According to tradition, the mound is the burial place of Wichita, beautiful daughter of the Indian chief, Ucita. She died after she had been deserted by Juan Ortego, a member of de Navarez's expedition who had married her in gratitude for saving his life.

NEUTRAL CONTAINERS

Modern taste generally calls for simplicity in a flower container so it will not detract from the beauty of the flowers displayed. Most flowers blend well with neutral colored containers. If a vivid colored container is chosen, it is best to select flowers that blend or contrast with it.

Empire Influenced A-Line Gown Is Choice Of Brides This Season

High fashion is edging out tradition in attire for 1964 bride and bridesmaids, according to bridal consultants.

For example no longer is the traditional white wedding gown the big seller; white is being replaced by a light shade of ivory. The Empire-influenced A-line gown is IN and the elaborately full-skirted dress is out.

Bridesmaids dresses this year are predominately long.

Bridal gowns proving the most popular this season are in light ivory, a color that is flattering to more girls than stark white — but which looks white when seen in church.

The light ivory dress is often trimmed with matching lace or — and this is a particularly striking combination — with ecru lace, which is a deep eggshell color.

"Girls will choose what looks best on them," explains one expert. "Light ivory does more for most girls than white. Fabric in this color looks richer."

In style, the high-waisted Empire look the smart college girls began asking for in 1963 is very much in vogue this year.

Such gowns have shaped skirts (either A-line, semi-dome or definite sheaths), the majority of which are flat in front, full at the rear. Fuller skirts remain the favored choice of some brides.

The Emprie look is popular this year also in bridesmaids' dresses, the majority of which are long.

The bride who plans to wear her gown as a formal after the wedding may choose a dress with removable bolero and train. Such "convertible" dresses — which allow for subsequent ballroom use or cocktail party wear - are available for bridesmaids also.

In making wedding arrangements, many things are decided by popular vote. But the wise bride makes this decision alone -even though the attendants pay for their own dresses.

In fabrics, peau de soie is an all - year favorite for bridal gowns, but taffetas, organzas and linens also are popular. In fact, say stylists, all bridal gown fabrics except linen, which is strictly a summer material, can be worn at any time of the year in the South.

Popular fabrics for bridesmaids' dresses this year are linens and chiffons.

DOUBLE-GOOD EATING

Double-corn sticks make double-good eating! To make these just add drained canned whole-kernel corn (or kernels cut from cooked fresh corn on the cob) to cornbread batter to be baked in cornstick pans. Use about half a cup of corn kernels for half a dozen of the sticks.

RAINCOATS

The newest April - shower coats make great use of reversible and double-faced fabrics.

Gayest group seen hereabouts in some time was Neville High school's class of 1939, gathered for their twenty-fifth anniversary celebration Tuesday. Class members from four states gathered for an afternoon visit, and then attended the annual banquet of Monroe City School Alumni association in the Paragon ballroom that evening.

A number of the 1939 class were accompanied by their husbands or wives. Present were CAROLYN and RHODES SAVELLS of Harrison, Arkansas; CLOVIS CREIGHTON WALKER and husband SAM; the JOHN D. CALHOUNS of Ruston, where he teaches at Louisiana Tech; MARTHA ANN MOORE; RALEIGH POULOS, PEGGY and JIMMY GIMLER, all of Houston, Texas; HERMIONE DRISKELL; JOY PETTIT SMITH and husband ROY of George West, Texas; LESLIE ABRAMS LEIBOWITZ and husband IRVING; JIMMY KALIL and EARL FISHER of Shreveport; ROSEMARY and JULIUS McKNIGHT; MARY JO and FRED FULTON; SARAH and DICK TAYLOR; ED THOMAS; PEGGY McCRARY BUIE and husband ALLEN of Rayville; JERRY and GARLAND MOORE; SHEFFIELD JOHN, TRAVIS TYNES; BETTY PETTY MEREDITH and husband BEN from Bastrop; DOUGLAS PETTIS WHITE; MARILLYN MARSHALL TAYLOR; and ADELAIDE PARKER WYATT of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, who was president of the senior class in 1939. The class sponsors, MARGARET FLOURNOY and D. W. GRIFFITH, were seated with the group.

Five members of the class of 1914 were present to celebrate their fiftieth year. These were NELLIE WEBB WALKE, NED LEIGH, EMILY ROSENBAUM, and ERNEST WHITFIELD of Monroe; LILLIAN MOORE McCOY of New Orleans.

Masses of roses in silver Revere bowls decorated tables for the banquet. The class of 1964 was presented to the alumni association at this time. Nearly six hundred persons attended.

Adelaide Parker Wyatt, who came to town for this banquet, remained until Thursday, visiting with friends and relatives in Monroe. Wednesday at noon, CAROLYN SHELTON was hostess for luncheion honoring Adelaide at the Shelton home. Roses in shades of pink and yellow decorated the living room. Carolyn served fresh fruit here as a first course before guests were invited to the table.

A white ironstone tureen filled with a pyramid of palest pink rambler roses centered the dining table. The luncheon plate included aspic served with whole shrimp, slices of avocado, and cucumber sand-wiches. Dessert was cracker pie with whipped cream. Ten guests attended. . . . Later that afternoon, JEAN MYATT invited a group for coffee and a visit with Adelaide at her home.

On Friday evening last, JANE and JOHN SHERROUSE were hosts at a party at their home on DeSiard road. Tall arrangements of magnolias used with their own foliage stood at each side of the door in the entrance. More magnolias were noted in the living room, while on the mantel was ivy used with green candles. A basket of white roses stood on the hearth on the living porch.

Centering the dining table was a spring bouquet of white stock, pink roses, and iris. The buffet menu included roast beef with tiny hot biscuits, corned beef for sandwiches, devilled eggs, and a chafing dish of fried oysters. About thirty couples attended the party.

Home again after a delightful trip abroad is FRANCES ADCOCK. She and JIM went to Paris in late March and there joined their daughter JAN who is a student there this year. During Jan's vacation, they visited in Madrid and Rome before Jim came home, leaving Frances for a longer visit. Jan and Frances then travelled to London and to Ireland, before the latter left for Monroe, arriving last weekend.

Chickenpox is causing a little inconvenience at PAULINE RILEY's house this week. Daughter POLLY WHITE arrived from Hyattsville, Maryland for a two week visit, with children PAULINE and JIM. Young Pauline turned up with the chickenpox their second day here, and is spending her visit indoors.

A tour of Monroe homes is on tap for members of Monroe Garden club tomorrow. Busses will leave Bayou DeSiard country club at 1:30, taking garden club members on tour of Layton Place and Noesgay. The bus is to return to the club, and members proceed by car to Upper Pargoud plantation, where tea will be served.

Today being Mothers' Day, we will present several observations on motherhood:

The mother who cannot get over 'that tired feeling" doesn't need psychoanalysis, says Dr. Leonard Lovshin of the Cleveland Clinic. 'She is not sick; she is not maladjusted — she is tired. She has a workday of 16 hours, a work week of seven days. She probably hasn't had a real vacation in years, and she may have various worries about finances, husband and children. Being conscientious she gets involved in clubs, Brownies, PTA, heart drives, church work, hauling children" In addition to her children, she usually has animals to raise, and in wear and tear on mother "a puppy equals about one and a half children, and a cat with kittens equals two."

How many children a woman has makes little difference, Dr. Lovshin found. "A woman with one child just worries four times as much about the one as the woman with four children, and it all comes out even." What does make a difference is age. "The nervous system can't take so much after 30; two hours of screaming is bad enough at any age, but after 36 it is unbearable."

Dr. Lovshin's prescription: thorough examination to rule out physical illness, then explanation and reassurance. Little things — a new hat, dining out or going to a ball game — help in mild cases. He is against giving tranquilizers to tired mothers. "A tranquilized mother would be about as good as a tranquilized Notre Dame football team, he says. But he thinks there may be a place for tranquilizers in handling these cases: "Give them to the husband, children and puppies."

Here are several short poems, eminently suitable for Mothers Day:

First, these lines by Richard Armour:

At last my child says "Please" and "Thank you"
Without his being told to.
Of course the lad is grown and married
And I am pretty old, too.

Pat McGinley's "Five P.M.?"

Time to put food on to cook
And see the house is tidy,
To change my clothes and try to look
Gay, glamorous, and bridey;
Time to call the children, then
To wash the little dears—
Yes, night is falling once again,
Right around my ears.

"Lines for a Little Man" by Mary Margaret Milbrath:

There are kisses to remember,
There are kisses to forget;
There are kisses that will haunt you;
There are some you just won't get.
But of all that I have tasted,
I can truly say I am
Strictly partial to your kisses
Mixed with cookie crumbs and jam.

And, lastly, "Return Favor" by Leonard Schiff:

We wake our sons to go to school
By seven-fifteen, as a rule;
Which they repay in little ways—
Like waking us on holidays.

CHEF'S TRICK

Chef's trick: as soon as the roast has been taken from the pan, tip the pan so all the liquid collects in one corner, then when the fat has risen to the top slowly pour it off. Make the gravy with the good drippings left in the roasting pan.

Traditional Rose Ball Held By AOPi Sorority

A rose garden atmosphere was created in the Paragon Club ballroom for Alpha Omicron Pi sorority's annual Rose Ball for Northeast State Chapter, alumnae and special guests last Saturday night.

Forming a backdrop for the band was a huge banner of shimmering satin, bearing the AOPi Greek letters and inscription "Rose Ball," beneath a mammoth red rose. Greenery encircled the base of the bandstand.

The latticed gateway at one of the room was entwined with English ivy and red roses with the decor repeated in the white grill work encircling the dance floor. The decorative motif was carried out with streamers of rose and greenery which ran the length of white damask covered tables, extending in fan shape from the dancing area.

Springtime was also effected in the nearby white latticed house, overgrown with roses and ivy and a lover's seat at one side, and in the rose and ivy entwined columns in the room.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of an arm bouquet of red roses with matching satin streamers to Miss Paula Lawrence of Shreveport, who has headed the sorority during the past school year. The presentation was made by incoming president, Miss Alice Butler of Monroe.

Ice buckets complete with tongs and bearing the lettering "AOPi, Rose Ball 1964," were presented as favors to AOPi members, alumnae and guests.

Military Look Comes In Strong

The spring parade of fashions shows a strong military influence in coats, suits and costumes.

Navy blue and white are a part of the story, as are brass buttons, generally lined up in double rows.

The semi-shaping of the officer's coat is translated into fashions for the most feminine of ladies. The crisply tailored, notched collar shows up, too.

It's a great way to march into the new season.

BREAKFAST TREAT

A little leftover whole-kernel corn in the refrigerator? Add it to scrambled eggs and serve with crisp bacon.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Dorothy May Tannehill to Donald Gene Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer of Clay, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Tannehill of Tullos. Ball-And-Chain Sets Bachelor Dinner Decor

Decorations at a farewell "bachelor dinner" for the groom before his wedding day should be simple but bright and bold to capture he-man interest, advises the Society of American Florists.

For a stag party that would rate high on any man's list, use black and white checked table cloth, red napkins and white plates. Insert huge white carnation "boutonnieres," ringed with pittosporum foliage, at the base of black candlesticks arranged in tier fashion for the centerpiece.

Or, use an actual ball-and-chain for the centerpiece, decorating it with an arrangement of carnations and stocks to give sharp contrast to the bold blacks. This centerpiece undoubtedly will evoke shouts of amusement from guests before the symbol's true meaning is realized: Two people willingly tied together for life

MAY FLOWER BUYS

Carnations, snap - dragons, roses, daisies, and most all other cut flowers are in plentiful supply in May and are considered "good buys," the Society of American Florists reports.

SAF suggests that cut flower arrangements be kept away from draughts and direct sunshine. Resting them in a cool, dark place at night will refresh the flowers and prolong their beauty, SAF adds.

NEW PRESIDENT of Phi Mu sorority at Northeast State, Miss Eleanor Harmon, at left, presents an arm bouquet to her sister, Mrs. Robert Baxter, whom she succeeded to the office. Mrs. Baxter of Orange, Texas is the former Camilla Harmon of Monroe. Presentation was made at the group's Pink Carnation Ball last Saturday at the Virginia Hotel Crystal ballroom.

Phi Mu Carnation Ball Held In Medieval Setting

Phi Mu sorority members of Northeast State and their escorts danced Saturday night in a medieval setting of castles, crowns and queenly hats in the Crystal Ballroom of the Virginia Hotel. The formal event was the Pink Carnation Ball which climaxes spring semester social activities of the chapter.

The entrance was transformed into a doorway of a turreted pink castle flanked by huge embellished shields. Guests registered at a table enhanced with a silver bowl of pink carnations and pink tapers in silver candlesticks.

Small tables where guests were seated held centerpieces incorporating gold crowns and medieval ladies hats with chiffon veils and the sorority's name in glittering Greek letters, mounted on styrofoam bases. Candles in crystal holders completed the decor.

A large pink illuminated castle centered the long refreshment table, at one end of which punch was served from a silver bowl encircled with pink carnations and fern. Silver trays held party confections.

Featured among the ceremonies was the presentation of an arm bouquet of pink carnations tied with matching satin ribbon to the outgoing Phi Mu president. The recipient was Mrs. Robert Baxter of Orange, Texas, the former Miss Camilla Harmon of Monroe, succeeded by her sister, Miss Eleanor Harmon, who extended the courtesy.

The new president was assisted by her escort Richard Serio, in presenting favors to the chapter's membership and special guests. The packages held folding beach chairs bearing the letters, "Phi Mu Pink Carnation Ball 1964."

Highly Textured Fabrics Popular

For several seasons highly textured fabrics have been strong in expensive fashions. But these fabrics were difficult to reproduce at popular price levels until this year.

Now women who buy in the $22 to $50 price range will find plenty of surface interest in dress fabrics — brocade textures, the multicolor tweed look, the bark crepe dresses.

These fabrics are still new to many women, who may have been aware of them, but only at a distance, a price distance. They began in European fabric specialty firms, were picked up by those few American firms able to do such high styling, and now have moved into mills donig quantity business.

One of the newest is puffed and quilted man-made fiber, being used in loungewear just now, but ready for fall in outerwear.

QUICK MEAL

For a quick supper make patties from canned salmon and brown in butter in a skillet. Add canned green peas to white sauce and serve over the patties. For the patties, mix the flaked salmon with bread crumbs and egg and a little milk.

MRS. DON MADISON SIMS

Vikki Jan Nielsen Weds Don Madison Sims In Candlelight Ceremony

Topiary trees of pink chrysanthemums and spiral candle trees against a background of jade foliage decorated the First Baptist Church of Bastrop Saturday, May 2 at 7:30 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Vikki Jan Nielsen and Don Madison Sims.

Forming an arch between the trees was a white wrought iron candelabra holding slender pink tapers. Bouquets of pink chrysanthemums and myriad tapers decorated the choir rail which was garlanded with jade.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Stigall Nielsen of Bastrop and Louie Ramey Nielsen of Monroe. Mr. Sims is the son of Mrs. Alton Yeldell Sims and the late Mr. Sims.

Dr. O. M. Anderson of Water Valley, Miss., performed the double ring ceremony assisted by Dr. Ray P. Rust, pastor of the church. A program of wedding music was provided by Miss Norma Jean Weatherly, organist, and Tom Terry Milliken, of Ferriday, soloist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Clark T. Browning of Valparaiso, Florida, the bride wore a gown of imported white batiste, minutely tucked and embossed with point de venise lace at the neckline, sleeves and on the tiered skirt. The molded empire bodice was fashioned with a square neckline and wrist length sleeves. The floor length skirt, featuring controlled fullness at the side and back, extended into a court train. Her veil of imported white silk illusion extended beyond her gown in a chapel length train from a crown of point de venise lace enhanced with poufs of illusion to the shoulder. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies of the valley showered with satin ribbons and love knots.

Attending the bride were Miss Penelope Sims, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor; Mrs. Murray Otis Bridges, matron of honor and as bridesmaids, Miss Mary Ann Nielsen of Winnsboro, cousin of the bride; Miss Judy Stigall of West Monroe, cousin of the bride; Miss Linda Lee Woods of Monroe; Miss Marilynn Jenkins of Bastrop and Miss Elizabeth Barham, Bastrop, cousin of the bridegroom.

They were dressed identically in Grecian style full length gowns of cloud pink imported silk organza over silk taffeta, styled with bateau necklines and long fitted sleeves. Back interest centered on watteau trains attached with a self bow at the slightly dipped neckline and falling to the skirt hemline. Dior bows of matching pink silk organza formed their headpieces and matching satin slippers completed their costumes. They carried nosegays of pink Briarcliff roses centered on tiny muffs of pink organza. The honor attendants' bouquets were tied with floor length streamers of pale pink satin.

Lloyd Barham attended his nephew as best man and groomsmen were Joseph Davenport III, J. B. Rawlinson III of Mer Rouge; John Michael Yeldell and James Edward Yeldell of Mer Rouge, cousins of the bridegroom; Mark Hill of Washington, D.C., Frederick F. Preaus II of Bastrop and William Morgan Davenport of Mer Rouge.

Mrs. Nielsen received the wedding guests at a reception at the Morehouse Country Club following the exchange of vows. For the occasion she wore a model of Chantilly lace featuring a softly tucked sheath skirt and waist length overblouse, of the rose - patterned lace with square neckline and long fitted sleeves. Her hat was a single hand painted rose in pale pink and she wore a corsage of pale pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Sims wore a Dresden blue sheath of embroidered silk organza, belted with a small silken rope. She wore a crown of blue with a wispy veil and her corsage was of pale pink cymbidium orchids.

Hurricane candles lighted the entrance of the club and in the foyer white pedestal baskets held mass arrangements of pale pink roses and ivy. The reception table was overlaid with white organdy with insets of lace and caught with poufs of tulle and garlands of string smilax. A pyramid arrangement of pink Briarcliff roses, pink and white stock in a silver epergne enhanced with tall pink tapers formed the central decor. Mrs. J. Vernon Sims and Mrs. B. J. Amorosa alternated at the silver punch service at one end of the table and presiding at the silver coffee service opposite were Mrs. F. P. Robinson and Mrs. Ben Meredith.

The cake table was covered with white organdy and taffeta, and garlanded with smilax and poufs of tulle. The tiered wedding cake, supported by rose covered pedestals, was served by Mrs. Carlton White and Mrs. Collie C. Stigall.

Arrangements of roses and tropical foliage were used throughout the ballroom and lounge where background music was provided by Miss Martha Ellen Mitchell at the console organ. Miss Sara Beth Ferguson registered guests at an antique marble topped table graced with a silver compote filled with pink roses and holding a lighted taper.

Tea girls were Misses Kay Seligman, Nannette Raphael, Sara Jo Amorosa, Pam David, Brenda Green, Bruce Blanks, Carolyn Chaney, Susan Snipes, Linda White, Minett Holley, Rosemary Jeffries, Bimi Land, Millicent Wallace and Cecile Jenkins.

Members of the house party included Mrs. Fred Esther Smith, Mrs. Warren Storment, Mrs. Dave Landress, Mrs. M. F. Hill, Mrs. A. B. McBride. Special guests of honor were the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Ella Stigall of Shreveport, who wore a deep blue crepe frock with matching accessories and Mrs. Louie Ramey Nielsen of Winnsboro, dressed in a gown of pink crepe with white flower trimmed hat.

For their wedding trip to Nassau, Bahama Islands, Mrs. Sims changed to a costume suit of pink silk linen with overblouse of pink chiffon and a modified beret of layered pink organza and tiny rosebuds. Her corsage was of lilies of the valley from her bridal bouquet.

Old-fashioned recipes sometimes call for "green" corn. That's just another name for ordinary fresh corn that comes on cobs!

Color, Style Latest News In Men's Fashions

The newest news in men's fashions this year is the fact that the men, themselves, are becoming more fashion - conscious. The rugged breed who, traditionally, has left the "frivolities" of color and style to the distaff side suddenly is becoming more aware of the importance of proper silhouette for a particular build, and interesting color and pattern combinations.

Men's clothing stylists have produced a selection of models to fit any physique with appropriate fabric patterns and color combinations to suit the most exacting tastes. Suit and sportcoat models run the gamut from natural shoulder styles — a basic favorite of young collegiates and ideal for the gent with narrower shoulders — to the conventional American silhouette, with semi-natural shoulder lines . . . or the avant garde look of more highly styled suits and sportcoats with slightly broader shoulders and a forward pitch. These are seen in one-or two-button models, while the American silhouette usually comes in two - or three-button versions and the Ivy League styles, with only three-button closings.

Colors, in general, are lighter and brighter on the men's wear scene this year — which is an important fashion step forward in itself. The process may be a slow one, but perhaps the men are starting on the fashion road.

PLANNING THE VARIOUS entertainment features planned during the annual state convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be held in Monroe May 15-17, are these committee chairmen of the social events. They are from left to right, Miss Ruth Whatley, president of the local club serving as hostess for the convention; Mrs. Nethel McDermott, chairman for the "Redskins on Parade," party planned Friday night at the Paragon; Mrs. Lucille Mathis, chairman of the installation banquet Saturday night at the Frances Hotel; Mrs. Lucille Crowe, chairman for Saturday's luncheon and Miss Maibel Hood, chairman of the breakfast Sunday morning which will close the convention. State and district officers will be entertained on Thursday evening preceding the convention with a boat ride up the Ouachita River aboard Noe's Ark, with a buffet supper to be served by the Monroe club.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Mother's Obligation Is To Her Children

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for three years. He has two children by a former marriage and I have three. This is where the trouble comes in.

His children are with his wife who has remarried. He has no financial responsibilities to them since their step-dad adopted them legally. My children were with me until my husband began to complain that he didn't see why he should have to put up with another man's kids. To keep peace, I boarded them out. Their father pays support money for them and he is always Johnny-on-the-spot with the check.

I miss my children something awful and feel that I should be making a home for them. This would mean leaving my husband. It's a terrible choice but I am faced with it here and now.

Where do my obligations lie? — MUDDLED

Dear Muddled: What in the world did you and your husband talk about before you married? Did he think you were going to drown your children so he wouldn't be bothered with them?

Get those youngsters out of the boarding home right now and keep them with you. If your husband can't stand them then let HIM go live in the boarding house.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 20 years old and engaged to a boy I have been going with for four years. He has always been truthful and open with me.

Recently he was called to take his physical for the Army. He passed with no trouble. The next day he got to thinking about it and decided to go back to the draft board and tell them about a few things that are wrong with him. He then got his doctor to write a letter to that effect. He was re-examined by the Army doctors and was classified 4-F.

Do you think this could effect our future in any way? Is it possible that his 4-F status will make it difficult for him to get a good job? I somehow feel that what he did was immoral. Help me think this through, please. — SUSAN

Dear Susan: The Army doctors know all tricks in the book. They would not have reclassified your friend 4-F unless there was a valid reason for doing so. Have faith in him and let him know it. His 4-F status should in no way keep your fiance from getting a good job.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I went out with a 17-year-old kid I will call Ron. It was my first date with him although I have known him all my life. We were supposed to go to a party but it was cancelled at the last minute because the host got German measles.

Ron suggested that we just cruise around for the evening although I told him I'd rather go to a movie.

At a long stop light he took a pint of Bourbon out of the glove compartment and offered me a drink. I said, "No thanks." He took a swig of Bourbon and put the bottle down on the seat beside him.

I told him to let me off at a bus stop because I didn't care to be with a driver who drank. He got mad and snorted, "One drink does not make a drunk driver but if you're such a creep you can get out here."

He stopped the car (three blocks from a bus stop) and I got home on my own. Today it is all over school that I am a nut. Am I? — R.D.

Dear R.D.: If more girls had your brand of common sense—and courage—we wouldn't be reading so often about kids whose lives ended just when they should be beginning.

If what you did is considered nutty we need more nuts like you.

Black, White Summer Colors

The big summer colors are still black and white, especially as accessories. Despite the inroads made by pastels when the weather is warm, nothing provides better contrast to a good tan than stark whites and jet blacks.

Therefore shops are busily stocking their shelves with, fluttery jet feathers, lacy white, or black jackets. Ruffly meringue collars and hats made of everything, but either black, or white.

Pendants Rage As Jewelry

You can expect your necklaces to be oscillating like pendulums on grandfather clocks, for pendants of an off-beat nature are the comers in costume jewelry.

The plunging neckline trend has brought about some forerunners . . . i e., pins stuck way down there at the end of a V for the sake of a little more modesty. Today's versions on heavy chains are klunky and primitive, some with Indian coloring.

LACE MAKES NEWS

Big fashion news is the arrival of lace for everything, as in a lace coat dress with shirt sleeves or a lace cocktail dress with ruffled neckline.

New ways are shown to release new skirt fullness, as in pleats stitched flat over the hips, bodice tucks down to the hipline.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who have been following my 9- Day Reducing Diet must be feeling pretty proud of yourselves about now if you began the menus last Tuesday. That bulge above the waist is going, going, and will soon be gone! Your belts are treating you to that wonderful loose feeling, and you can see your insteps without half trying!

There are only three days to go. Don't stop just short of the finish line! Another two or three pounds may be hanging by an ounce, ready to drop away, if you provide that last little three-day shove.

I publish this diet each year in the spring because so many women have just a few pounds to lose and are anxious to do so before summer sports and play clothes roll around. Five to 10 pounds make such a great difference in the way a woman looks and in the way she feels.

ENCOURAGING START

If you have more weight to lose, use this rapid diet as an encouraging start. Then count calories, holding your daily intake to 1200 a day. Every few weeks repeat the 9 - Day Diet.

When planning your own low-calorie meals, be sure that you obtain all of the essential food elements. Be certain that your menus are high in proteins, minerals and vitamins. The important protein foods are meats, fowl, eggs, seafoods, cheese and milk. You will have plenty of minerals and vitamins if you use the above foods and add generous amounts of fruits and vegetables.

You need some whole grain foods. You can get these in bread or cereal. If you have cereal use only a moderate amount of sugar or one of the artificial sweeteners and skim milk.

SMALLER SERVINGS

Take smaller servings than usual and use lean meat, skim milk and broil or bake foods rather than frying or creaming them. Cut down on carbohydrates and fats.

You already have the menus for tomorrow. Monday I will give you those for Tuesday.

June Favored For Weddings In Early Times

CHICAGO (UPI) — Why June has become the traditional month of weddings probably relates to the transportation difficulties in early America — too much snow in winter to get to wedding celebrations, according to Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia.

Another influencing factor: June is named after the Roman goddess, Juno. The Greeks had a different name for the same goddess, calling her Hera. At any rate, this Juno — or Hera — was the goddess of womanhood, of marriage and of maternity.

MISS CARRIE LENA MYRICK

Miss Myrick Engaged To Area Man

Announcement is made today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Carrie Lena Myrick to Herman Swartz, both of Memphis, Tenn. Parents of the bride-elect are Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Myrick of Jamestown, La., who announced the forthcoming nuptials. Mr. Swartz is the son of Mrs. Thelma U. Swartz and the late Herman Swartz Sr., of Lake Providence.

The wedding is planned for June 13 at 4 p.m. in the First Methodist Church of Memphis Tenn.

Miss Myrick is a graduate of Castor high school, Castor, La., and Northwestern State College, Natchitoches and is presently enrolled at Memphis State University.

A graduate of Lake Providence high school, Mr. Swartz attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute at Ruston and Valparaiso Technical Institute, Valparaiso, Indiana. He is presently employed at the University of Tennessee Medical Branch.

LBJ Hat Not A Fad

Texas hat firm Byer-Rolnick frowns on the idea that the LBJ ranch hat is a fad. Not so, when every Texan for years has worn similar hats.

The LBJ label on these hats has come about simply because President Johnson naturally uses this style, and he has given permission for the hat industry to call them the LBJ hat.

The LBJ may at last bring back wider brims for men, thus ending the present comical look of many men whose faces are too big for all those itty - bitty brim hats.

Ladies, too, can wear LBJ's. Several popular hat makers have brought out such styles for women, with little more pinch to have a lot of dash, especially in strong colors.

FISH DISHES

Quick searing at the start of cooking in the frying pan or broiler helps retain the flavor-giving moisture in fish dishes.

Farris-Harris Vows Read In Church Setting

Baskets of yellow and white gladioli formed a setting at Transylvania Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Rickey Lanyon Harris and James Wayne Farris on April 25 at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Ezelle of Transylvania and Mr. Farris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Farris of Lake Providence.

Rev. Sherwood W. Tullos performed the double ring vows following nuptial music by Mrs. Ormand Patrick, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a two piece dress of white linen, and a small white hat with short veil. Her bouquet, a yellow throated white orchid, surrounded by white carnations and cascades of ribbon, was attached to a white bible.

Mrs. Marlon McPherson, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a yellow whipped cream sheath and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations encircling a yellow orchid.

Albert Crouse, of Sicily Island, attended Mr. Farris as best man. Serving as ushers were Rickey Farris, brother of the groom, and Randy Harris, brother of the bride.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a printed pink silk sheath with matching accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a beige linen dress with accessories to match. Both had corsages of white feathered carnations.

Following lthe ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. The reception table, covered with a lace cloth over yellow, was centered with an arrangement of yellow and white gladioli. Punch was served by Miss Beverly Ann Walters of Tallulah, and Mrs. Richard Johns of Transylvania served the cake. Miss Lynn Fortenberry presided at the guest book and distributed rice bags.

After a short wedding trip the couple will make their home in Monroe where the groom will continue his education at Northeast College.

Area Couple To Wed May 23

Miss Boatner's mother is the late Irma Dorsey Boatner.

The wedding will be an event of Saturday, May 23 in the St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Baton Rouge with only members of the immediate families present. The couple will reside in Baton Rouge.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

10 Designs Are Shown

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Ten flower designs with a selection of interesting horticulture specimens, were brought for the Fifth District Garden Center T.V. program by the East Carroll Garden Club of Lake Providence. Mrs. C. R. Brown, the club's president had three of the designs. Several of the club's members brought two designs while others sent one plus horticulture specimens that could provide material for a complete show. All of the flowers in the designs were top quality blooms, grown in the exhibitors' own gardens. This club is noted for it's good horticulturists as well as excellent arrangers.

MANY DESIGNS

I will describe the show in general since there were so many designs. Mrs. Brown exhibited an "all rose" design made in a silver bowl: also, an symmetrical design featuring sansavera for the line which was filled-in with Louisiana iris and Dutch iris. A filler of "gold dust acuba" blended with the color scheme and added good balance to the design as well as background for the focal. Mrs. Brown's third design was an oval massed design made of lovely Gerber daisies. These were placed against a background of eucalyptus leaves. Acuba foliage strengthened the focal interest.

Mrs. K. E. Mangum made two designs. Light green dock formed the line for her first in a low gold footed container. Fairy (pink)roses filled the outer edges next into the larger pale pink roses for the focal interest. Baby ivy and smoke tree blossoms were used as filler. For her second design Mrs. Mangum used pine tips (new growth) for the line material for the crescent design in a lovely light cream colored compote. A massed placement of orange florabunda roses filled in the line making this a very colorful design.

Mrs. Pete Key made two designs. One, an asymmetrical triangel, was made of pine tips in a grey and black textured compote. Dutch iris filled in this line, highlighted with variegated euonymous and yellow honeysuckle. Gold Dust acuba formed the focal accent. For her second design Mrs. Key used eucalyptus for the diagonal line in a large black and gold etched vase. This line was filled - in with the buds and half open blossoms of the magnolia. It was quite effective.

ORIENTAL MANNER

Mrs. W. Y. Bell created a design in the oriental manner (morabana) water viewing style using aspidestra to form the line to one side of a footed brass container (low). Within this line she used small red amaryllis. It was a striking design.

For horticulture display Mrs. Bell brought the oak leaf hydrangea, which is so different from the other types of hydrangea in that the blossoming florets grow up the stem cone shaped instead of round heads. The leaf resembles an oak leaf. Mrs. Bell also brought mullen blooms in cerese pink. These are the first I have seen. They are single blossoms that resemble small petunia blossoms.

Mrs. C. A. Marlett made a May basket design in a large magazine basket with flowers being placed with a casual look, yet very effective with splendid harmony. Some of these were florabunda roses, phlox, larkspur, amaryllis and deutsia placed in a large white bowl which was concealed in the basket and made steady with floral clay.

The last design — and I promised I wouldn't describe all of them, but, I did (briefly), because they were all so lovely, was made by Mrs. Sam Mitchner. She used the eucalyptus for the airy line of her vertical design in a tall white vase. Colorful gerber daisies were placed within this line and accented at the focal area with gold dust acuba leaves.

Mrs. T. G. Biggs sent one of her purple allium blooms which caused everyone to stop and look at the center in Sears after the T.V. Show. Also, an eye catcher was the columbine blooms and the lavender fox glove grown by Mrs. Margie H. DeBose.

It was such a wonderful show by a wonderful club. Thanks from all of us who love beauty.

A Tribute To Mothers

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mothers' Day comes once a year in the month of May, and this is the day to pay special homage to Mothers. This poem written by Gilbert H. Rogers, entitled "Memory of Mother," is most fitting for today.

There is a tender memory which still is fresh and clear; it is the one of that old home and you, our mother dear. We still can see you bending down to dry our childish tears, or standing by our beds at night to quiet foolish fears. How patiently you taught us all to work and serve and live, and in the stewardship of life a strict account to give; and through it all we sensed that you were close to God above, that you knew the joy and peace because you trusted in His love. Today across the changing years our thoughts all homeward flow, and turn with prayers and gratitude, to memories aglow. And central in those memories one vision we see clear, of one for whom our love still grows with every passing year.

FROZEN MEAT

"How long will frozen meat retain good quality when stored on recommended temperature zero degrees F or lower in the home freezer?," is a question asked by many homemakers. It depends on the kind, form and cut of meat; because beef fat does not become rancid as quickly as pork fat. A beef roast can be stored longer than a pork roast. The following chart prepared by USDA Research Service gives the latest recommended storage periods. Ground meat two to three months; beef roasts eight to twelve months; steaks eight to twelve months; cured bacon less than one month; cured ham one to two months; fresh pork chops three to four months; fresh pork roasts four to eight months; fresh pork sausage one to two months; fish six to nine months. Veal cutlets three three to four months; ground veal two to three months and veal roasts four to eight months. For the best quality, use the shorter storage time and store at zero degrees F.

PICKLED EGGS

If you, Mr. or Mrs. Homemaker, like pickled eggs, this is the special recipe of our county agent, J. J. Joyce. So try it. Two dozen eggs hard cooked and peeled; one quart vinegar; one quart water; one - twelve ounce jar hot peppers; three teaspoons salt; six bay leaves, and two whole onions. Heat the vinegar and water; put eggs, onions, bay leaves and salt in large mouth jar; pour vinegar over these. Put top on jar. It takes from two to three weeks for eggs to pickle.

CLOTHING

Not all garments need lining or underlining. If a fabric is very firm, it may or may not be necessary to do either one. The choice to line, to underline, or a combination of both, is determined by the characteristics of the fabrics (garment and lining or underlining the garmen and wish to achieve. In underlingin the garment and underlining fabrics are treated as one. The underlining is sewed in with regular seam lines. In lightweight fabrics, the darts may be made in both fabrics at the same time.

In heavier fabrics, it may be desirable to make darts separately. In this case press underlining darts in opposite direction from garment darts to eliminate bulk, and then treat both fabrics as one for the remainder of construction. In lining a garment, the lining and garment are made separately and their lining is attached to the garment at the waistline. The lining seams and hem should be turned toward your body if there is any danger of seam imprint on the topside. Because of the difference in the construction of a knit fabric, and lining fabric, linings are usually more successful in knitted garments than underlinings.

Peat Pot Start For Seedlings

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newfeatures

Each new gardening year we become more convinced about the value of buying seedlings in individual peat pots or starting them in the handy little containers.

Setting the pots in your garden as soon as the soil warms up not only eliminates much of the transplanting shock, but the disintegrating peat helps build the soil and hold moisture. Addition of essential nutrients to the pots now adds to their value.

NEW TWIST

Another new twist is multiple posts — strips of individual pots fastened together at the rim for use in seed sowing and transplanting. Placed in light trays, they may be handled as single units until you want to separate them for transplanting outdoors.

Your garden shop also has lightweight, sturdy composition trays which will reduce the danger of damping-off diseases sometimes carried by the old, oft-used wooden flats in which you start seedlings.

If you start your own seedlings, a tested planting medium is one-third clean sand, one-third peat moss and one-third good garden loam, thoroughly mixed. When the plants attained a size at which they may be handled without danger of being broken, transplant to individual pots in which they eventually may be sunk in the garden.

Keep the tray and pots in good light and keep the soil evenly moist. You can harden the seedlings by moving them to a protective cold frame before setting them in the garden.

PETUNIAS STARTED

We have had good results with petunias started in peat pots. The big blue Capri is one variety we plan to raise this year. Last season we planted some of the cascading type petunias. Without a convenient planter or window box from which to let them hang, we planted them near branching shrubs to support them aloft and decorate the front yard.

A cascading variety new this season is Sugar Daddy, which has four-inch blooms. For bedding, try the dwarf, compact Pink Lace, a fringed hybrid. Plum Double is a compact double form of Sugar Plum.

Yellow Type Camellia Is Sought

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A search is underway for a yellow camellia to compliment the basic red and white ranges.

This is not a new hunt but plant scientists believe the trail is warmer. They also feel cross - breeding and selection of a hybrid yellow - flowered camellia may bring them to the end of the trail before they find a wild yellow camellia species.

The hybridists hope that when the factor for yellow is introduced into camellia species japonica and reticulata, with their spectacular size and form, many shades of yellow, peach, orange, scarlet and gold also may be bred into camellias.

One thing that has spurred the hybridists is the fact that roses once were considered to have only the basic colors of red and white. But the French rose breeder Pernet - Ducher crossed the hybrid perpetual Antoine - Ducher with pollen of a wild Persian rose and got the delightful (gold) Soleil d' Or.

RUMORS LURE

Rumors of yellow camellias lured the late Ralph S. Peer of Los Angeles to Southeast Asia and North Viet Nam. Peer was a member of the Camellia Research Advisory Committee of the California Arboretum Foundation.

But before anything developed, the bamboo curtain of Communist China dropped across that area of Indo-China.

Nature may produce a yellow camellia in this country. There is evidence, scientists report, that some seedlings and mutations of the japonica species (the most common in this country) contain traces of yellow pigment. They theorize that some new recombination of genes might intensify the yellow color.

Dr. Clifford R. Parks, a geneticist with the camellia advisory group, is working to produce a yellow flower within the species japonica and by crossing japonica with other species. Parks is an expert in separation in flowers.

OTHER GOALS

Yellow is not their only camellia goal. They are striving to develop more camellia fragrance, greater weather hardiness and earlier-flowering hybrids.

One recent milestone they reported was the successful pollination by Asper of the camellia species pitardii with pollen from the Tutcheria spectabilis, a flower of the Theaceae family which has yellow petals.

A dahlia introduction is "Roulette," close to the anemone-flowered class. It has a rim of petals and a pincushion-like, raised center of tubular florets. Ranging from 2½ to 3 feet tall, it bears many pink - white blooms.

ANNUALS MAY BE used for garden scheming just like the larger trees and shrubs. Here hollyhocks in the background, snapdragons in the middle and petunias for an edging make an attractive border planting against a dark brown woven fence.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: We are going to finish our attic soon and plan to insulate it first. I keep reading about the necessity of providing a vapor barrier when doing any insulating, but very little about how to install such a barrier. Can you tell me something about it?

ANSWER: A vapor barrier is simply a material through which water vapor will not easily pass. It is essential to prevent moisture from moving into the insulation, destroying its effectiveness and damaging other building materials. It is this moisture, passing through inside walls to the outside, which often causes exterior paint to blister and deteriorate.

These days most insulating materials have their own vapor barriers. In some cases, the insulation itself acts as a barrier to moisture. When you purchase your insulation, ask your dealer about it. He will tell you whether the type you have selected has such a barrier.

In that case, the only thing you have to watch is the manner of installation. Always be sure the vapor barrier faces the inside or heated side of the room you are finishing. Should you decide on a type of insulation which has no barrier, ask the dealer to recommend a separate material for the purpose of preventing water vapor from moving into the insulation.

Grey Foliage Stands Heat

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Last week's column about plants for hot places has brought forth requests for more grey-leaved plants. Not all plants with grey and silvery foliage will take the hottest places, but most of them can take a great deal of drought.

In fact, if you water santolina too much when the sun is shinning on it, the foliage seems to decay down underneath.

There are a good many common grey - foliaged plants. In addition to the annual dusty miller (actually it is a perennial) that we mentioned last week for figured beds of plants in summer, there is, of course the splendid perennial artemisia, Silver King. It is hard to see how summer gardens and winter arrangements could do without Silver King.

YARROW

The various kinds and varieties of yarrow (Achillea) are indispensable long blooming perennials. You can find it in the fields and ditches, but the named cultivated varieties, including some of the pink ones, are all much handsomer than the wildings. Certainly nothing is more drought resistant. The rockeresses over stones and low walls. (Arabis) are useful to spill Best known of all, of course is Cerastium tomentosum, that old standby of rock gardeners. After all, the fancy rock plants we brought in and tried during the rock garden craze in the thirties had died, good old cerastium just took over the bare places!

SILVER FOLIAGE

While they can take only so much drought, the pinks form mounds of clean, attractive silver foliage for the front of beds and the tops of low walls. They cover up the ground so tightly that weeds cannot come through at all after the mats have spread over them. There is nothing handsomer than the contrasting mats of phlox subulata, a fire-eater if there ever was one, and different kinds of silvery pinks. Phlox subulata will hang over a a wall so hot that a person cannot stand to touch the wall in summer.

THRIVE IN SUN

Gardeners do not seem to realize that geraniums are also true fire-eaters. These South African plants are accustomed to the hottest sun. They bloom best when they are in full sun and during the hottest summer weather.

The new facilities include a two-story addition in the front, in the 300 block of Jackson, and a five-story addition and boiler room in the back of the hospital. Construction work was started February 14, 1962. The contract price for the building was $3,851,450, and with new equipment included, the total cost is a little more than $4 million.

A Hill-Burton grant from federal funds in the amount of $300,000 was given to the hospital for the project and the remainder of the money was obtained on a 15-year loan basis, official said.

Auxiliary Group Serves Patients At St. Francis

The St. Francis Hospital Auxiliary of which Mrs. Bert C. Root is president, has more than 100 area women members who give voluntarily of their time to projects and services which benefit patients at the hospital.

A gift shop is maintained just back of the lobby on the first floor, and is staffed by volunteer workers five and one-half days a week. It carries a broad assortment of items. From the gift shop a hospitality cart is taken to rooms of patients every day.

Profits from these two projects are placed into a fund which is used to buy equipment for the hospital.

RADIOLOGY

Lots Of Planning For Department

Tons of cement, miles of wire, and years of planning were needed to build the new department of radiology at St. Francis Hospital. The rough outlines for a possible new department to better serve the hospital and the Monroe-West Monroe area were being studied as early as 1956.

From long list of needs to long lists of new facilities being used in this ever expanding medical specialty were selected those that could best serve all of the patients served by the department.

Draftsmen from New York, Shreveport, Maryland, Altanta, and New Orleans all helped in the initial stages before an architect even suspected that there was to be a new building. The radiologists flew all over the United States to study the latest equipment for the department.

The equipment selected was the very best produced by any company.

For the safety of the patients, and because of a desire to allow all of the privacy possible, special dressing rooms were built. These were copied after those used at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. These rooms lock when the patient is being x-rayed, and the patient keeps the key to the room around his or her wrist. Eight bathrooms help facilitate the many examinations done in the department each day so that there is very little delay.

LATEST IMPROVEMENTS

Image intensification is the name given to one of the latest improvements in fluoroscopy. Without increasing the irradiation to the patient, which is kept to a minimal amount on all machines, his development allows the doctor to examine special cases with the room lights on. This idea was borrowed from television and adapted to special uses in medicine.

It is even possible to select a specific layer of tissue in the body for the x-ray film, and to make this area crystal clear by blurring out all other areas. This is done by a tomographic attachment in one of the rooms. Such a device becomes of paramount importance to the patient in deciding whether a shadow in the lungs reprsents a benign process or a cancer. It is vauable to the othopedic surgeon determining special facts about bones and joints.

A special studies room allows the physician to move the x-ray table from one side of the room to the other. It allows special attachments to be used to take a series of films such as those used when the vessels of the brain are injected with dye. It allows patients too badly hurt to move to be moved to be x-rayed with special equipment from any angle. Not only does the table move, but the top of the table can be moved with the patient in place to very precisely position the patient for the best possible films of any given part.

SPECIAL LIGHTS

Every room has special lights to specifically localize the area of the body to be x-rayed. This helps the technician accurately position the patient, and to get the patient back to his room without undue delay. Special lights tell the radiologists which rooms are ready for his work. Other lights let those in the department know that a specific room is busy, and in use. This helps the patient by allowing a considerable degree of privacy, and it prevents confusion in designating which room is to be used for a specific study.

The intercommunication system makes the working of this large department efficient and safe. The doctors can be located in time it takes to press a button. Rooms can be monitored so that a physician in one room can listen to one or several rooms at the same time. He can be thus immediately available to any room that might need him.

Included in the special equipment were special types of tubes for mammograms, special films for soft tissues, equipment designed to study the blood vessels, in any part of the body, the most powerful equipment known to decrease the irradiation to the patient and to obtain extremelely rapid films. The films are automatically developed by two PaKo units. This allows exacting development not possible by the old fashion hand tanks. It allows the physicians to study a film already developed and dry in seven minutes. In speeding up the development of films, precious time is saved during accidents and emergencies.

All six of the rooms used to take x-rays have the very latest type of picture tubes for precise filming. All are capable of handling the hundreds of different types of routine examinations, and many have special features used for special examinations.

COBALT ROOM

The cobalt room was especially designed to care for cancer patients. The cobalt beam can be directed at any angle, and can even be made to slowly rotate around a patient in a complete circle while the treatment is being given. It is one of the most powerful units in existence with a special type high intensity source sealed in a special container to make it as safe as any known. It was recently checked, along with the room used for that type of treatment, and both were noted to be extremely well constructed by the special agency that checks for safety, for the output of the machine, and for the construction of the room.

Certain types of cancer are best treated by deep therapy or superficial therapy machines. Both of these machines are installed. Both are used not only for cancer, but for many benign diseases and conditions.

There are rooms to store almost a million films so that a patient may have a previous study compared to a recent one. The teaching room helps keep the department, and other hospitals and doctors officers, supplied with well trained students. A student is paired with a graduate, expert technician in each of the diagnostic rooms until the student is fully capable of the same exacting excellent of the skilled technician.

There are rooms for the staff physicians to reach each of the films privately and to concult with the radiologists about any details of a difficult case. Special rooms are used for the secretaries to type the reports and to code these reports.

Hospital Blood Bank Takes Part In National Plan

The St. Francis Hospital Blood Bank is a member of the American Association of Blood Banks and participates in the National Clearing House Program. This service allows persons to donate blood in this bank for friends and relatives in any hospital participating in the program. For example a person may donate blood here for someone in New Orleans, Shreveport, Dallas, California or New York City. The hospital may in turn receive credit for blood donated in other hospitals for patients at St. Francis.

The use of non-wettable plastic bags provides the best preserved blood, collected and dispensed in the safest method available. This closed system for transfusion eliminates the hazard of air embolism for the patient even when blood is forciably pumped into the circulation.

Purchasing Department In Key Role

The purchasing department and central store room are located at the far end of the first floor, east, at St. Francis Hospital.

There purchasing orders are prepared and copies kept on file to check the goods on delivery. A perpetual inventory on general usage items is maintained to give a record of uses, quantities received, issues, balance on hand, and serves as a guide for future purchases.

A large portion of the hospital income is expended in the procurement of materials, supplies, and equipment.

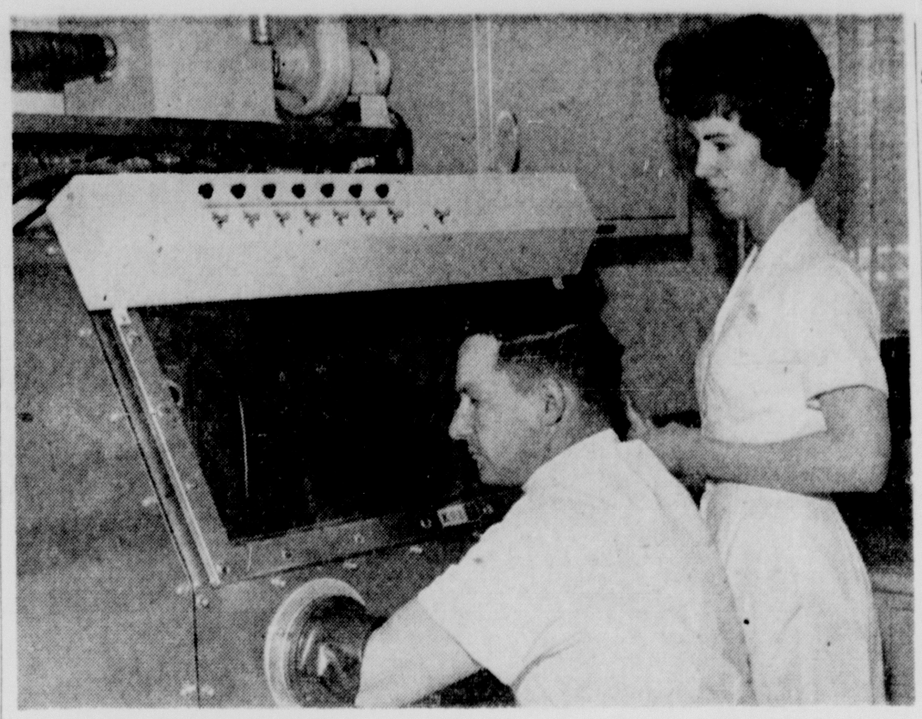

GOLDWATER DELEGATES

CHEYENNE, Wyoming (AP) —Wyoming Republicans on Saturday pledged their 12 votes at the GOP National Convention to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for the presidential nomination.

It will be the first time in history that Wyoming's delegation to a national convention has been committed in advance to one candidate.

SAFETY VIA SALT

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — States, cities and countries are turning increasingly to rock salt for safety in snow and ice removal from highways, says a report by Cargill, Inc., a major rock salt producer. In 1962 salt use for this purpose was 34 per cent above the 1961 level of 2.1 million tons.

AT ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

Old Records Tell Progress Story

Digging through old medical records at St. Francis is like getting a wide screen view on the march of medical progress in the last 40 yers. Today's patient at the St. Francis has a very good chance of recovery, compared to cases in early days. A check of old files brought out these no-so-musty tid-bits of good news:

The records of 1914 show how almost all babies were born at home. Only one baby was delivered in the St. Francis that year, and he was delivered by a cesarean section operation.

In 1925 five per cent of the new-born babies died along with six per cent of the mothers. The year 1954 saw no losses of mothers and the death rate of the newborn was within the national average.

TREND CHANGE

Malaria cases in 1914 showed a 12 per cent death rate. Twenty years later, in 1934, St. Francis decreased this death rate to five per cent. No deaths resulted from malaria in 1954.

In the year 1918 there was a six per cent death rate in patients suffering with influenza. No deaths resulted from the disease in 1954.

Appendicitis operations in 1924 resulted in a death rate of seven per cent. Thirty years later, 100 per cent of patients whose reason for operation was appendicitis alone left the hospital within a average of four days in good condition.

Twenty five years ago morphine and glucose were about the only treatment given a patient after the operation. Little was known about blood and a blood transfusion was hazardous to give. The R.H. factor in newborns was unknown which accounted for many of the newborn deaths.

CHANCES GOOD

Today's patient at St. Francis knows his chances are good. This is true because of advance in many different ways. Physicians have learned much in the last 40 years. New wonder drugs have been found and knowledge of medicine generally has marched forward.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

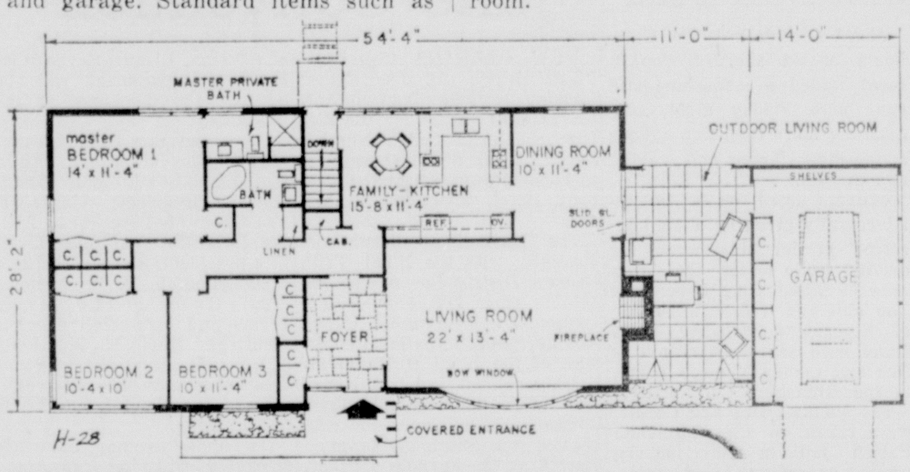

Finished Breezeway Adds An 'Outdoor Living Room'

ECONOMICAL LUXURY: A fully developed breezeway between house and garage gives this modest sized ranch a low, expensive look and also provides an "outdoor living room." The house contains three bedrooms, two baths. The architect is Rudolph A. Matern.

OUTDOOR LIVING ROOM: Louvered shutters provide breezy privacy for this 11-foot-wide breezeway between house and garage. Standard items such as wood panelling, resilient tile flooring and the brick planter beneath the louvers make the area a real "outdoor room."

FLOOR PLAN: Good design and use of natural sound barriers completely zones the bedroom area into a quiet and private wing. The basic house 1,479 square feet not counting the breezeway and garage.

Dramatic use of an ordinary breezeway transforms this modest one-story home into a ranch style house of luxurious, though basically inexpensive, proportions.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern, the craftsman who designed the home, made imaginative use of standard items—panelled walls, shutters and a brick planter — and instead of a bare arcade the breezeway connecting house and garage becomes an exciting "outdoor living room" for entertaining and family relaxing.

Still it is basically just a breezeway: a sheltered area built at relatively low cost simply by extending the roof; or, in this case, stretching the roof across an 11-foot gap between house and garage.

Another benefit of the breezeway is that it elongates the house, giving it the sleek, low look of surburban sophistication.

The basic living area of the house is only 1,479 square feet, containing three bedrooms, two stylish bathrooms, living room, dining room, family kitchen and gracious entry foyer. The house also contains a full basement which can be developed as the owner sees fit into recreation room, laundry, wordkshop and storage area.

The exterior features brick veneer on all four sides except the garage where vertical board contrast nicely with the low silhouette of the house. The brick also is stacked vertically.

Clever treatment of the gable end of the house adds to the design and also provides a covered entry which has the appearance of bring recessed. A wide side window at the front door assures plenty of natural light in the large foyer.

Both the exterior design and the interior floor plan are simple and straightforward, relying on creative use of materials rather than expensive frills to give the home its distinctive personality.

A close look at the floor plan shows that the bedroom area of this house is in effect a separate wing providing privacy and, through the use of natural sound barriers (basement stair, closets and foyer), complete quiet. Achieving this sort of zoning in a home of this size is a tribute to the architect's skill.

Though located within this privacy zone, the family bathroom also is convenient to the daily living area.

Both the family bathroom and the master bath are rather lavish. A vestibule containing the linen closet leads to the family bath, thus preventing two often used doors from swinging open into the hall. The bath also has a full ceiling lighting grille and a vent fan that operates with the light switch, assuring maximum light and ventilation despite the room's interior location.

The bedrooms are well proportioned, well ventilated, and contain an excess amount of closet space if that's possible.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plans H-28.

The family-kitchen, a 15'8" room which surely will prove to be the most popular indoor room in the house, also has an exceptional amount of window area making backyard supervision possible from any part of the room.

The kitchen work zone is efficiently U-shaped and has plenty of countertop work space and cabinets. On the counter dividing kitchen and family room is a separate burner handy to the breakfast table.

For this size home, the living room is exceptionally large. It also is styled in a grand manner with a sweeping bow window and a log burning fireplace which is the focal point of interest immediately on entering from the foyer.

Sliding glass doors lead from the dining room to the breezeway. This outdoor living room, as Matern terms it, is perhaps the ultimate in indoor-outdoor integration, a feature demanded by today's living patterns.

The house has a one-car garage, but it is oversized and contains a bank of closets and storage shelves which make it more than adequate for a one-car family.

Optimistic Air Prevails About Business Outlook

Monroe Morning World
Markets, Business and Oil

Two-D Sunday, May 10, 1964

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The bloom is remaining on the economy as spring progresses.

President Johnson and his economists expressed confidence in the business outlook during the week.

The National Retail Merchants Association and the National Association of Purchasing Agents are optimistic.

Automobile and steel production continued at high levels.

Johnson told a group of advertising executives that as long as business, labor and government operate in an atmosphere of mutual trust, he sees no reason why the economic expansion should not continue.

His belief was echoed by his chief economic adviser, Walter W. Heller, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Secretary of Commerce Luther N. Hodges.

"The present business recovery is a healthier, longer and stronger expansion than we have achieved in peacetime, and I would say there is no end in sight," Heller commented.

He expressed the opinion that the tax cut, enacted in February, has yet to produce a great impact on business but added: "We expect a gradual swelling of the tide, not a tidal burst."

The National Retail Merchants Association, with a membership of 11,000 department, specialty and variety stores, predicted a 5 per cent increase in retail sales and an 8 per cent gain in profits in the second half of this year.

This was based on a poll of its members, who were more optimistic about the second half than they had been about the first half.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents, whose members buy products for industry, forecast that "a buyers' market will generally prevail" for the balance of the year. It added the opinion that business will be decidedly better in 1964 and in 1963.

"The threat of inflation will exist but shouldn't become a problem for the balance of this year," the association said.

Automobile production held to its booming pace with output during the week estimated at 181,629 passenger cars. This compares with 179,237 assembled the previous week and 170,430 a year ago. General Motors and Ford worked some plants overtime.

Production in April totaled 786,222 cars, highest in history for the month, and manufacturers scheduled an output of 761,000 for May.

Steel production maintained a high rate although it dipped during the week below the previous week's level for only the third time this year. Mills turned out 2,456,000 tons against 2,464,000 the previous week.

The industry has operated at about 77 per cent of estimated capacity this year.

The nation's railroads won their five-year fight to eliminate some jobs which they consider featherbedding. They immediately invoked new work rules and laid off some firemen. Scattered strikes broke out.

The Kennedy round of tariff negotiations began in Geneva with the aim of breaking down world tariff barriers. The nations which do most of the world's business approved a 50 per cent cut in tariffs as the goal of the negotiations.

Stock Market Advances To Record Peaks

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week ended a two-week digestion of its previous gains and advanced to new record peaks in the popular averages.

Prices rose on every one of the five trading days except the last. The advance on average was the greatest weekly gain of 1964.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 3.4 to 306.5, its largest weekly advance since the week ended Dec. 7, when it gained 3.7.

The indicators:

AP average, 307.4; Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, 81.15, and Dow Jones industrial average, 830.17.

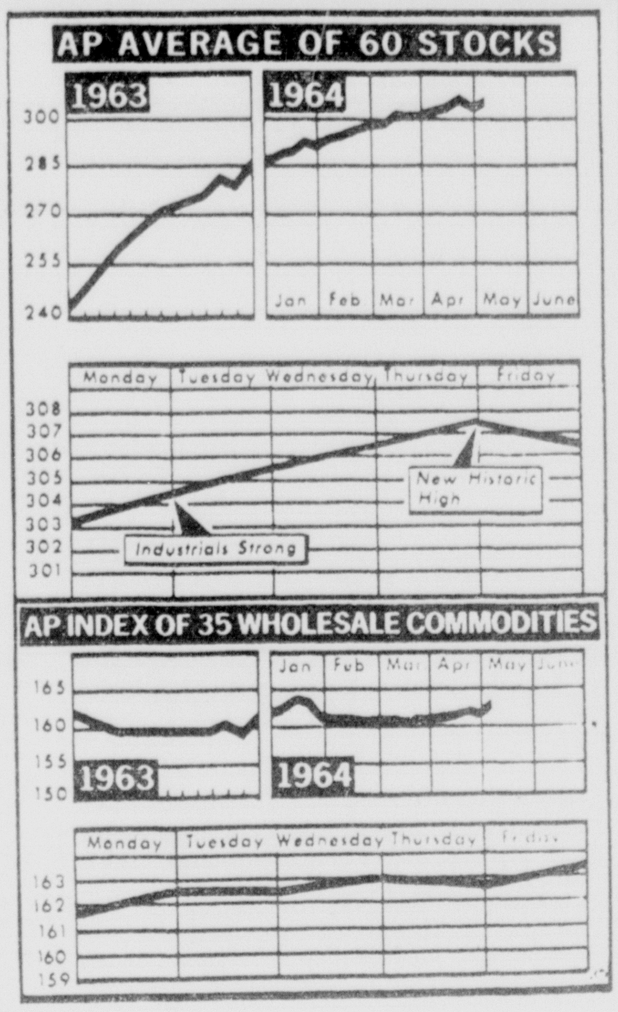

The Dow industrials closed the week at 828.57, for a substantial net gain of 11.47.

Volume was 26,796,270 shares compared with 27,811,850 the previous week.

The five most active issues last week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 1¼ at 54⅛ on 1,591,500 shares; Chrysler, up 4½ at 51⅛; Curtis Publishing, off 2½ at 15; Radio Corp., off ¼ at 33¼; and American Motors, off 1⅛ at 14⅝.

U.S. government bonds maintained a steady upward course. The corporate market remained inactive and little changed as it has been for months. The Associated Press average of 60 issues traded on the exchange showed no over-all change with each component moving a minimum amount.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks registered its largest weekly advance since early last December when it closed Friday at 306.5 from 303.1 a week ago. The Commodity Index, for the second consecutive week, moved higher to 163.4 from 161.9 in the preceding period. Food and livestock made notable gains. (AP Wirephoto)

Grain Futures Market Price Changes Slight

CHICAGO (AP)— Speculators had the grain futures market almost to themselves last week but they had very little to guide them and prices showed only small changes generally on the board of trade.

Most activity centered in the expiring May contracts where a good deal of evening up was noted. The May wheat delivery swung over a rather broad range of more than seven cents but closed with gains of more than two cents.

During the week, soybean meal sold at its lowest levels of the season on three successive days and oats dropped to season lows on two days. On Friday, those contracts were joined by the old crop soybean months.

At the end of the week, wheat was ¼-2⅝ cents a bushel higher, May $2.00⅛-¼; soybeans ¾-2¼ lower, May $2.52¼-⅜; corn ⅛-¾ higher, May $1.25-24; oats ⅝-1½ lower, May 60⅝-½ cents; rye 1½-2¼ lower, May $1.27⅞-¾.

MONROE DISTRICT

Drilling Tempo Slow For Week

Activity was sliding last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District with only one completion shown on the weekend report of Manager Duncan S. Cook.

However, one recompletion was recorded in Ouachita Parish, the Calhoun Field — Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company's Pipes Estate No. 1, recompleted at 9242 feet in section 33-18-1E.

A total of only 19 rigs were listed as actively drilling or testing in the district's 15 parishes, with 10 of them, five each located in LaSalle and Tensas Parishes.

Others included three in Rapides Parish, two each in Ouachita and Richland and one each in Avoyelles and Caldwell Parishes.

Also low during the week was the total of new locations staked in the district. They included five in Concordia Parish, two each in Catahoula and LaSalle and one each in Rapides and Tensas Parishes.

Five wells were plugged and abandoned and there were 54 inactive sites. Locations numbered 61.

Cook's report listed these details relative to the week's completion, active rigs and new locations:

2 Are Arrested As Officers Raid Still Near Jena

JENA (Special) — The Catahoula parish sheriff's department raided a moonshine still near here Friday night, confiscating more than five gallons of the illegal liquor and making two arrests.

Officers acted on a tip inadvertantly given by a man arrested earlier this week for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. The still and a five-gallon keg of moonshine whiskey were found with search warrants at Doc and Cooley Young's home, in the Rhinehart Community.

The Youngs, Doc and Cooley, were taken to the Catahoula Parish jail in Harrisonburg where, according to deputies, they are being held pending the filing of charges by the district attorney for making illegal moonshine whiskey. The keg and several bottles of whiskey were taken as evidence.

A small unidentified boy led Sheriff J. Y. McGuffey, four deputies and a federal agent to the still which was hidden in a ravine about one-half mile from the Young residence. Deputies said it was so well camouflaged by brush and dead limbs it would have been overlooked in a casual search.

The Sheriff said in his opinion the still had the capacity to produce not more than three gallons a day.

The Sheriff said in his opinion the still had the capacity to produce not more than three gallons a day.

The illegal, homemade brew was apparently bottled in wine bottles with labels. One such bottle was taken from the man arrested for DWI, and officers learned it contained whiskey when the odor began to leak from the jail vault.

NOTHING BUT TROUBLE

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A mother of 11 adopted children parked a borrowed car outside the County Courthouse and gave her 15-year-old son Gary money for the parking meter.

Mrs. Verna Underwood went inside with another son to file his marriage license and came out minutes later to see the car leaving.

When Gary got out of the car to deposit the coin, a man jumped in and drove the car away.

Mrs. Underwood went back into the Courthouse to report the theft to the sheriff.

She had borrowed the car from a patient at Bataan Hospital, where she is a nurses aide.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Rents Cows

An unusual approach to the dairy business was innovated by Herman J. Schmitz of Monroe, Wisconsin. Schmitz a cattle dealer dreamed up the idea of renting cows and placed the following ad in the Monroe, Wisconsin newspaper:

FOR RENT: Cows—You can rent four cows for the cost of buying one.
Cows, Inc., Herman J. Schmitz, Cattle Dealer

One ad brought orders for more than 200 rental cows.

Institute Talks By 2 Northeast Professors Set

A Northeast State College professor now on leave for doctoral study at Louisiana State University will be one of two featured lecturers before the Business Management Institute at NLSC Tuesday night.

Van Cook McGraw, holder of a Ford Foundation Doctoral Fellowship in business administration, will take part in a discussion of "Human vs. Inhuman Organizations" as the local businessmen participating in the Institute attend their final lecture session of the 7-week program. He will discuss the social responsibilities of the businessman.

Comparing selected philosophies of leadership on the same program will be another Northeast State business professor, Carleton C. Page.

McGraw, who has been a member of the Northeast faculty since 1959, is doing his doctoral work in the subject area to be covered in his talk. An honor graduate of Northwestern State College, he was a management intern with the U. S. Civil Service Commission before returning to his alma mater to teach in 1957. He came here from Northwestern. He has been on leave for advanced study at LSU since 1962.

Page, former industrial relations administrator for Westinghouse, has appeared recently on programs here and at Indiana University. Here, he discussed "Conceptual Foundations of Leadership Patterns" for the Monroe Home Builders Association. At Indiana, he talked on "Financial Security."

He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from the University of Mississippi and has done advanced study at the University of Pittsburgh and Indiana.

He has been at NLSC since 1958.

The 1964 Business Management Institute concludes on May 19 with a commencement banquet.

Hospital Week Is Proclaimed By Gov. Davis

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Recognizing the important role hospitals play in the lives of all Louisiana citizens, Governor Jimmie H. Davis has proclaimed May 10 - 16 National Hospital Week.

"Hospitals. . . such as are found in our state and nation provide services that are responsible for this nation's enjoying a level of health unsurpassed by any country," Governor Davis said in his proclamation which was presented to Sister Madeleine Sophie, president of the Louisiana Hospital Association and administrator, Opelousas General Hospital, Opelousas.

One out of every six residents of the state will be a patient in a hospital this year, according to statistics maintained by the Louisiana Hospital Association. In 1962, the last full year for which figures are available, Louisianians paid an average of $30.12 per day for hospitalization, 18 per cent lower than the $36.83 average for similar short-term general hospitals in the United States.

Approximately 21,000 persons are employed directly by hospitals in Louisiana, a ratio of 218 employees for each 100 patients in the short - term general hospitals. In addition, approximately 7,000 volunteers and community leaders who give their time as hospital trustees serve the public through the hospitals in Louisiana.

Civil War Bond Results In Suit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—A $10 state bond issued in 1862 which would now be worth an estimated $176,000, if redeemable, is the object of a litigation here.

An elderly Wichita couple filed suit in U. S. Dist. Court Friday claiming the money from the state of Missouri.

STEVE CANYON

IN THE FRIENDLY AFRICAN STATE BORDERING THE ONE WHICH HAS BECOME RED-DOMINATED...

MILTON CANIFF

THIS GOVERNMENT HAS INVITED A TEAM FROM THE U.S. TACTICAL AIR COMMAND...

BUT THIS SOUNDS DIFFERENT IN THE 'INDEPENDENT' COUNTRY ACROSS THE LINE...

INVASION!

THEY ARE COMING—WITH THE YANKEE DEVILS AS AIR COVER!

ON THE BROAD PLAIN JUST OVER THE STREAM WHICH FORMS THE BORDER—THE U.S. TEAM STARTS TO RENDEZVOUS...

ACROSS THE RIVER THE PANIC-STRICKEN RED PUPPETS SCREAM TO THEIR 'AGRICULTURAL' ADVISERS

BRING YOUR FIRE BIRDS TO RESIST THE INVASION!

PROTECT US!—AS YOU PROMISED!

WHERE ARE THE WAR WAGONS YOU BROUGHT TO OUR JUNGLES?

REVEAL THEM NOW OR WE SHALL BE MURDERED BY OUR NEIGHBORS!

THIS AMERICAN GESTURE IS PURE PROPAGANDA—BUT HOW CAN WE CONVINCE THAT MOB....?

WHILE STEVE AND MINNIE TOOD, DRESSED AS NATIVE WITCH DOCTORS, MOVE INTO THE VILLAGE WHERE MRS. YEER LIES ILL...

GA-ROO-MEE!!

MINNIE KNOWS THE DIALECT, SO SHE URGES THE VILLAGERS TO RUSH TO THE 'BATTLE' AREA ON THE BORDER. IT GOES WELL UNTIL SUDDENLY... A THIRD WITCH DOCTOR COMES OUT OF A HUT!

COO, YANK! AMATEUR NIGHT IS OVER!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a great idea when giving a teen-ager a party:

Dress up the soft-drink bottles with paper doilies and use colored straws for added gaiety. Just cut slits crosswise (like an X) in the center of the doily and slip it over the bottle, making a pretty, frilly skirt!

If you serve the soft drinks in glasses, doily skirts can be used on them, too. Just cut the slits a little longer.

For a more festive look, add cherries, a sprig of mint, and put an orange slice on the rim of the glass.

STARCH SAVER

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have made hot starch, and are not going to use it right away, drop an ice cube into the starch.

The ice will melt and cover the starch with a thin film of water . . . thus preventing that undesirable scum of thick starch from forming.

Blanchard

DON'T LOOK DOWN

DEAR HELOISE:

When painting the ceiling in your home, instead of using a ladder, try standing on a table completely covered with an inexpensive disposable plastic protector.

Most tables open in the center so that a leaf or two can be inserted to make them even longer.

You will be amazed at the steps this saves, and it's a cinch to get back to the places you missed.

Be sure to check the table legs first to make sure they will hold your weight (no offense intended).

Anthony C. Calandra

HOT RODDER'S TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

When you want to get bugs off your windshield, just dip a sponge in water, wring it out well, dip it in baking soda and scrub the windshield. Then polish with a cloth. This also works on chrome-plated grills.

Baking soda will also dissolve the road film on windshield wipers. Try cleaning your wiper this way and watch those streaks and smears disappear!

I belong to a qualified hot-rod club, and we have tested this.

Sparkey Cruse

TINY SALAD MOLDS

DEAR HELOISE:

Small paper cups filled with gelatin salads or desserts and set aside in the refrigerator are nice for children when they eat their lunches outside. Also good for individual servings for family or company dinner. The paper cups flute the edges of the salads beautifully, too, when they are removed and turned upside down on a plate.

Mrs. Mossell

FAKE FIREPLACE

DEAR HELOISE:

Our fireplace is artificial, so I covered it with adhesive-backed, plastic-type paper. I change it about every three or four years and it always looks nice.

The paper comes in solid colors, brick and stone patterns.

J. M. K.

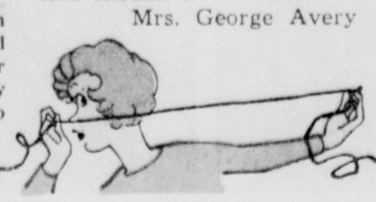

RICKRACK FACT

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometimes rickrack will shrink and cause the material to pucker, so I preshrank mine before stitching it on nylon (which does not shrink).

As a test, I put a whole card of rickrack into hot water for a few minutes, then hung it over my shower rod. After it had dried I measured it and found it had shrunk five inches.

Mrs. George Avery

SHORTENING SPREAD

DEAR HELOISE:

When your cake recipe calls for melted shortening, melt the shortening in the pan you plan to bake the cake in!

This saves dishwashing and greases the pan at the same time.

Mrs. M.

MOTHER'S DISCOVERY

DEAR HELOISE:

For years my mother has rolled up her package of thin-sliced bacon like a newspaper (lengthwise) and then unrolled it again before opening it for the first time.

This separates each piece of bacon so that she can easily remove one slice at a time. No trouble at all.

Mrs. Bill Anderson

SOAP SCOOP

DEAR HELOISE:

You know, that old ice-cream scoop we seldom use? The last few months I have found a good use for it.

I keep it in my soap box to measure soap powder when I do my laundry. No more spills for me, and it saves my hands from getting covered with the soap powder, especially when I get near the bottom.

Mrs. C. S.

How true, how true . . . Why hasn't somebody thought of that before? You are just a darling for sending it in, and thanks a million.

Heloise

FLOWER BOX TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a porch rail with a flat top and want to put a flower pot on it . . .

Drive a big nail (at least three inchs long) halfway into the top of the porch rail and slip the hole in the bottom of the flower pot over this nail!

The flower pot cannot possibly be knocked off.

Hollis Evans

BROOM BRIGADE

DEAR HELOISE:

I was taught to leave my broom standing on its handle . . . never on the bristles. But it often slipped and fell . . .

I happened to have an old worn-out rubber glove. So I cut off one of the fingers of the glove and slipped it over the end of my broom! Believe me . . . it sure keeps the broom from sliding.

Eleanor

100% SHRINKAGE

DEAR HELOISE:

I separate drinking glasses that are stuck together by putting them in my freezer and leaving them overnight. It works every time.

Helen Temple

SHINY TINES

DEAR HELOISE:

I use pipe cleaners to clean between the tines of my silver forks. I dip a cleaner in the silver polish and start wiping!

J. D. Bader
